SURPLUS TUNIC BID LATE BUT OFFER STILL OPEN

By MARGE GILROY

An offer by a Victoria philanthropist to buy 12,000 surplus RCAF tunics for needy Koreans, arrived in Ottawa too late.

The tunics were sold early this week to an English firm. The price was not disclosed.

The anonymous Victoria donor last Friday authorized Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, director of the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada, to bid on the tunics then being offered for sale by Crown Assets Corporation for 17 cents each.

He made the offer on behalf of the Times-sponsored Help the Hungry Child Fund.

USC headquarters in Ottawa, has informed the Victorian there is some indication more surplus clothing will be up for auction in the near future.

The donor has replied he will keep his bid open for a week or two.

In the meantime other donations for the cold and hungry in Korea may be sent to "Help the Hungry Child" fund, care of the Times, 2631 Douglas, or delivered before 5:30 p.m.

Donations are also being accepted at the main branch of the Bank of Montreal, Yates and Douglas.

Used clothing should be delivered to Dowell's Cartage and Storage, 1117 Wharf Street.

Donations will be acknowledged in the newspaper daily and official receipts for income tax purposes will be sent later from USC headquarters in Ottawa.

Collision In Fog Off N.Y.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The pride of Israel's merchant fleet, the sleek new luxury liner Shalom, jammed with passengers on a Thanksgiving cruise to the Caribbean, smashed into a Norwegian tanker off the fog-shrouded New Jersey coast today cutting it in two and killing 20 of its crewmen.

The Shalom, which means "peace" in Hebrew, had left New York harbor less than three and one-half hours before the grinding collision that sent the stern half of the tanker Stolt Dagali to the bottom in a matter of minutes.

By early afternoon, the 23 survivors had been plucked from the ocean by Coast Guard helicopters and taken to hospitals for treatment or observation. All but four of the bodies had been recovered.

40-FOOT HOLE

The 25,338-ton Shalom, with a 40-foot gash in its bow four feet above the waterline, limped back to port with Coast Guard vessels escorting it.

More than 600 passengers and 460 crewmen and officers were aboard but only one, Mrs. Marge Postalico, was hurt seriously enough to require hospitalization.

She was taken off the ship by a Coast Guard helicopter and taken to an army hospital at Fort Dix, N.J.

Both ships had radar, but it was not known whether either had any warning before the collision.

It was 2:23 a.m. EST when the first word of the tragedy crackled through the air from the Dagali's radio operator to the Coast Guard in New York. The message said the ship was "sinking rapidly."

EIGHT 'COPTERS

Eight helicopters from the Floyd Bennett naval air station in Brooklyn rushed to the scene along with coast guard cutters and other merchant vessels in the area.

"I arrived out there about 3:20 a.m. and the fog was so thick you couldn't see anything," said Capt. Ira H. McMullan, commander of the helicopter rescue operations. "But about a half hour later, the fog began to move.

"It is fortunate that the weather cleared up as soon as it did. We dropped flares until daylight. Shortly after daylight one of the helicopters sighted a lifeboat almost completely swamped with eight men aboard . . . this was the first sighting that I had of any of the crew of the tanker."

The men were quickly taken aboard in basket slings. The helicopters concentrated on the men in the water. Ten crewmen, including the tanker's skipper, were still on the floating bow section of the tanker. Their rescue was delayed for several hours because they were in no immediate danger.

SOVIET WARNS AGAINST RAIDS

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union warned today it is ready to give "the necessary assistance" to Communist North Viet Nam if that country is bombed.

In an obvious reference to reports that the U.S. ambassador to Saigon, Maxwell D. Taylor, and other American officials are considering raids on the north as a possible course of action in the anti-Communist guerrilla war in South Viet Nam, the official news agency Tass declared:

"Those who harbor adventurist plans with regard to the Indochina peninsula should understand that the Soviet Union cannot remain indifferent to the fate of a fraternal socialist country and is ready to render the necessary assistance."

Tass said that aggressive action against North Viet Nam "is emphatically denounced by the Soviet Union, and demands are made for ending any such provocations against that country.

"The position of the Soviet Union is that there must be no interference in the affairs of other countries and peoples. The United States should strictly abide by the Geneva agreement."

NDP Threatens Liberal Gov't Over Inquiry

OTTAWA (CP) — The New Democratic Party served notice on the government today that it will throw its voting strength behind an effort to topple the government unless additions are made to terms of reference for a judicial inquiry.

In a letter to acting Prime Minister Martin, Andrew Brewin (NDP — Toronto Greenwood) submitted a draft of additional terms of reference for Mr. Justice Frederic Dorion who is to inquire into opposition charges of attempted bribery and coercion in a legal case by two ministerial assistants.

The letter said that, if the government accepts the additions, the New Democrats will be convinced that the minority administration seriously intends to bring to light all the circumstances surrounding the charges.

But, if the government remains adamant in arguing that the terms of reference as approved Wednesday are adequate, the New Democrats will vote for a Progressive Conservative motion which amounts to a vote of non-confidence in the government.

The motion referred to was placed before the Commons some time ago. It calls for reducing the justice department's spending estimates by the amount of Justice Minister Favreau's salary.

Mr. Brewin's additions, proposed on behalf of the 19-member NDP group, covered two points:

1. Mr. Justice Dorion would be instructed to inquire "into the manner in which the RCMP and any officer thereof and the minister thereof dealt with the said allegations when brought to their attention."

2. The judge also would be ordered "to inquire into the activities of one Raymond Denis as executive assistant to the minister of citizenship and immigration."

REPORT ON SPECIFICS

Mr. Justice Dorion would be required, under these conditions, to report to the government on those specific points.

Investigation Wide Enough Martin Says

OTTAWA (CP) — Acting Prime Minister Paul Martin told the Commons today that the terms of references set by the cabinet for a judicial inquiry into allegations of bribery and coercion by ministerial aides are "wide enough."

He indicated a rejection of opposition demands for a broadening of the terms of reference to cover all activities of Raymond Denis during his time as executive assistant to Immigration Minister Tremblay.

NDP Leader Douglas repeated the request for expansion of the terms of reference to cover Mr. Denis' full activities.

There were shouts of "oh, oh" from the Conservative and NDP benches when Mr. Martin, acting in the absence of Prime Minister Pearson who is on a western trip, said there could be no doubt in anyone's mind that the present terms of reference are comprehensive.

Favreau Aide Named In Report

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Favreau said in the Commons today that his executive assistant, Andre J. Letendre, is mentioned in a confidential RCMP report about the Lucien Rivard narcotics case.

The minister said he had learned from the RCMP report that Mr. Letendre did in fact call Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne "in relation to the possibility of setting bond for Rivard."

New Massacre By Congolese, 17 Whites Dead

STANLEYVILLE (Reuters)—Congolese insurgents driven out of Stanleyville by paratroopers Wednesday counter-attacked and reoccupied part of the city today.

Travellers arriving in Leopoldville from Stanleyville tonight quoted a Belgian officer there as saying "we don't control anything more than a square mile at the centre of the city."

LEOPOLDVILLE (CP)—The U.S. embassy here said today that Congolese rebels were reported to have taken 110 white hostages with them when they fled the town of Paulis after beating 17 whites, including an American missionary, to death Tuesday and Wednesday.

The embassy spokesman said the rebels also massacred the Congolese population as they fled.

Belgian paratroopers dropped into Paulis and rescued an additional 200 hostages at dawn today. Paulis, with a population of more than 5,000, was the largest town still in rebel hands.

There were indications at Leopoldville that another paratrooper drop might be made soon. But observers said there was "nothing official" on this and no indication of where or when the drop would be.

Evacuees also confirmed that 17 whites were beaten to death in Paulis but other unofficial reports said the toll was much higher.

This brought the number of known white "hostages" dead in The Congo during the last four days to 48. 31 of them were killed in Stanleyville when rebels opened fire on them minutes before Belgian paratroops arrived Tuesday.

U.S. embassy officials here identified the dead American as Rev. Joseph Tucker, Springfield, Mo., the Protestant Mission Assembly of God. Mr. Tucker's wife and three children were reported well.

Unofficial reports from the scene of fighting at Paulis said more than 50 whites were killed in savage rebel reprisals. If this is true, the death toll of foreigners since the rescue operation began is more than 81.

The evacuees said the 17 dead in Paulis, 160 miles north of Stanleyville, were among 39 Belgians, an American and an Italian who were confined in a special house a few weeks ago.

The evacuees, who were rescued when Belgian paratroopers dropped on Paulis today, said 10 of the 41 hostages were taken out and beaten to death systematically Tuesday.

It was the same day that Belgian troops carried in American planes attacked the rebel stronghold of Stanleyville and liberated more than 1,000 white hostages there.

Wednesday, another seven were beaten to death in the same way in Paulis.

SAVED BY BELGIANS

The remainder were told they would be next, but they were saved by the paratroops landing this morning.

A U.S. embassy spokesman here said one of the troops was killed and five were wounded, and one white civilian was killed.

At least five, and possibly as many as 20 hostages, were reported wounded.

Seven Americans were believed to have been among the hostages held in the town, 225 air miles north of Stanleyville.

The embassy spokesman said 267 paratroopers dropped on the town at 6 a.m. and reported the area "secured" 30 minutes later.

MANNING PROPOSAL

Another Party Canada's Need?

RED DEER (CP) — Premier Manning said Wednesday a realignment of political strength in Canada is imperative and may require a completely new political party.

"Canada requires a realignment of Canadian strength on the basis of conviction rather than partisanship and expediency and the Social Credit movement is the only existing movement which might be able to bring about this realignment," he said.

"Even this may not be possible. Social Credit is handicapped by years of consistent misrepresentation which has created strong opposition (to the party)."

People who have learned the principles of Social Credit find it difficult to forsake the party to which they have given their allegiance to join the Social Credit movement.

Mr. Manning, in addressing more than 500 persons attending the Alberta Social Credit League annual convention, said: "I don't know if we can overcome the problems. If not, there is no solution other than creating an entirely new political force in Canada."

Mr. Manning said the new party would have to be completely free of ties with existing parties and start anew . . . "exactly what happened in Alberta in 1935."

He warned, however, that "we must be careful to guard against a premature birth (of this party) which would have little hope of survival."

Rebels Retake Vital Airstrip

ELISABETHVILLE (AP) — Congolese rebels Wednesday retook the tin mining town of Punia, 150 miles north of Kindu on the road to Stanleyville, air force sources at the Congo Kamina military base said today.

The airstrip at Punia, 12 miles north of the town, was being used as a forward operation base for Congolese transport and fighter planes supporting troops which had reconquered Stanleyville Tuesday.

Kamina base said the airstrip had been attacked by more than 500 rebels. Forces protecting the airstrip were withdrawn to Kindu.

Aircraft sent to recover valuable radio equipment were unable to land.

The town had been liberated by Leopoldville government forces last week, on their way from Kindu towards Stanleyville.

This is the first setback for Congo Premier Moise Tshombe's troops since they regained Albertville from the rebels weeks ago and continued northward to recapture Kindu.

It confirmed reports from The Congo earlier today that the columns which took Stanleyville have not enough strength to ensure permanent control of conquered points behind them.

ANOTHER WILD AFTERNOON IN COMMONS

Montreal Murder Linked to Bribe Scandal?

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The name of a Monsieur Gignac was dragged mysteriously Wednesday into Conservative party allegations of bribery and corruption in high government places.

And for the third successive day the Commons was in a complete uproar as government and opposition members hurled angry insults across the floor of the House.

Erik Nielsen (PC Yukon), the leader of the Conservative attack on the government, dropped the name of Gignac as he raised the possibility that Immigration Minister Rene Tremblay had not told all he knew about the alleged attempt by his executive assistant to bribe a Montreal lawyer.

A Robert Gignac, 35, of Montreal was charged with capital murder after Aime (Rocky) Brunette, a nightclub waiter, was shot dead in Montreal Sept. 17.

Nielsen said: "I believe the minister knows full well that a certain M. Gignac has been arrested in Montreal on a charge of capital murder and I give the minister this opportunity to explain to the committee, if he will, what connection M. Gignac has with this whole affair."

Tremblay denied having any knowledge of the bribe, but Nielsen's new hints visibly angered the already shaken cabinet ministers and government backbenchers.

In a barrage of interjections they accused Nielsen of Mcarthyism, innuendo and smearing tactics.

Despite repeated calls to order from the deputy speaker, Cashin, whitefaced and waving his arms, shouted that Nielsen was indulging in "Macarthyism and extermism, attack by innunendo.

"He is subverting British justice," he screamed. "Let him make charges."

Justice Minister Guy Favreau also insisted repeatedly throughout the wild afternoon that Nielsen should make specific charges.

"Otherwise," he said, "he is infringing a basic rule of the House besides infringing fairness and any sense of justice."

The furore, described by old-hands on Parliament Hill as easily the worst since the pipeline debate of 1956, occurred during the debate on the spending estimates of Favreau's justice department.

Earlier in the day the government announced there would be a judicial inquiry by Quebec Chief Justice Frederick Dorion into Nielsen's allegations.

The inquiry is designed to elicit facts surounding the alleged attempts by Raymond Denis, former executive assistant to Immigration Minister Tremblay and Guy Lord, former executive assistant to Justice Minister Favreau to influence Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne in his role as counsel for the U.S. government.

Denis is alleged to have offered a $20,000 bribe, and Lord to have used the threat if withdrawal of government patronage unless Lamontagne failed to oppose bail for Rivard.

Guy Rouleau (Lib.-Dollard) who resigned his position of parliamentary secretary to the prime minister Tuesday, is also mentioned in police reports of their investigation and will be involved in the hearing.

NO SPLIT

Despite the tremendous pressure on the government and the tense and angry atmosphere in the Commons, there was no evidence during the debate of any split in government ranks.

Government backbenchers pounded their desks thunderously as the embattled justice minister called upon the opposition to make specific charges.

They shouted "shame" when Nielsen wondered why Prime Minister Pearson was not in the seat at a time of such importance.

Acting prime minister Paul Martin protested throughout the debate that the setting up of the judicial inquiry made discussion of matters within its terms sub judice and therefore undebatable in the House.

"A shocking coverup," shouted Gordon Fairweather (PC-Royal).

"A new kind of closure," claimed Eldon Woolliams (PC-Bow River).

Andrew Brewin (NDP-Toronto Greenwood) described Martin's argument as completely specious.

The debate went on despite Martin's protests as members rose to speak on points of order and points of privilege.

the judge to inquire into allegations about improper inducement having been offered to or improper pressure having been brought to bear on Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne, acting on an extradition application against Lucien Rivard, wanted in the United States on a narcotics charge.

It also calls for investigation of "all relevant circumstances" connected with the case and orders Mr. Justice Dorion "to consider fully" reports to Mr. Favreau by the RCMP and the evidence laid before Mr. Favreau.

The terms give no instructions that Mr. Justice Dorion is to report on the way the RCMP, the department or Mr. Favreau dealt with the case or that the judge investigate the activities of Mr. Denis.

Erik Nielsen (PC-Yukon) has charged in the Commons that Mr. Denis offered a $20,000 bribe to Mr. Lamontagne to go easy in opposing a bail application for Rivard.

He also has said Guy Lord, former executive assistant to Mr. Favreau, threatened to cut off government legal work for Mr. Lamontagne unless the Montreal lawyer complied.

Cabinet was called into session shortly before Mr. Brewin's letter was delivered to Mr. Martin's office.

mando Battalion, were hit by rebel ground fire, but none was disabled.

Three other aircraft later landed at Paulis with additional paratroops and materials.

Some 1,350 hostages have been accounted for but there was no word of Canadians still in rebel territory.

The Canadian embassy in Leopoldville said nine Canadians were unaccounted for. In Ottawa, however, the external affairs department listed seven Canadians missing.

Twenty-four Canadians were rescued in the Stanleyville area, including two families of seven persons each.

CANADIAN KILLED

But Rev. Hector McMillan, 49, of Avonmore, Ont., was killed. His wife and six sons made it to safety although two sons were slightly wounded.

Paulis is the headquarters of a cotton-producing area.

Authoritative sources said the paratroopers went to Paulis strictly on a rescue mission and would leave The Congo afterwards.

CONTINUE MOP-UP

Maj. Mike Hoare, commander of the South African and Rhodesian mercenaries attached to the Congolese Army, was said to have led the Yakusu rescue.

The major's troops also were reported to have rescued 35 Belgians from rebel forces 26 miles from Stanleyville.

Congolese forces Wednesday captured the northern town of Buta and freed 70 whites mostly Belgians, according to reports reaching here.

Meanwhile, aircraft flew in to evacuate 134 Belgians and 10 Americans freed in the town of Aketi, northwest of Stanleyville.

Mop-up operations were being conducted in the Stanleyville area by 650 Katanga gendarmes and 210 white mercenaries who spearheaded the ground drive against Christophe Gbenye's Communist-supported rebels.

TELL OF TERROR

As the new rescue attempt proceeded refugees from Stanleyville arrived in Brussels. They brought the same stories of terror and bloodshed at the hands of the rebels as the first arrivals Wednesday.

King Baudouin and Queen Fabiola of Belgium were at the airport to greet the refugees.

Among the refugees was a nun, Sister Anne Marie Merkens, who told King Baudouin of beatings, rape and forced marches naked in the streets of the city of Basoka in the Stanleyville area.

Baudouin listened grimly.

Rabbi Dress Aided Entry

VANCOUVER (CP)—American Nazi leader George Lincoln Rockwell, banned from entering Canada, said here Wednesday night he crossed into Canada at Windsor, Ont., disguised as a whiskered rabbi and flew here on a scheduled Air Canada flight.

Today, Rockwell was back in the United States after Canadian immigration authorities caught up with him, and, because he was headed back to the U.S. at the time, they let him go.

Rockwell came to Vancouver for a speaking engagement at the University of British Columbia. However, the speech was ordered cancelled at the last minute by John B. Macdonald, the university president.

Minister Appeals

TORONTO (CP)—Rev. Russell D. Horsburgh of Chatham today was granted leave to appeal to the Ontario Appeal Court against his conviction on charges of contributing to juvenile delinquency.

Mr. Justice J. M. King granted leave after a brief hearing in chambers and set bail at $2,500 for the clergyman pending the hearing of the appeal.

Rail Line Out

VANCOUVER (CP)—A landslide early today severed road and rail connections between Vancouver and Squamish, 40 miles north of here. There were no injuries from the slide, which buried 200-foot-long stretches of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway line and the Squamish Highway at Porteau, five miles south of Squamish.

FOR JUVENILE DELINQUENCY

Working Mothers, TV Get Blame

By PETE LOUDON

Increase the minimum driving age to 18, keep working mothers at home and censor television—then you'll kill the roots of juvenile delinquency.

Put all the boys and girls in uniforms and educate them in separate schools.

Their comment was only part of the wave of reaction here after publication Wednesday of a new study of juvenile delinquency. The report came after a year-long study by a committee of the Community Welfare Council of Greater Victoria.

CONCERTED DRIVE

The report pointed up a rapid increase in juvenile offences and called for concerted effort and expenditure by municipal and provincial governments in rehabilitation of delinquents.

The Times today attempted to interview the six legislative representatives from Greater Victoria to ask them what they could do in the B.C. House to improve the situation.

Three MLAs, Herbert Bruch of Esquimalt, Waldo Skillings of Victoria and A. D. Macfarlane of Oak Bay were all out of town. The three members contacted, all from the government side of the House, made these observations:

Mr. Chant was not against greater spending by agencies, but he said, "We can pour the whole provincial budget into the problem but it won't solve it unless the fight begins in the homes."

SMOKE, DRINK

He said parents tell children not to smoke, then they light up. They tell them not to drink, then they pour a drink themselves. These matters can only be improved by the individual parents, he said.

"There are so many mothers working. A mother needs to be home when her children arrive there. He said if you try to load the whole problem on government, family life could cease to exist and a dictatorship ensue.

"Television needs to be cleaned up. Control is up to the federal government. Children see rape and murder. It leaves them immune to wrongdoing."

"Personally I think the province should make some approach to the federal government. A great deal of TV is degrading. But because of economics and the public appetite it is being fed into every home in the country."

TRAFFIC CRIMES

The same basic approach was made by Mr. Tisdalle. He said there must be more responsibility shown in the home. He referred to traffic offences as a communicable disease. Driving licences should not be given to anyone under 18, for a starter, he said.

And on television, "you can't grow a garden unless you weed it. People say you shouldn't have censorship, but this is hogwash." But he thought care should be taken to create an acceptable, qualified censoring body.

Mr. Smith said our children are "victims of our own society." There is not enough discipline in the homes.

"In Russia they get too much discipline and no love. Here we give them lots of love and too little discipline."

He thought there was too little discipline in the schools.

Much of the trouble starts in elementary schools, he said, and at this level he favors . . . "putting them all in uniform and in separate schools for boys and girls."

The changing modes of dress and the economic struggle to keep up with the next student creates complexes for those who can't afford it.

HUE AND CRY

"I have discussed this with the minister of education and I have suggested it in the House." He added, "Of course you'd get an awful hue and cry from the stores and the newspapers which carry the big advertisements."

The proposal for creation of supervised teen-ager clubs and recreation centres was also put forward by Mr. Smith.

In other reaction to the report, C. W. Gorby, provincial consultant on juvenile delinquency, said a great deal more research was indicated now that Greater Victoria had done such an excellent job of producing statistics.

He was interested in the recommendation for placing a psychiatrist or social worker in every elementary school to detect erring yougsters at an early age.

But he pointed out that professional workers are still undecided whether it might be more advantageous to give all teachers a better background of psychology, or perhaps replace counsellors with trained social workers.

Reeve A. C. Wurtele was sorry the report did not place more responsibility on decent home training and he suggested that if names of delinquent youths were made public, this would be a deterrent to wrongdoing.

Deputy superintendent of Motor Vehicles for B.C., Ray Hadfield, gave support to the proposal that all traffic offenders of 15 years and over be dealt with in open, adult court. Oak Bay Reeve Allan Cox also supported this idea.

Greater Victoria School Board chairman Mrs. A. B. Thompson said trustees cannot obtain sufficient trained staff to place a social worker or psychologist in every school. Psychiatrist Dr. A. E. Alcorn asked immediate government attention to the report. Police officials praised the report and hoped it would not now be filed away and forgotten.

ASSESSMENT BATTLE GOES TO HIGH COURT

NANAIMO (CP)—Legal moves have started again in R. E. (Doc) Nicoll's battle for assessment revision.

The Breakwater Island resident said Wednesday he took moves to appeal assessment of property on Gabriola Island to the assessment appeal board. Assessment on this property was recently upheld by court of revision in Nanaimo.

Mr. Nicoll's Vancouver lawyers registered in B.C. Supreme Court application for writ of mandamus and writ of certiorari asking for the court of revision's decision to be quashed, the other that the Supreme Court to order the Nanaimo court to sit again to hear the appeal.

Candidates 'Quizzed' On All Local Issues

Candidates for municipal office in upcoming elections are getting an intensive quizzing by the Association of Women Electors on subjects ranging from semi-metro to recreation.

All candidates in Victoria, Esquimalt, Oak Bay and Saanich are getting questionnaires to be replied to within a week. Purpose is to acquaint all citizens with each candidate's views on current issues.

Information sheets will be given to voters when all forms are returned.

All forms ask opinions on joint services, air pollution, regional parks and beaches, urban transit and school financing.

There are specific questions on local matters.

Victoria candidates are asked about north Blanshard urban renewal plans, what the most urgent recreational needs are and whether there should be a recreation commission and full-time director.

Saanich aspirants are asked about hiring a municipal manager, recreation commission and how citizen groups might help develop recreation centres.

In Oak Bay, many questions are about apartment and single family residence zoning: Should more weight be given professional planning, and is more commercial zoning needed in Oak Bay?

What are the views on apartment use of undeveloped land in University of Victoria Lansdowne endowment lands?

Is it possible to rezone residential areas to strict single family use, as in Uplands?

In Esquimalt, candidates are asked if they approve the cost arrangements for a municipal swimming pool, whether tax money should ever be spent in Greater Victoria, and what is Esquimalt's responsibility as part of Greater Victoria.

U.K. Pound in Sharp Rally After Big Rescue Project

By GEOFFREY WHITEHEAD

LONDON (Reuters) — The pound sterling made a sharp rally here today after a $3,000,000,000 overnight rescue plan by 11 nations finally removed fears that the world currency might be devalued.

By closing time the price on the London foreign exchange soared to a new high for the day—$2.79 7/32 U.S., a gain of 19/32 over the price at closing Wednesday and the pound's highest level since last July 11.

Shares on the stock exchange followed sterling—first showing a big jump, and then cutting back to more moderate gains.

But by mid-day one market index was showing a lead of 5½ points on the day's trading.

Political observers said a clear indication from government quarters today that no "credit squeeze" on the domestic economy is expected may remove further fears from businessmen.

Treasury Chief James Callaghan was believed to have reviewed the impact of the 11-nation aid plan at a full cabinet meeting this morning.

SOME FINGERS BURNED

The boost to the pound—under heavy selling pressure during the last few days—meant that speculators who have been selling on the assumption that Britain would be forced into devaluation have burned their fingers.

One dealer said conditions were "quite hectic," with all European currencies showing sharp moves in favor of the pound.

Gold share prices—which rose Wednesday in face of uncertainty over the pound—showed losses ranging to five shillings today.

Details of the 11-nation loan—believed to be biggest operation of this type—were to be given to the House of Commons today by Callaghan.

He was expected to announce that the international help has been made "without strings," and that the Labor government will not have to give any undertakings either about its domestic policies or about its legislative program.

But observers said it was clear that the government will now have to announce early action to change the emphasis of Britain's productivity and divert more from home consumption to exports.

The sale of sterling was halted in Paris today following the massive support measures, French bankers reported.

French foreign exchange dealers said business was limited as the market was "shaken" by the sudden international monetary solidarity.

Amsterdam reported sterling firmed slightly following the overnight news of international support.

Financial sources in Brussels said early dealings were limited with traders showing hesitation, but sterling was marked up slightly.

Announcement of the massive international help was made by the Bank of England.

The 11 central banks were those of Austria, Belgium, Canada, France, Italy, Japan, The Netherlands, Sweden, Switzerland, West Germany and the United States.

Two specialized banks — the Bank for International Settlement at Basel, Switzerland, and the Export-Import Bank of the United States—also took part in the loan to steady the pound.

Britain's new Labor government already has a stand-by credit of $1,000,000,000 with the International Monetary Fund.

The International Bank of Settlement at Basel is composed of the central banks of 26 countries, with the aim of providing facilities for international financing operations.

USUALLY WORTH $2.80

The other world major currency is the U.S. dollar. Against the U.S. dollar, the pound is usually worth about $2.80.

The United States put up $1,000,000,000 of the support and Canada's share was $200,000,000.

The support operation was the main headline in British national newspapers today.

The Daily Mail summed it up neatly in seven words: "The pound is safe. Devaluation is dead." But the newspaper's main headline said: "Pound safe—at a price."

The Times described the aid for the pound as "by far the biggest single rescue operation organized in defence of a single currency."

The comparable action, so far as Britain was concerned, was the Canadian and United States help given to Britain immediately after the Second World War, The Times said.

It pointed out, however, that the purpose of that aid was to put Britain on its feet financially after the war and "not to meet a currency crisis of the present character."

With Full Deliberation

THREE CONTROVERSIAL matters exercising Parliament at this session are the flag, the national pension plan and the legislation for amending the constitution. All three have in common the facts that, once decided, they will affect the country for many years to come; that they should be decided in an atmosphere divorced from partisan politics, and that they have not so far enjoyed such an atmosphere.

The flag issue stirs very deep felings in many Canadians and thereby takes on an importance with which it might not otherwise be charged. The pension plan, designed to guarantee old-age financial security for almost all the population, and establishing an irrevocable system of costs, payments and funds which will profoundly affect the Canadian economy, obviously is one of the most important measures which Parliament has considered. And the constitution, similarly, will by its contents and the means provided for their amendment, chart the course of Confederation for generations to come.

The flag question appears to be on the way to settlement, and while there cannot be public unanimity on any choice, time and continuing familiarity will no doubt erase criticisms which are active in these first days of change. It is otherwise, however, with the pension plan and the constitution. For these will concern the country's economic and political future far more than the design of a national emblem: mistakes made now and installed in the fabric of either must inevitably have their repercussions in days to come. And the effects of any such errors could be devastating.

This is why the federal government should approach these two great issues with caution and a determination to overlook no means that will result in the best possible legislation. There is no need to hurry such law-making if haste will nullify or detract from wisdom; there should be no fear of loss of prestige if worthy suggestions from non-government sources are incorporated in the legislation. And in this connection the opposition parties should approach the task with a full recognition of its lasting importance and with no inclination to take the easy way and make partisan capital out of controversial aspects.

The examination of the pension plan now under way by Parliament should have the benefit of all the expert advice available, so that the program will be the best possible from every standpoint — the benefits, the burden of contributory payments, the social implications and the effects of the vast sums of capital which will be accumulated. This can be no small task and it certainly is no small responsibility.

The constitutional issue should be given equally careful scrutiny, for involved in the amending provisions is the vital and historic Canadian problem of a proper balance of powers and responsibilities between the central, federal government on the one hand and the decentralizing influences of the ten provincial authorities on the other. Canada needs a wise blending of both.

In a country so large and diverse, adequate power must reside in the provinces to deal with their regional problems in ways best suited to their peculiar circumstances. But by the same token, there must be an adequate central government to pull these diverse interests into a federal unity, otherwise we cannot exist as a nation.

One important feature of the currently proposed constitutional legislation would make it possible for the federal government to delegate certain of its powers to provincial authorities, and vice versa, without resort to parliamentary amendment or to the courts. It is not difficult to see where this could lead if a few strong provincial governments were to combine to force Ottawa's hand. Confederation could be seriously impaired, perhaps even destroyed, were the means to such destruction incorporated in the constitution. Surely our national unity must be guaranteed against any foreseen and unforeseen developments in the future by ensuring that powers essential to the maintenance of nationhood shall not be whittled or denied.

For these reasons it is necessary that we enter into these new and vital commitments unhurriedly and with the advantage of full knowledge and considered judgment — doubly necessary in view of the turbulent and unstable political climate which is now our lot.

Rescue Operation

THERE WILL BE GENERAL relief that nearly 1,500 of the white persons held by Congo rebel forces have been rescued by the armed intervention of Belgian paratroopers and a column of mercenary troops. Several hundred other hostages are being sought in the jungles near Stanleyville, including a number of Canadians.

There seems little doubt that this military operation was necessary. Law enforcement had broken down in the Stanleyville area, and the rebel leadership inspired no confidence that it was disposed, or able, to guarantee the lives of the hostages. This was a state of jungle law and required desperate measures if the lives were to be saved. The military operation was carried out with the agreement of Congolese Premier Tshombe and his government.

The latter point completely refutes the Soviet charge that the move constituted a "new gross act of armed intervention in the internal affairs of The Congo." The Russians claim that the foreign troops were employed merely to crush the "national liberation movement" of the rebels. That may be accepted by the Soviet people, who were not told by their news agencies of the murder of many of the white hostages. But it can have no foreign recognition except as propaganda of the most twisted kind.

The senseless nature of the whole situation, for foreigners, is that the victims of the rebels' harshness are almost entirely local residents of long standing engaged in the commerce of the city; or missionaries, teachers and medical people whose only purpose over the years has been to help the unfortunate people of the jungle tribes.

The problems of The Congo will still be far from settled, even when the current uprising has been overcome. The country, and the world, have been given a terrible demonstration over the past few years of the chaos that can result from the sudden acquisition of political independence without the education necessary to operate it. That, of course, is no argument against independence for underdeveloped countries; it is an argument in favor of preparing such peoples to benefit from their freedom.

An Artist Passes

TWO OR THREE GENERATIONS ago the hand-knit Cowichan Indian sweater was a product with little more than local reputation.

Made of raw wool containing natural oils, and worked to a pattern whose measurements were decided by knots in a length of string, it was early recognized as one of the best protections against wet and cold available to the outdoorsman of this part of the world.

The craft attained high artistry in the skilled and experienced hands of Amelia Delphinia Charlie. Her work reached such a high standard that sweaters from her needles became the outstanding gift to visiting notables from hosts here who wished to bestow on their guests a present of distinction.

Now Amelia Delphinia Charlie is gone, and the Cowichan region, as well as Vancouver Island, has occasion to mourn the passing of an important native artist in a specialized craft.

Invitations to Disaster

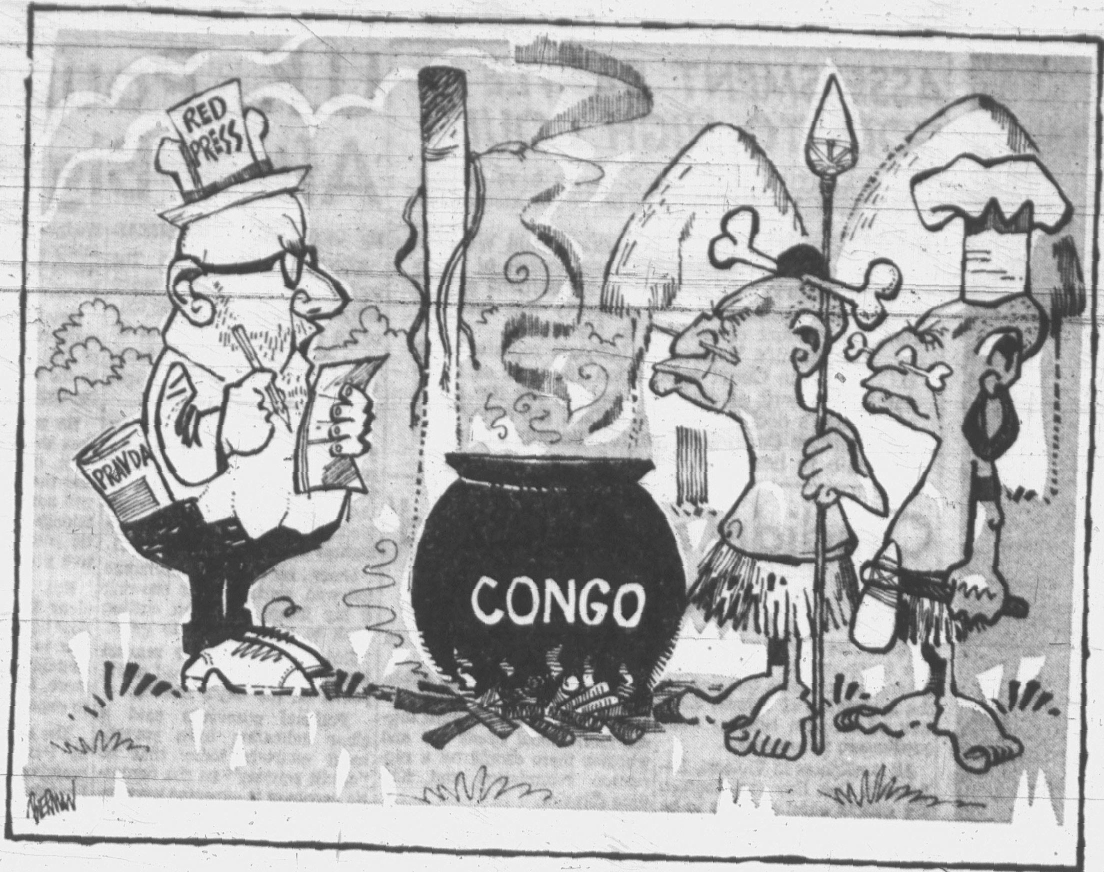
PORT ALBERNI AUTHORITIES, alarmed by the number of people seriously, sometimes critically, injured in accidents involving motorcycles, have asked for an addition to the Motor Vehicle Act which will make mandatory the wearing of crash helmets by riders.

This may be a partial solution to a growing problem aggravated by increased motor-bike traffic that has sprung up with the advent of the low-priced, light, imported machine. But at best it can be only a partial solution.

The point which needs to be hammered home, particularly to young people who are buying such scooters, is that they must exercise special caution while driving since, when they become involved in an accident, there is little protection given to them by the machine itself. On impact, without benefit of any buffer, they can be slammed to the ground or struck by another vehicle.

The small motor bike has a place in transportation. But unless those who use them learn to take adequate care, particularly when driving on high speed highways, their use can be an invitation to disaster.



"... In other words ... those imperialists had the gall to barge in and snatch your supper right out of the pot ... ?"

—Bierman, Victoria Daily Times.

Has China the Punch for Intervention?

Alsop

BEFORE the U.S. government reaches new decisions about Southeast Asia, the present stage of the row between Moscow and Peking is bound to be carefully weighed. What has to be decided is whether to take stern action against North Viet Nam, in order to avert a final failure in South Viet Nam. And as a practical matter, the chief risk of stern action against the North Vietnamese Communists is the risk that the Chinese Communists or the Soviets will thereby be provoked to intervene.

Or Upside-Down

Hence, it is all the more interesting that the foregoing propositions are seen to be almost equally true, if you stand them on their heads. In brief, the risk of stern U.S. action against the North Vietnamese has undoubtedly played a major role in the present stage of the row between Moscow and Peking.

Where this row now stands was luridly revealed last week by a violent and unyielding Chinese statement once again insisting on Moscow's abject surrender on every point that has ever been in dispute between the Chinese and Soviet Communist parties.

There was no direct name-calling in the new Chinese statement, but between the lines it was nonetheless easy to read the bitter news that Chou En-lai brought back from his recent visit to Moscow. The details of the Chinese premier's report after Moscow are, of course, unknown. But it can be taken for granted that Chou raised the problems of Southeast Asia with the Soviet leaders and got a most unsatisfactory Soviet response.

These inferences are, in fact, unavoidable. On the one hand, any sane Sino-Soviet agenda would now begin with the question, "What do we do if the United States finally takes action against the North Vietnamese?" On the other hand, their national interests dictate very different Chinese and Soviet answers to this question.

For both the Chinese and the Soviets, it must be understood, the final defeat of U.S. policy in Southeast Asia—if President Lyndon Johnson permits such a defeat—will mainly be a gigantic victory for Peking.

The seeming-victors, to be sure, will be the North Vietnamese. But Viet Nam is an ancient Chinese dependency. The Chinese Communists make no bones about their claim to rule every inch of territory that the old Chinese empire ever ruled. And if Southeast Asia is no longer defended by American power, the old claim to Viet Nam will soon be asserted, and Chinese power will be used to back the claim.

The lesson to study here, is Chinese policy in Tibet, which is being ruthlessly transformed into a truly Chinese province of China by massacres of the native Tibetans and by mass exportations of Chinese colonists.

Anticipated Exploitation

Viet Nam and the other Southeast Asia nations are too populous to be treated in quite the same way as Tibet. Yet the ruthless Chinese exploitation of Southeast Asia's resources, including settlement of Chinese on empty land, must clearly be expected. In this manner, furthermore, the Chinese Communists will gain what they now lack—the margin of resources needed to transform China into a military-industrial great power.

Such is the long-run prospect after a final American defeat in Southeast Asia. For Peking, of course, this prospect must be remarkably exhilarating. But for Moscow, ironically enough, the prospect must be almost as hideous as it is for Washington.

Show of Sympathy

Because of the ideology, or perhaps one should say Communist superstition, Moscow naturally has to appear to sympathize with the North Vietnamese. But Soviet interests will certainly not be served if a North Vietnamese victory is, in fact, going to be a gigantic Chinese triumph, permitting the construction of a true great-power-China. And in this direct conflict between ideology and interest, the Soviet leaders are evidently putting interest first, if one may judge by the outcome of Chou's mission to Moscow.

In the light of that outcome, the odds against effective Soviet intervention in a Southeast Asian crisis have certainly lengthened very importantly. If President Johnson takes the stern action that is now being considered, he must, of course, expect strong language from the Soviets. But he can justifiably hope (although he can never be absolutely sure) that there will be no strong deeds to match the words.

Chinese intervention is another matter. If the Chinese had modern planes or any other modern weapons, their intervention would surely have to be expected. But Moscow cut off Peking's arms supply in 1959. If Moscow and Peking were unable to concert their policies in preparation for a Southeast Asian crisis, as now seems plain, Peking cannot expect to get the needed arms from Moscow.

Hence, the odds have lengthened against effective Chinese intervention. The risks the President must face are still very heavy, but they are less heavy than they might have been.

By MARK FRANKLAND

Not Exactly 'Kiss-and-Make-Up'

THE cool departure from Moscow of the Chinese Premier Chou En-lai has confirmed the feeling among observers here that an improvement in Sino-Soviet relations is only in its very early stages.

The Russians were in the first place surprised to find that the Chinese delegation to the November 7 celebrations was to be led by such an important man as Chou. And the way Chou behaved during his week-long stay in the Soviet capital was certainly not calculated to charm his hosts. Whenever he appeared in public he seemed to be sitting in judgment on the new Soviet leaders, carefully not clapping whenever anyone said something repugnant to his way of thinking—which was often.

It is clear that the Russians have done only two things to please the Chinese: they have removed Mr. Khrushchev, a veritable devil in Chinese eyes, and they have stopped the mud-slinging campaign which he began, and which had almost got out of hand. But the policies of the new leaders, as stated so far, are no more acceptable to Peking than were Khrushchev's, because they are the same policies.

Qualified Forecasts

Of course, the Soviet political scene is still unsettled. It will take some months before we can see properly what changes the fall of Khrushchev must mean, both in terms of men and measures. Until then forecasts about Sino-Soviet affairs must be of a qualified sort. But, seen from Moscow, there are certain permanent factors in Sino-Soviet relations which it is useful to spell out.

It has been suggested that Khrushchev took the quarrel with China into a dangerous new phase by admitting that inter-state, as well as inter-party relations were in a bad way. But it should be clear to anyone that Moscow's party relations with China must always be affected by the simple fact that both are vast countries, with the feeling common to such countries that they have a right to spheres of influence, and that—because they are neighbors as well as great Communist Powers—these spheres overlap.

In the first place, they compete as Communist Powers. It is currently said in the world Communist community that all its members are equal, but this, of course, is as much a fiction as the equality of the Western alliance.

But while the United States—as long as Europe does not present a united front towards her—easily dominates the West, the Russians have already been successfully challenged by the Chinese. The world Communist community is now dominated by its two great members, and this is a situation which cannot encourage harmony.

Secondly, Russia has to take into account the simple facts of having a giant as its neighbor. There is every reason to believe that the Soviet military authorities react to this fact, just as their counterparts would do in any other part of the world.

In 1957, when he was still prime minister, Marshal Bulganin discussed the subject of disarmament with a West European ambassador in Moscow. The ambassador urged the Soviet leader to take an initiative in disarming, which he assured him would then be followed by the West.

The marshal replied that there would always be definite limits to the degree of disarmament that could be tolerated by the Soviet Union—"because we have 600 million Chinese on our border."

If some non-Communist diplomats in Moscow are to be believed, Soviet military leaders have a far more lucid understanding of this problem than the politicians. This would be only natural; it is the soldier's business to think of such things without letting politics cloud his judgment. The history of Soviet military aid to India is an illustration of this. As one well-informed diplomat put it: "The Soviets did not let the Indians have their latest weapons just because they loved them." The same diplomat added that the Soviet military authorities have continued to urge India to buy more equipment—particularly for the navy—even after the fall of Khrushchev.

It is likely that Soviet politicians do not look on the problem in such a matter-of-fact way. They must move in a world where compromises and public statements soften unpleasant facts. Khrushchev, latterly, failed to remember this, but it is just what the new Soviet leaders are remembering now. But that is no reason for them, or us, to forget the unpleasant facts.

A Little Irritating

I am writing at this time to add my congratulations to Lieut. Tudor Jones and members of the HMCS Naden band for their splendid performance at the sixth annual concert in aid of the Armed Services Centre.

I have only one criticism and that is of a member of the audience. Someone, not too far from where I was sitting, had a camera and took pictures constantly throughout the concert.

I could understand one or two pictures during the evening, if this kind of thing is absolutely necessary for their scrapbook, but as many as three pictures during one number seems a little too much. In a darkened theatre, the flash of a camera is most distracting and I feel it extremely selfish and inconsiderate, not only to the rest of the audience, but also to the performers.

If everyone decided to take pictures at any concert, why not a home movie outfit complete with light bar! I am sure that our local newspaper photographers and the navy publicity department can provide all necessary pictures without participation from the audience.

CRITICAL.

The Same Here

Veterans in Victoria will surely endorse the protest made by veterans in Winnipeg against the importation of German soldiers, with their war equipment, to train in Camp Shilo, Manitoba. It is to be hoped that they will also take the Winnipeg advice to forward their individual protests direct to the Hon. Paul T. Hellyer, minister of national defence in Ottawa.

Notre Dame Status

I understood it was the policy of newspapers to print facts as a matter of course.

Therefore, I am confused by reading on one page about the fund drive to raise money for B.C.'s three universities, UBC, Uvic and Simon Fraser, and on another page that Notre Dame University in Nelson has been granted provincial recognition of its graduates in teaching, having reached university status in 1963.

Also in a report on the commission investigating student costs across Canada, mention is again made of B.C.'s three universities.

If the facts are printed, should not these refer to the three government-supported universities in B.C.? If I am wrong, I stand corrected; if the paper has been in the wrong in the past, I trust they will print the facts in the future.

McPherson Theatre Bookings

The report in the weekend press that we must wait until the end of December for a decision from the city and that we may lose the Smile Show to the Okanagan next summer, will sound strange to the local tourist trade and to patrons who look forward to this annual entertainment.

Those of us who were associated with Gerry Gosley's early efforts in forming the wartime Smile Show at Patricia Bay some 22 years ago, will be the first to record a wish for its retention here; realizing, as we do, that the opening of the McPherson Theatre will give an opportunity to Gosley and his gifted artistes.

It is also understandable that other producers will want to share the limelight of the newly-reconstructed theatre in its reopening season but surely some consideration should be given to this well-established and widely known Victoria entertainment, with an early settlement as to dates and length of booking.

Dressing the War Doll

Noting the recent story in your paper in which a Toronto war toy manufacturer, Milton Bloom, is reported as saying that boys who play at war probably won't become homosexuals, and suggesting further that war toys are necessary to get rid of pent-up hostilities, I believe that your readers may be interested in knowing something of the nature of the war toys currently under criticism from our organization, certain churchmen, PTAs and many others.

Bloom is reported as stating that boys whose war toys were taken away from them could later develop "certain female tendencies, sexual inhibitions and even homosexuality." In the light of these interesting suggestions, I think we should examine 1964's leading war toy. This number is "G.I. Joe"—a doll for boys! Counterpart of Barbie Doll for girls, this is a male figure, a foot high, that the boy can dress and undress—using a variety of U.S. uniforms, army, navy, marine and air corps. In addition to virile Joe's trousseau, he has, of course, all the military accoutrement—grenades, army manual, fox-hole kits, in all, about $50 worth per doll if one is to satisfy the demand that a $2,000,000 promotional budget hopes to create.

How could this sort of doll play (with the collecting of clothes and equipment) —so long the preoccupation of the female child—possibly save the boy from developing those "certain female tendencies" of which Mr. Bloom is so apprehensive?

Of course, the majority of war toys are not dolls. For the most part they are faithful replicas of modern weaponry—weapons of guerrilla warfare and of mass destruction.

An examination of these toys will show that most of them offer very little outlet for a boy's energies and leave very little indeed to his imagination. These "realistic" toys are mostly of the "push-button" variety, battery or spring-operated, and I think anyone who analyzes them would agree that they do little to develop a boy's "manly" qualities compared to such activities as hockey, baseball, swimming, etc., or to develop his skills, creativity and intelligence compared to construction sets, carpentry tools, microscopes, chemistry sets, etc.

Mr. Bloom, however, feels that these toys are teaching the boy what the world is really like. We on the other hand contend that they give him an utterly false impression of what nuclear war would really be like, with wholesale annihilation on both sides. Realistic as the instrumens themselves may be, there is implicit in all the current war toys and games the idea that war is safe—war is fun—it's the "other guy" that gets killed as omnipotent, invulnerable junior pushes the button.

BETWEEN OURSELVES

By Elizabeth Forbes

Last week the ground floor of a brick building at 1119 Vancouver Street, near Fort, was taken over by 33 disabled persons, ranging in age from 16 to 70, as a craft and hobby centre.

Ten of them are in wheel-chairs. All are badly handicapped. They can only sit or stand in the same position for short periods and they can only concentrate on their various hobbies for as little as a half-hour at a time.

Working together, they have developed amazing skills in making handicrafts and, at the same time, have found new interests and new friendships.

It all started over two years ago, when Mrs. Alan G. Sutton, a volunteer assistant at swim classes for crippled children in HMCS Naden pool, realized that disabled persons needed something more than exercise.

She invited four whom she knew as friends to meet in the rumpus room of her Currie Road home in Oak Bay for instruction in weaving.

These meetings instantly became popular. Other handicapped persons wanted to be included. Soon it was necessary to find larger quarters.

Oak Bay Girl Guides offered their hall. Victoria Handweavers' Guild loaned looms. Their members also gave instruction in weaving. Other volunteer helpers were enlisted and the Handicapped Crafts Club was launched.

Sixteen men and women were in that first group. They came from all parts of the city, from Prospect Lake, Royal Oak, and even Metchosin when transportation was available.

More disabled persons with the stamina for only half an hour's work at a time heard of the club. They wanted to join.

By the end of the first year Mrs. Sutton knew that if she was not to disappoint them, she must find means of financing the venture in a better way than with the few volunteer donations that came in.

★ ★ ★

She told her story to the local branch of the Polio Foundation and it offered, as a pilot project, to underwrite rent and current expenses to an amount of $1,500 for one year.

With this gift Mrs. Sutton rented a larger room on the ground floor of a building on Esquimalt Road, near Lampson Street.

The little group moved again.

Basketry, weaving, toymaking, rug hooking and carpentry were established as main crafts.

The handicapped workers were beginning to turn out articles that could be sold, so a standards committee was formed.

Name of the club was changed to Arbutus Crafts.

During this period, an English-trained occupational therapist, Mrs. Lyndeth Davies, offered to give volunteers some instruction in crafts work so they would be better able to supervise and help the handicapped.

★ ★ ★

A seven-member managerial committee was also formed with representatives from the disabled workers, original organizers, polio foundations and the B.C. Society for Crippled Children.

The group expanded to a record 30 or more handicapped and once more it became necessary to find larger quarters.

Again the Polio Foundation made this possible when it decided to repeat its grant for a second year and to double the amount.

Mrs. Sutton located the brick building on Vancouver Street and a third move was successfully completed.

Now there is plenty of space to expand. When alterations are completed there will be rooms for weaving, rug and toymaking, for basketry, woodworking and carpentry, and for a new project, the stretching of canvas on frames for an art school upstairs in the same building.

There will also be a varnish room and a small kitchen to provide for coffee and tea breaks.

The new grant has made it possible to employ Mrs. G. L. Brownlee, a former volunteer, as a permanent supervisor and Mrs. Davies as a consultant therapist, once a week, both at very nominal fees.

The centre is open every Monday to Friday from 1 to 4 p.m. You are welcome to drop in anytime and see the work that is being done there.

Many things are still needed to make this old building livable but there is little or no money for these extras.

They include more lights and fixtures, more woodworking tools and clamps, a steel mitre box, a saw and a chip carrier.

Gerald Waring ... REPORTING

OTTAWA—It is a curious anomaly that both Conservatives and Liberals are plagued by leadership troubles at the same time.

The Tory party's problem is the more obvious. The party is deeply split between those who are satisfied with John Diefenbaker, and those who want a new leader.

The Grits' problem is dissatisfaction with the strength and forcefulness of the leadership provided by Lester Pearson. There is no audible agitation for a new leader, but there is an undercurrent of doubt.

The Tory schism is visible to all: Diefenbaker has lost control of his Quebec MPs, and probably cannot command the unswerving loyalty of more than half of his English-speaking MPs. Among the Grit MPs, however, there are only one or two dissidents like Ralph Cowan, the anti-French MP for York-Humber, Ont., who would prefer another leader. The rest are solidly for Pearson. Some may have misgivings over certain policies—for example, the flag and the Quebec policy—but the concern is not sufficient to undermine their loyalty. It is outside the Liberal caucus, out in the country, that doubts about the Pearson leadership mainly take root.

★ ★ ★

"If there were an election soon," a former Quebec Tory minister told me the other day, "I probably wouldn't run. Of if I did, it would be as an Independent Conservative. I can't run under the present program."

What he meant is that he couldn't hope to win his Quebec riding as a Diefenbaker candidate.

"John Diefenbaker," a Tory MP from Manitoba told me recently, "is the greatest Canadian who ever lived. Dangers he foresaw years ago are coming to pass under the present government. Another five years of Liberal rule and there won't be any more Canada."

Between Diefenbaker's idolatrous Prairie MPs and his rebellious Quebecers lies the main body of Tory opinion. It is willing to have Diefenbaker lead in another election. It is not convinced that the aging chief's ouster now in favor of Davie Fulton, much less Robarts, Stanfield or Roblin, would be the passport back to power. Nor, indeed, are these gentlemen. They seem content to have the onus of another defeat fall on Diefenbaker, while keeping their names to the fore as prospective white hopes after that defeat.

None of this unduly disturbs Mr. Diefenbaker. He expects to win.

Mr. Pearson's image is not that of dynamic leader figure—at least partly because his lack of a majority makes it impossible for him to command Parliament. Parliament has kicked around his flag and pension proposals mercilessly, and will do the same with his constitutional amendment proposals. So the government needs time to work out solutions through compromise, in the hope that eventually it will have a solid record of achievement to put before the people as a reason for its re-election.

Mr. Pearson's leadership is the leadership of discussion, accommodation and compromise, of pushing here, drawing back there, and eventually arriving at solutions with which all concerned can live. As this kind of "weak" leadership bears fruit, Mr. Pearson's public stature will grow and current dissatisfaction will subside.

'First Class' Says Campbell Of Amalgamation

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell, Monday, said the residents of Squamish, Mamquam and Brackendale made a "first class" decision in approving amalgamation.

He received a telegram saying the three municipal districts had voted in favor of combining to make an entirely new municipal unit by a vote of 454 to 123.

Squamish is a village now and the other two are improvement districts.

"This is the first time a village and improvement districts have set up the basis for merger," he said. "I'm glad to see they made the right decision. They will form an entirely new municipal unit now."

Bicultural Probe Sets Interim Report

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — The royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism, well removed from the public eye for the last five months, is expected to burst on the scene early next year with a bulky report on Canada's cultural fabric.

The 10 commissioners meet here Dec. 14 to 16 to work on the final draft of their interim report, which they hope to submit to the government in January or February—in both English and French of course.

The report will distill and analyze a mountain of facts, figures, proposals and views that the commission has gathered since it was appointed in July, 1963. The inquiry has assumed such proportions that the final report is not expected until 1967.

The interim report will not contain recommendations, but may draw some conclusions on English - French relations and the problems of all cultural minorities, from Indians to immigrants.

A commission spokesman said Wednesday that the commissioners have not reached a final decision whether to submit a formal report to the government in 1965.

ESCAPE GLARE

There have been some suggestions that the commission might transmit some of its findings to the government on a confidential basis, staying out of the glare of publicity until the final report is handed down.

Political sources say, however, that Prime Minister Pearson is anxious to get an early and public report from the commission. He said in the Commons Oct. 19 that the government hoped to receive an interim report "in a few weeks."

While the preparation of the report continues, commissioners are holding a series of private meetings in Montreal and Toronto with groups that have remained silent so far in the English-French "dialogue."

Tentative plans are being made for public hearings in all 10 provinces starting shortly after the interim report is disposed of.

Already 290 briefs have poured in from organizations and individuals who want to appear at the hearings. Commission officials expect to receive another 85 to 90 briefs in the next few weeks.

50 RESEARCHERS

The commission's full-time research staff has grown to more than 50, and many university professors have been assigned to other research studies on a contract basis.

Research director Michael Oliver toured Europe for 10 days last month, assigning contract research projects to agencies in France, Belgium and Switzerland. These will be comparative studies of bilingual practices in the public service and language instruction in schools.

The commission research department earlier gathered considerable published material on bilingual practices in continental Europe, Wales and other areas. Close to 50 research projects are under way in Canada.

The inquiry has cost a total of about $800,000 so far and expenses are expected to go up substantially when the public hearings are held next year. The commission now has a staff of about 95, including administrators and clerical assistants.

The commissioners, who have visited Indian reserves and toured the eastern Arctic to study Eskimo problems, plan to visit military bases and government offices in various parts of the country over the next two months.

'Instant Town' Gets Two New Schools

Education Minister Leslie Peterson Tuesday was to open a junior high school for 360 pupils in Hudson Hope—one of B.C.'s "instant towns" in the north.

The school, built in a community that had only a handful of residents before the Peace River dam project began, cost $500,000.

Mr. Peterson also was to open another junior secondary school in Fort St. John.

He said Wednesday the two schools bring the total of new classrooms built in the province so far this year to 596.

"To date more than $20,000,000 has been invested in new public school facilities since January, he said.

Mining Firms Argue

TORONTO (CP) — McWatters Gold Mines Ltd. and Quebec Manitou Mines Ltd., two of the heaviest-traded issues in the current speculative boom on the Toronto stock market, are involved in a dispute regarding the status of an agreement between the two companies and a property in Langmuir Township near Timmins, Ont.

Shares of McWatters soared from a low of 31½ cents to a high of $2 on the Toronto exchange and are currently trading around $1.50.

The move came on news that McWatters had encountered nickel showings on the property near Timmins.

Quebec Manitou shares moved from around 20 cents to a high of 80 cents and are now selling for about 50 cents.

This move came on reports that the company had a 50 per cent interest in the property in Langmuir Township.

The Toronto Stock Exchange said: "In view of the apparent confusion . . . the exchange has requested and received statements from both companies."

Second Writ Over Timmins Metal Strike

TORONTO (CP)—A writ has been issued in Ontario Supreme Court against Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. Leitch Gold Mines Ltd. and Mastedon - Highland Bell Mines Ltd., disputing any rights they claim to the $2,000,000,000 base metal strike located by Texas Gulf near Timmons.

The writ was sought by Royal Trust Co., acting for the estate of Murray Hendrie of Hamilton.

The writ is the second filed over the rich zinc-copper-silver find, rated one of the biggest strikes ever made in Canada."

Consumers May Construct Own Pipe Line

TORONTO (CP) — Oakah Jones, president of Consumers' Gas Company, has indicated his company has had talks with Western producers with an aim to expanding its source of supply.

"Of course we are interested in additional sources of gas supply. We have been studying our sources and potential markets for years," he said.

Mr. Jones was commenting on a published report that his company is heading a $200,000,000 move to expand into the pipeline business.

If such a bid were successful, Consumers' Gas would then be putting itself into competition with its present supplier, Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Limited.

Advertising Agencies Merge

LONDON (Reuters) — Mather and Crowther, which claims to be the third or fourth largest advertising agency in Britain, and Ogilvy, Benson and Mather, the 20th in size in the U.S., have merged.

The British firm has a turnover of £18,000,000 ($50,000,000) a year, and the U.S. firm $78,000,000.

David Ogilvy, 53, a former door-to-door salesman who started the U.S. agency in 1948 with a capital of $5,600, will become chairman.

Simpsons-Sears Plans New Store

Exports Score Highest Level

OTTAWA (CP) — Domestic exports from Canada to all countries in the third quarter this year totalled $2,471,900,000 — the highest level ever recorded for a quarter and an increase of 26.1 per cent over the same quarter in 1963, the bureau of statistics reported today.

The figures mark an upward trend which has lasted, with minor contractions, for the last three years. The rate of increase has accelerated in recent months and domestic exports in September were valued at $725,406,000, an advance of 23.6 per cent from the September 1963 figure of $586,890,000.

Exports rose substantially during this year's third quarter to the majority of leading countries of destination. The increase in trade appeared chiefly due to the added volume of goods moved, for which the average index advanced by nearly 24 per cent above that for July-September, 1963, while the average level of export prices rose by less than two per cent.

RECORD TOTAL

During the first nine months domestic exports amounted to $6,005,600,000, thus establishing a record total in Canadian shipments for the first nine months of any year and a gain of 23.5 per cent over exports for January-September, 1963.

Exports to the United States rose in value by one-eighth, those both in United Kingdom and to other Commonwealth and preferential-rate countries by more than one-fifth, and to the group of other countries by over one-half.

In the industrials, B.C. Forest Products dropped one-quarter $33.75.

Prices at London scored substantial gains today in initial response to the massive moves to buttress sterling.

The New York market was closed today for U.S. Thanksgiving Day.

AT TORONTO Consolidated led papers with a gain of 1⅛ to 41. Price tacked on ½ to 42. B.C. Forest Products ⅜ to 29⅜ and Abitibi ¼ to 23⅝. CPR jumped 1¾ to 54, Imperial Bank of Commerce 1⅛ to 68¾. Stelco ⅞ to 25⅞ and Dominion Stores ⅝ to 23½.

Speculative issues were moderately active. Windfall, the favorite of gamblers in the Timmins copper rush earlier this year when its price went as high as $5.60, climbed 4½ cents to 38 cents.

In base metals, Leitch fell 60 cents to $4.80 and Highland Bell 50 cents to $8. Hudson Bay led seniors with a gain of ½ to 71½.

Home A was up ¾ to 18¾ in Western oils.

AT MONTREAL stocks continued higher in moderate trade today. Speculative mines were also stronger.

Turnover in industrials was 118,300 shares and mines and oils volume stood at 362,800 shares.

AT LONDON widespread rises were recorded in industrials. With the pressure off sterling, golds, continental and dollar stocks fell back.

In Canadians, falls of a point or more were recorded by Algoma, Nickel, Sage, Consolidated Mining and Massey-Ferguson. Canadian Pacific was a firm exception while Hudson's Bay was strong.

The dollar premium fell to 11⅜ per cent nominal initially but later recovered to 125/16 per cent.

U.K. Firm Sale Rumors Denied

LONDON (CP) — Sir Roy Dobson, chairman of the giant Hawker-Siddeley aircraft group, denied rumors this week that the group is planning to sell off its Canadian interests.

"We are not negotiating with anyone," Sir Roy said.

The Sunday newspaper, The Observer, reports that Hawker-Siddeley is believed to be having talks that could result in the sale of "a big chunk, if not all, of its large Canadian assets."

The newspaper says the deal is complicated by political problems and the question of valuing the Canadian holdings.

A company spokesman said the rumor may have something to do with the pressure put on Hawker-Siddeley a few months ago by the Quebec government to sell its 77 per cent interest in the Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP)—There was some overseas support in flax in dull trading on the Winnipeg grain exchange today.

Lower prices in Europe prompted some flax selling and export business was developing.

Rapeseed rallied with the sale of 2,000 tons late Wednesday. There was export and shipping demand with light offerings.

Oats and barley were light with some inquiry in both grains.

Rye was thin, but prices showed strength, with mostly commission house trading.

Sale of two lots of Canadian wheat totalling 3,300 tons to Europe was reported.

Export loadings of Canadian wheat included Czechoslovakia, 1,000,000 bushels; Japan, 500,000; Soviet Union, 200,000; Ecuador, 265,000.

Lakehead prices for Class Two, IWA and domestic wheat were unchanged.

Next time you drink Ballantine's, you'll sense how the stream runs in the taste.

Apartment Building Boom

By GORDON BELL
Times Business Editor

Bell

Wild is the word for the Vancouver apartment building boom.

Up to the end of October, according to latest Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. figures, the number of units started in Vancouver was equal to the total number of units started during all of 1963 for the whole province.

Not unexpectedly, there has also been a sharp rise in the number of vacant new apartments in the metropolitan Vancouver area. The figures show a rise from 609 at the end of September to 881 at the end of October and an even sharper rise from one year ago when the vacancy figure was only 371 units.

* * *

Victoria's apartment building boom continues to go ahead as well but on a more moderate scale and, surprisingly enough, with an actual drop-off in the numbers of vacant new suites.

Apartment unit starts for October totalled 492 a marked contrast to the zero registered in the previous month—and the total for the first 10 months of the year reached 1,588 units.

The drop in the vacancy figure was from 192 units in September to 110 in October, also well below the 177 of a year earlier.

These vacancy figures represent only new construction, of course, so there is no reflection of the heavy pressure placed on older units by the current boom.

* * *

October saw a moderate increase in the number of single family and duplex homes started in Victoria but the January-October total of 731 units lags just slightly behind last year's total of 736. In metro Vancouver, on the other hand, one and two-family home starts for the period are ahead of last year—3,282 to 3,168.

The trend to apartments is the same in almost all the urban areas of B.C. with single-family and duplex starts up just nine per cent over last year and apartment starts up 50 per cent. For the whole province, apartment starts for the first 10 months of 1964 reached the somewhat astonishing total of 9,600 units.

The CMHC comments that in the months ahead the number of new apartments coming on the market will be climbing rapidly as completions reflect the steady increase in starts throughout the year.

NEAR GRAND FORKS

Platinum Strike Drilling in '65

VANCOUVER (CP)—Franklin River Mines Company will start drilling a platinum strike north of Grand Forks next spring, H. H. Huestis, company president, said Wednesday.

Franklin owns 257 claims on land where platinum was encountered in exploration this season. The strike is located 40 miles north of Grand Forks.

The three partners in the mine spent $50,500 this summer on exploration.

During the summer 26 miles of road was completed, 32 miles of grid lines were cut, magnetometer, soil sampling and geophysical surveys were run and 672,000 square feet of trenching was done.

No 1 trench sample, cut across 14 feet, assayed platinum $38.50, copper $9.52, gold $2.20, silver 68 cents for a total value of $50.81 per ton.

OTHER INTERESTS

The three companies also are partners in Valley Copper Mines Ltd., which holds 354 claims in the Highland Valley on which diamond drilling and further exploration is now going on. Huestis and Buttle each own 780,000 shares of Valley and Northwest owns 600,000.

Work on Valley Copper is being carried out by Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. of Canada Ltd., which is taking shares at 50 cents for the work done. Under the agreement Cominco is required to spend $150,000 by the end of 1965.

Huestis Mining owns 47 claims near Pitman, 15 miles east of Terrace, on which Canex Aerial Explorations Ltd., is working on a 75-25 agreement. Canex has spent $40,000 so far and will resume in the spring. The property is a molybdenum prospect.

Buttle Lake has a carried interest in 69 claims located 25 miles northeast of New Hazelton, explored by Southwest Potash Co. Ltd. The major company drilled 4,517 feet of diamond drill hole and intersected widely spaced molybdenite. It informed Buttle Lake it will not continue and Buttle Lake now has the property back.

CLAIMS DROPPED

Work on the original Buttle Lake claims, northwest and southeast of the Western Mines property, included soil sampling and hand trenches. An anomaly was indicated but no assays of consequence. Buttle Lake also has staked a number of claims near Harrison Lake.

Northwest Ventures has dropped a group of claims near Westwold. It has retained good title to eight claims near Granduc and four claims near the North Thompson River, the latter a molybdenum prospect.

Directors of the three firms are discussing the possibility of a merger. They will set up a committee to study it.

CNR OPENS RESEARCH BUILDING

ST. LAURENT, Que. (CP)—Canadian National Railways officially opened Wednesday what it calls the most modern railway research centre in Canada in this Montreal suburb.

The two-storey centre was completed in nine months at a cost of $874,817 and has been occupied by at least some research staff since June 22. It will house a staff of 123 researchers and technicians.

The building contains chemical and physical laboratories, a library, machine shop and areas for research on metals, textiles, soils, concrete and mechanical, electrical and electronic equipment.

Gunnar Reports Deficit

TORONTO (CP) — Gunnar Mining Ltd., says it expects a consolidated net loss this year due to losses suffered by McNamara Corp. Ltd., the construction firm which it owns.

In a report to shareholders, Gunnar says it expects profits this year of $1,000,000 from the sale of concentrates from its Lake Athabasca uranium property, $1,000,000 from investment income and $1,500,000 from sale of fixed assets and income tax refund.

"This total of $3,500,000 is expected to be substantially more than offset by net losses in construction projects in the McNamara Corp. Ltd. group."

The report says major losses are being suffered on "comparatively few" of the more than $100,000,000 worth of construction projects in which McNamara is engaged this year.

"Corrective measures have been put into effect and we believe that they will result in a substantial change for the better in the earnings of the construction companies in 1965."

It says future dividends depend on earnings from the construction companies and any other new mining or other activities Gunnar may enter.

'West Coast Cowboys Cut Their Throats'

TORONTO (CP) — P. E. Roberts, president of the Abitibi Power and Paper Co. Ltd., said Wednesday his firm will cut newsprint prices only if faced by a general price cut by firms east of the Rocky Mountains.

"And I don't think that is coming," he told a business outlook conference sponsored by the University of Toronto school of business.

The cut, he said, had come at a time when the industry was running close to capacity. In fact, he said, western mills are running at full capacity.

"Who cuts his price when he has all the business he can handle?" Mr. Roberts said. "The West Coast cowboys finally got into a battle and are cutting each others' throats. We have no interest in cutting our throats."

Deep-Sea Port In North B.C. Out of Question

By JOHN E. BIRD

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal government geographers have exploded the idea that it is possible to build a deep-sea port in northern British Columbia which ships can enter by travelling along a navigable channel across the Alaska panhandle.

Dr. J. D. Ives, director of the geographical branch of the department of mines and technical surveys, said Wednesday in an interview that construction of a port at the head of Tarr Inlet, some 1,000 miles north of Vancouver, "is out of the question."

NOT IN B.C.

The branch's glaciology section said available records show the terminus of the Grand Pacific Glacier in Tarr Inlet is in Alaska south of the international boundary and not in B.C. The glacier is connected to Melbern Glacier and extends northwest from the head of Tarr Inlet for some 30 miles.

Recent reports from Whitehorse, Yukon, and Vancouver said a tidewater port site exists on B.C. soil at the terminus of the glacier. They gave rise to hope that a port could be built at the head of Tarr Inlet providing a deep-sea shipping route into northern B.C. and the Yukon.

The reports were based on a survey made last summer by Leo Proctor of Whitehorse, a lumberman and roadbuilder, and later investigations by a party from Whitehorse.

Various surveys and aerial photographs show that the terminus of the glacier in 1925 was about a mile north of the international boundary.

FLUCTUATED

Between 1925 and 1948 the terminus of the glacier fluctuated north and south of the boundary. However, since 1948 the terminus has extended south of the boundary into Alaska.

Dr. W. O. Field of the American Geographical Society made a survey of the glacier in August of this year. In a report to the geographical branch he said the glacier still is advancing south and that all points of its terminus are in Alaska.

According to Dr. Field, the terminus of the glacier is some 328 to 765 yards south of the international boundary in Alaskan territory.

"From Dr. Field's observations in August there seems no doubt that the terminus of the Grand Pacific Glacier now is entirely in Alaskan territory," Dr. Ives said.

Dr. Ives said the glacier has a history of extreme fluctuations north and south of the boundary and that it would be extremely hazardous to put a port in its path.

Young Robbers Slain

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two 16-year-old boys, allegedly attempting to rob a delicatessen, were stabbed to death Wednesday night by its owner. Peter Bastianick, 55, owner of the delicatessen, said the youths hit him on the head with a catsup bottle. He said he chased them around a corner and stabbed them both with a 14-inch knife.

SMOKE LESS

Cigarette consumption in Norway dropped to 703,722,000 during the first six months of this year from 712,420,000 in the same period last year.

McLaughlin Elected New Leader of SIU

MONTREAL (CP) — Leonard (Red) McLaughlin, a 39-year-old native of New Zealand, has been elected president of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.) it was learned today.

He defeated six other candidates in two months of balloting aboard SIU-manned ships and fills the post vacated when Hal Banks was fired earlier this year by the board of maritime trustees.

A source close to the union said Mr. McLaughlin, who has been a sailor since 1942, had won the election by a "substantial" margin.

Mr. McLaughlin, who makes his home in Montreal, had been the union's executive vice-president since 1961.

Others elected include:

Don Swait, 36, of Montreal, re-elected secretary-treasurer;

U.S. REJECTS CHARGES

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States Wednesday publicly rejected charges that it was guilty of military intervention by participating in the rescue of hostages held by Congolese rebels.

The state department said that when the full story of the perils confronting the hostages in the Stanleyville area becomes known, there will be greater "sympathy" for their plight. There also will be more "understanding" of the necessity for the joint Belgian-American rescue operation, the department said.

NEW WINTER WORKS PLAN HITS INNOCENT

UBCM Labels Gov't 'Unfair' for Changes

Victoria will continue to press for a better winter works deal from the provincial government, acting mayor Ald. A. I. Curtis said today.

He was commenting on a letter to all members of Union of B.C. Municipalities in which president Peter Jenewein, Maple Ridge, labelled the provincial government unfair.

Referring to a conversation with Premier W. A. C. Bennett, Mr. Jenewein said the premier "had not given me any indication that the government would change its policy on winter works as it now stands. I feel strongly that in this instance, this government is being unfair to municipalities.

"Individual municipalities may, if they so wish, should now make further representation on this issue on their own."

'KEEP UP PRESSURE'

"We have made our representations to the government," Ald. Curtis said. "Doubtless we will try and keep up the pressure because this has been embarrassing to us."

He could not foretell what specific course city council would recommend from this point.

Provincial winter works assistance policy was changed during the summer — after local governments had laid plans and budgetted for current winter projects.

The change drastically reduced the financial assistance municipalities could claim under terms of previous winter works agreements.

UBCM previously had requested the municipal affairs minister to make two changes and the letter was turned over to Mr. Bennett.

First proposal was to allow projects approved by the government to receive aid on the same basis as applied when projects were given clearance.

"This will avoid any criticism by the municipalities that the government reneged on any promise. Further it will not place any municipality in financial difficulties," Mr. Jenewein said.

The second suggestion was that the government make a policy allowing municipalities to bypass the new restrictions if available unemployed employables have all been hired.

"The premier replied immediately, stating that, in the opinion of the government, all municipalities have abused the conditions under previous winter works agreements," the president wrote.

He said he replied stating there were many municipalities that did not abuse winter works, and in any cases at fault, the government was to blame for being lax.

"I pointed out that it is our opinion he is evidently punishing the innocent with the guilty," Mr. Jenewein said.

The premier, he said, stated winter works was never intended to assist municipalities, but to take off welfare the hard-core unemployed employables.

He said the premier asked why the UBCM had not proposed its latest request long before, and was told by Mr. Jenewein that municipalities had not been told of any proposed changes.

"This further points out the necessity of the government taking the UBCM into its confidence whenever any policy change that affects local government is contemplated," Mr. Jenewein said.

Cancer Institute To Be Expanded

VANCOUVER (UPI) — The president of the British Columbia Cancer Foundation, George Clark, says a $350,000 addition to the B.C. Cancer Institute will start early next year.

A fourth floor will be added to provide more space for research projects.

CHINA SNUBS THANT PLAN ON OBSERVERS

PEKING (Reuters) — Communist China Wednesday rejected Secretary-General U Thant's recent suggestion that countries not represented in the United Nations be allowed to attend as observers.

The Chinese Communist party organ People's Daily reiterated Peking's "unswerving and determined" stand that so long as "representatives of the Chiang Kai-shek clique are not expelled from all UN organs and China's lawful rights there are not fully recovered, China will have nothing whatsoever to do with that organization."

Financing Holding Up Sewer Study

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell Wednesday said he will write Greater Victoria councils to find out of the final roadblock in the way of a $102,000 regional sewer study has been removed.

The stumbling block is agreement on a formula among the municipalities to ease the $5,197 cost share to be borne by Central Saanich which Reeve Gordon Lee says is too large.

The provincial government has offered to lend $21,375 to cover the shares of Langford, Colwood, Metchosin, View Royal and North Saanich, all unorganized territories that would be included in the survey.

DISTRIBUTION

But Mr. Campbell maintained that it was up to the organized municipalities to arrange the rest of the financing, including distribution of Central Saanich's portion.

The survey will probe the sewage needs of the region for the next 20 years.

Labor Council Plans Week Of Education

Victoria Labor Council executive will consider a week-long series of activities telling the public about unions.

"I think this could be quite possible in Victoria," council secretary-treasurer A. W. Toone said Wednesday.

If it occurred, he would like to see a "quite important person" such as Canadian Labor Congress president Claude Jodoin invited.

The idea was discussed at a meeting Tuesday night of the labor council's education committee and Jack Williams of Ottawa, the CLC's director of public relations.

SPEAKING CAMPAIGN

During the week, trade unionists could speak to clubs and schools, telling them of trade unions and their activities.

"Primarily, it would be to inform the community about the trade union movement," said Mr. Toone.

Such public-relations weeks had been held successfully in the east and the CLC wanted to see Victoria participating.

The subject will go before the council's executive for discussion and possible recommendations.

Fast Action Nabs Suspect In Break-In

Police suspected the break-in and checked an area of several blocks before discovering where it had occurred.

They found a skylight broken at Johnson's plumbing company and called in the police dog Mountie to search the building.

No one was found in it but it was discovered an attempt had been made to open the vault. The dial was knocked off.

Ronald J. Walmsley, 1353 Pandora, appeared in court Wednesday charged with breaking and entering. He elected trial by magistrate and was remanded to Dec. 3 for plea. Bail was set at $1,000.

Political Tone Seen In CNR TV Program

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative MP Gordon Churchill thinks Canadian National Railways, "supported annually by millions of dollars supplied by taxation," should steer clear of sponsoring programs with any political overtones.

Mr. Churchill (Winnipeg South Centre) raised the matter in the Commons last week. His target was the program Telepoll, carried by CTV television on Sundays.

In a question directed to Prime Minister Pearson, he asked why the CNR and Canadian Pacific Railway combined to sponsor the program. He said it was "emphasizing partisan, political broadcasts slanted in favor of the Liberal party."

No answer was given.

Outside the Commons, Mr. Churchill said he hadn't seen the most recent Telepoll program but was told participants had been asked whether they preferred the policies of Mr. Pearson or Opposition Leader Diefenbaker.

CLOSE TO BONE

This was "cutting a little close to the bone," he said.

"A Crown corporation like the CNR . . . has no business sponsoring a program that has political overtones. They're getting into the realm of political controversy."

Other programs in the past had been on the attitude of participants to the Red Ensign as a national flag for Canada and on selection of a man of the year among Canadian politicians.

Mr. Churchill cited no specific incident of the political slant he referred to in the House but said his main point is that a corporation supported by public revenue should not get involved in anything political.

Arthur Mayse

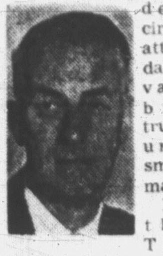
Socred leader Robert Thompson's recent junket to a Dark Continent growing darker by the hour has added such a volume of verbiage to Hansard that a couple of still, small facts are in danger of being buried beyond recovery.



So while Conservative Opposition leader Diefenbaker flaps quacking in his ever-decreasing circles, let us attempt today, to salvage these bruised truths from under the smothering mass.

First, whether Dr. Thompson's Africa mission was planned before or after Canada discovered her nationals were in hazard at savage Stanleyville makes no never-mind.

What does is that a Liberal minister looked about him for a good man, and having spotted one, did not let party lines prevent him from pointing a finger.

"You!" said External Affairs' Paul Martin in effect to former Africa hand Thompson; who in turn, did not let his allegiance to Social Credit stay him from the safari.

He went, after rather leisurely preparations; and in spite of what the political debunkers are now clamoring, I think Dr. Thompson performed well and worthily for his country.

★ ★ ★

That's one fact: I like it. Tell me that the mission was a reward for services rendered, and I'll still like it.

To me, there's hope for Mr. Pearson's battered government when one of its key ministers has the horse-sense to use a specialist despite his political label.

My second fact stems from the first.

As a result of Paul Martin's forward thinking, Canada had a knowledgeable and experienced representative in the field when it became plain that Canadians and other whites were in peril.

Remember, please, that, had it not been for this crossing of party lines, Dr. Thompson wouldn't have been johnny-on-the-spot. But those lines were crossed, and out of the Ottawa babble come hints that the senior Socred handled his assignment well.

Among his African friends is Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia. Were it not for the emperor's intercession—at Dr. Thompson's urging—Canada's nationals in the rebel stronghold might have fared very much worse.

He was the right man in the right place at the right time, spotted there by an act which to these nostrils carries a distinct whiff of statesmanship, however it may smell to Mr. Martin's detractors.

★ ★ ★

To utter a statement like that is to court a dunce cap from the political sophisticates, but by it I'll abide.

In fact, I'll venture further. If we are to be good Canadians—not merely good members of the party which gets our votes—we must encourage this line-hopping when the ship or anyone on it is in trouble.

This not only in the federal House, but at provincial level.

In the field of labor, and labor-management relations, Opposition Leader Robert Strachan's background, experience and integrity should be invaluable to government.

Old-logger Gordon Gibson of the Liberal group has known our woods since the wasteful days of cut-and-clear-out. Surely his gruff voice should be heard and heeded in a province whose timber is still its leading natural resource?

NDP member Lois Haggen receives from the Social Credit benches indulgent smiles and flowers on occasion. There are times in our embattled legislature when her woman's outlook and housewife's sense could reduce a muddled issue to clarity.

Opposition is vital to our parliamentary system of checks and balances. I think, though, that no party should block itself off from agreement and co-operation when an occasion demands unified effort.

I'm all for rough, loud, hard-fought election campaigns . . . the sort that expose every facet of a candidate's record to the hostile spotlight of his opponents.

It is debatable, however, whether the battle should be renewed so furiously in our legislative chambers while the peoples' business waits to be tended.

Liberal Martin and Socred Thompson have pioneered a different way: and how I wish their colleagues would stop beating each others' brains out long enough to investigate it!

LOST BUT NOT LEAST of Saanich police department's worries this morning was a three-year-old boy who says his name is "Me". Police were handed the child by the staff of a cleaner, into whose premises he wandered. An apple — which he shared around—substituted for the usual ice cream cone, and the lad was last seen trying on Cons. Bill Crossan's uniform cap—and answering his questions with simple, logical, uninformative answers. He says he lives at home. (Strickland Photo.)

Schools, City Row Erupts Over Street Widening Plan

By AB KENT

Pre-blasting work and school board criticism of Rose Street widening have erupted together.

Greater Victoria school board chairman Mrs. A. B. Thompson today accused city hall of not keeping school authorities informed on plans affecting school properties.

MRS. A. B. THOMPSON
. . . what's going on?

The Rose Street project is designed to carry trunk traffic to and from the downtown area and the widening phase under way will ultimately permit six lanes divided by a boulevard.

School authorities say traffic will be uncomfortably close to classrooms in S. J. Willis Junior Secondary School.

'CONCERNED'

"We are quite concerned. We were not brought into the picture," Mrs. Thompson said.

(City engineer James Garnett said the school board buildings and grounds committee had been provided with plans for the Rose Street job.

(City manager Dennis Young confirmed that he had been in touch with buildings and grounds committees and that they were familiar with city plans).

Mrs. Thompson went on:

"We wrote quite a while ago seeking a meeting with city council to clear up quite a few points—James Bay School, North Ward School and this widening. But we haven't had a reply.

"We really haven't been brought into the picture in quite a while—August or September is the last I recall.

"We'll do anything and everything we can to co-operate with the city engineer as long as we are kept informed," Mrs. Thompson said.

Mr. Young said the school board request for a meeting mentioned by Mrs. Thompson was dated Monday and had just been received at city hall.

A school official was concerned that traffic and noise from the new main route would interfere with classroom work at S. J. Willis School.

ROAD TOO CLOSE

"Six lanes will bring it to within a hop-step of our classrooms . . . There's never been any consultation with the school," he said.

He said it appeared the street would be brought to within 40 or 50 feet of the nearest classroom, and closer still to the nearest corner of the building.

Mr. Garnet said the northbound lanes would come to within 100 feet of the building and south-bound lanes would be 175 feet away.

Besides, he pointed out, the rock would be blasted out to make a 20-feet-deep cut about 100 feet long where the street passes the school.

This would act as a screen and noise deflector for passing traffic, Mr. Garnet said.

"Obviously there will be noise while we are drilling, and there is no way around it as far as I can see. The work can't be rescheduled and there is no time during the holidays. But blasting will be done after school hours."

TOPICS of the DAY

Mrs. Pat Hewitt will demonstrate the new reading system for kindergarten at Christ Church Cathedral School on Niagara Street Wednesday at 8 p.m.

The meeting will open to all parents of young children.

★ ★ ★

George Weatherall, 1283 Derby, told city police he found the balloon about 1 a.m. at Pandora and Cook.

It was turned over to the RCN for return to U.S. authorities.

Dominion Astrophysical Observatory will be open to the public for the last time this year Saturday from 8 to 10 p.m.

Public visits will resume first Saturday in April.

A fund to aid a family of a mother and seven children, burned out of their home twice this year, will close Monday.

The fund is being administered by the National Trust, 1280 Douglas St.

Fire destroyed the home of Mrs. Christine Crosby July 2 when she and her children, which range in age from one to 10, lived at 1020 Queens Ave.

Total collected to date is $165.

Following the annual election of officers, Victoria branch of the B.C. Government Employees' Association will hold its annual dinner for the executive in the Thistle Room of the Glenshiel Hotel Friday evening.

B.C. Municipal Affairs minister Dan Campbell will be guest speaker and guests will include Dr. H. M. Morrison, chairman of the Civil Service Commission, and W. H. Forrest, superannuations commissioner.

After the dinner, the fall dance will be held in the Crystal Garden.

★ ★ ★

Other executive officers elected were: William Haley, first vice-president; Mrs. Irma Dunn, secretary.

The second vice-president's post, traditionally held by a woman, was left vacant pending a meeting of the women's division.

The canteen staffed by members of the Solarium Junior League will make its final appearance at Goldstream Park Sunday as the annual salmon run nears its end.

Fisheries department officials say there will still be fish to see, but the run is nearing completion.

The canteen is set up to serve hot drinks and food to persons heading for the nearby spawning grounds. Proceeds from the canteen aid crippled children at the solarium.

North-south (1) Joan and Paul Smith; (2) Laura Tingley and Dorothy McConnell; (3) Jo Waddington and Maria Collm; (4) Elizabeth Warren and Les Stewart.

B.C. Here To Stay —Bennett

Premier W. A. C. Bennett today said he has no intention of leading B.C. out of Confederation.

"I am a Canadian first, last and always," he said, commenting on a warning to the Senate banking committee that rejection of the province's bid for a Bank of B.C. charter could force it to secede and join the U.S.

He made no other comment on the committee's decision to vote next week on a motion to kill the application.

Liberal Senator Arthur Roebuck, who supported the application, warned his colleagues that rejection would be tantamount to "busting Confederation" because it could lead to British Columbia joining the U.S. "its natural trading direction."

Just $3,261 Needed to Hit Appeal Mark

Greater Victoria United Appeal was only $3,261 short of its target at press-time today.

Collections rose to $46,739 with a late donation of $360 from Wyder Electric Co. Ltd. of Vancouver and Victoria, and a further $500 from Yarrows Ltd. (Yarrows has already contributed $3,500.)

Appeal headquarters have now launched a crash campaign to realize its $410,000 objective by Saturday.

"It would be a great pity if we fell short of our objective when we are so close to it," an official said.

FINISH THE JOB

To bridge the gap, campaign officials are asking all convassers who have not yet completed their contracts to finish the job.

They are also appealing to persons and organizers which have not been approached this year to come forward on their own.

Contributions may be made to the collection booth at Yates and Douglas; accounts divisions of department stores, main branches of principal banks, and headquarters of the United Appeal, 1951 Cook St.

Contributions may be delivered or mailed.

Chamber Fears B.C. Bank Aims

Government Control Cited in Submission

British Columbia Chamber of Commerce today told the provincial cabinet it supports a B.C. bank but is worried about government participation in it.

Briefs presented by the chamber's directors at their annual meeting with the cabinet also put the 125-chamber organization representing some 20,000 businessmen on record as:

- Opposing compulsory and universal medicare;
- Proposing an increase in the legal school leaving age to 17 years;
- Urging modification of the basis for home-owner grants, tieing them directly to school costs;
- Seeking tightening up of the Trade Union Act to restrict picketing to employees of a particular operation that have voted in favor of a strike;
- Supporting work-for-welfare schemes using unemployed employables for work on public projects at union scales;
- Advocating an intensive study of air pollution by the B.C. Research Council with a view to suggesting solutions;
- Proposing a "reasonable daily charge" be levied at provincial camp sites, where attendants are employed, starting with the first day.

End Tax on Machinery, Meals

The chambers also asked the cabinet to abolish the five per cent social security tax on meals and heavy machinery to be used in manufacturing by secondary industry.

The taxation brief said there is an urgent need for additional secondary industry in the province as a source of employment, and that removal of the five per cent tax on purchases of machinery for use in secondary industry would lower the cost of B.C. products and make them more competitive.

"Ontario, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island grant exemption from retail sales tax for machinery and parts used directly in the manufacturing of goods for sale," the brief said.

It said the tax on meals of construction workers, travellers and others compelled to eat in restaurants is unfair and constitutes an imposition that should be abolished.

The B.C. Chamber's president, R. G. Miller of Vancouver, heading the delegation, told the cabinet that the organization supports the proposition to set up a major bank and with head offices in B.C.

Government Control Possible

However, he said, the chamber's resolution on the question "expresses the fears of many businessmen that the proposed new bank may not be completely free from control at the operating level by this or a possible future government."

He also said that the organization believes voluntary, prepaid medical insurance schemes should be encouraged, and the provincial government should pay medical costs for those who can't afford insurance fees.

He said the chamber tends to oppose universal schemes that cover all persons regardless of ability to pay.

"We feel we should not rush helter-skelter into further major measures until a thorough study is made to establish priorities for future additional governmental expenditures in such fields as education, pensions and health services," he said.

Mr. Miller said the keystone of the chamber's philosophy was a belief in free enterprise and he expresesd concern about encroachment of government enterprise.

"We believe that as much business ownership control and regulation as possible should be left to the private sector and as little as possible taken over by the public sector—and then only to protect and promote the public interest," he said.

"We therefore deplore the current trends which have progressively weakened the private sector relative to the public sector."

The briefs presented by the group were based on a 32-page booklet of policy statements and resolutions which is updated each year by the B.C. chamber.

The section on education commended the government's increasing development of various educational programs and urged the present school leaving age be boosted from 16 years "to at least 17 years" as a method of ensuring more training for youth.

The policy statement on government financing urged a change in the basis of the home-owner grant.

WHITE STUFF PREDICTED FOR CITY

Cool air overnight caused light snowfall in the higher levels of the Malahat and Sooke hills.

Weatherman Bill Mackie said today Victoria and the southern part of the province is hanging "by the skin of its teeth" to a mass of comparatively warm air.

"But I expect we will have a continued cooling trend. There is enough cold air around, so we should be on the alert," he added.

TIMBER LANDS PURCHASED

Joint purchase of 229,000 acres of Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway belt timber lands by MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. and Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd. was announced today.

Price paid by the two companies, or the division of interests in the land was not disclosed.

The timber is on a number of separate tracts in the mid-Island area of the E and N belt ranging from Cowichan Lake to north of Courtenay and at elevations from a few hundred feet to 3,500 feet above sea level, with the bulk of the timber at the higher elevation.

The timber lands are adjacent to present operations of the two forestry companies and will be integrated into existing logging programs, the announcement said.

Mineral rights on the lands were not included in the sale.

Plastic, Wheels Keep Bert Rolling Along

By HUMPHRY DAVY

The 61-year-old grower who lost his first leg in 1959 and the other in 1963, due to poor blood circulation, has overcome his physical disability by sheer determination and the will to work.

On top of that he goes about his work with the knowledge that his aorta the large heart artery has been replaced by a plastic one.

But that doesn't seem to bother Mr. Wilson.

"I'm not going to sit and watch the world go 'round," he said laughingly. "There's plenty to do and plenty to learn."

His two mechanical aids which permit him to live a normal life are a wheelchair and a small tractor; the latter he pats affectionately as it has given him mobility.

The machine permits him to move freely about his six acre farm. He tends his seedlings and rides among the cultivated rows of heather.

He had equipped his tractor with a wooden platform on the rear which can be lowered and raised. He uses it to transport his flats and plants.

He also built last Summer all but the roof and gables of a greenhouse. He first cut the lumber to size and then constructed the building seated on his tractor.

As a grower of heather, Mr. Wilson is known far and wide. He has the largest collection (86 varieties) in Canada, the second largest in America. They originate from all parts of Europe and Asia.

"The most beautiful heathers come from Africa," he said, "but they are not hardy enough for this climate."

Proud of his English, Irish and Scotch ancestry, the grower comes of Ontario pioneer stock. He was born on a farm near Owen Sound.

Mr. Wilson and his wife came to B.C. in the early 1930s and first settled in Kamloops where they ran a ranch. They sold it and came to Victoria in 1950. The grower then started landscape gardening.

"We started growing heather on a small scale," he said. "Then the collection grew and grew. We have now thousands of plants ranging from seedlings to planting stock."

"I can't explain how it's done," he said. "All I know it works."

When one grower was asked if there was anything to Mr. Wilson's art, he replied: "If there isn't, then Bert Wilson has been damn lucky."

SPEAKING OF CARS

Great Car If You Can Find Battery

By LESLIE MILLIN

Prospective MG-B owners take note: the battery lives under the floorboards behind the seats.

For many an aeon, I had considered the Morgan manufacturers as holding the championship for hiding batteries.

Those venerable and wonderful automobiles keep the battery on a shelf over the rear axle and under the luggage space.

But getting at the MG-B battery means using a screwdriver on various bits of screws and things.

However, to get on with the rest of the car . . .

The MG-B has been around for a couple of years now, the latest in a long series of famous low-cost sports cars.

* * *

The local dealers handle them, Horwood Bros., and Thos. Plimley Ltd., and the latter company provided the test car.

It's a pleasant machine, more comfortable than any previous MG and a lot quieter — the legacy, I think, of new anti-noise laws in England.

Interior appointments have a degree of luxury, with leather upholstery, proper carpeting, and all the little doodads well finished.

The steering deserves a word, as it is very light and activated by a small-diameter wheel so positioned as to favor straight-arm driving.

* * *

By the time you add in the roll-up windows and sealable — or so I'm assured — top, you have a very different machine from the slab-tanked, 19-inch-wheeled MGs of yesteryear.

(I couldn't get the top to work, but this is because of native clumsiness . . . they say).

Cornering is very good, in spite of what seems like excessive body lean tome, and the 1,800 C.C. engine will propel 1,775-pound car along at a good clip — 108 m.p.h. flat out.

Top speed, torque and horsepower — 94 b.h.p. — are all better than in those bygone days remembered nostalgically by those who owned MGs that had no curves, just corners.

* * *

But the trend is towards comfortable touring machines, and MG has built one.

Price of the one I drove — it had wire wheels, an extra — was $2,945.

For a sporty car around town, it's attractive. But remember where the battery is. It could be vital.

Food Service Course Asked at University

A Canadian university course in hotel and food service management is recommended by Harvey J. Smith, national president of the Canadian Restaurant Association.

"The industry is suffering because there is no such university course in Canada," Mr. Smith told the annual meeting of the Victoria and Vancouver Island branch of the Restaurant Association.

"Many would-be restaurateurs are going to the United States for such courses and nine out of 10 of them never return."

Mr. Smith applauded the federal and provincial plan for vocational and technical education and said he hoped this would enable the tourist industry to keep pace with other industries.

He said most restaurateurs know how to serve and some know how to cook well — but there are other aspects of the business on which they should be better informed.

"We might cut the bankruptcy rate, which is now the highest in Canada."

Mr. Smith also called for a national code of sanitation and suggested a survey be made of Canadians' eating-out habits.

Christmas Postal Help Given Briefing

Christmas helpers with the mail will be briefed on their jobs Sunday.

More than 600 persons — 400 of them women — will work part-time for the Post Office to handle the Christmas rush.

"Some will work two or three days, some two weeks," postmaster A. M. Davies said today.

By Dec. 15, most of them will be working. Letter carriers start on Dec. 18.

TOURISM INCREASES

Smallwood Sees New Era With Hydro Sales to U.S.

By DAVE BUTLER

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Premier Smallwood appears to have reached a milestone in his long - standing prediction that New York subways one day will run on Labrador-produced electricity.

The premier proposes to transmit the energy produced at Hamilton Falls through the Maritimes to New England by a system of towers and submarine cables.

An English consulting firm told him Wednesday in New York that the project was feasible from "the engineering, economic and financial standpoints."

The verdict from the London firm of Preece, Cardew and Rider made it "one of the happiest days of my life" and "one of the greatest days in Newfoundland history," the premier said, adding the project probably would get under way next spring.

The statements by the consulting firm and the premier appeared to have ruled out earlier possibilities that Quebec might take part in the project.

Premier Smallwood had met with Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec in 1962 and was quoted as saying at that time the project would be practical with Quebec's participation, but "difficult" for Newfoundland to undertake alone.

Negotiations were initiated between Quebec and the British Newfoundland Corporation, a Newfoundland Crown corporation Premier Smallwood terms the concessionaire in the project.

By late 1963, it appeared an agreement was near by which Quebec would buy the power and sell it at the New York state border for a profit.

BREAKDOWN FORESEEN

However, several developments at that stage indicated the Quebec-Newfoundland negotiations were heading for the rocks.

The two provinces picked up the 60-year quarrel over which of them actually owned Labrador. Premier Smallwood told the Newfoundland legislature an alternate route was being considered which would give the profit on the sale of the electricity to Newfoundland.

The negotiations with Quebec later bogged down on price differences and eventually broke off completely.

POLLUTED WATER FAILS AS TOURIST ATTRACTION

OTTAWA (CP) — Pollution of Canada's water resources poses a threat to the Canadian tourist industry, the federal-provincial tourist conference was told Wednesday.

Dr. Albert E. Berry, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Institute on Pollution Control, said water pollution has become a national problem challenging "our very existence and our national welfare."

A program to control pollution has always lacked public support, he said.

Engineer at Dam Freed in Deaths

DRAGUIGNAN, France (UPI)—A departmental court cleared retired district engineer Jacques Dargeou Wednesday of blame for the 1959 Mapasset Dam disaster which killed 421 persons in and near the southern French town of Frejus.

Dargeou was the senior local official connected with the building of the controversial thin arch dam. Much of his trial for involuntary manslaughter hinged on whether he had overall responsibility or was merely administrative head of the project.

The 180-foot structure slid off its foundations when one of the rock abuttments gave way on Dec. 2, 1959. The resulting torrent of water wiped out the valley below. Many victims were swept out to sea.

The dam had been hailed as an architectural and engineering miracle when it was built. It was designed on the "thin arch" principle. The weight of water behind it was transferred to the rock abuttments on either side of the chasm in which it was constructed.

Dargeou was tried last month but the verdict was delayed until Wednesday.

NO ERROR

The court said it could find no gross error in the building or running of the dam.

Different expert witnesses gave conflicting evidence on whether there should have been extra geological research at the dam site and on whether the disaster could have been predicted shortly before it occurred, it said.

The judgment said Dargeou was far less skilled in dam construction than the Mapasset designer, Andre Coyne, and therefore could not have been expected to find any faults in the design.

Nor had he at any time been recognized as construction manager for the scheme, the court said. The local department of works under Dargeou was simply concerned with administration.

Dargeou carried out his duties correctly, it said.

CHANGES IN SEX LAWS URGED BY N.Y. LAWYERS

NEW YORK (UPI)—The New York County Bar Association has urged a drastic liberalization of state criminal statutes governing sexual behavior.

The bar association recommended that adultery and discreetly-practised homosexuality should no longer be considered crimes and that the age of consent for women in sex cases should be lowered from 18 to 16.

The New York County (Manhattan) legal society's recommendations were based on the supposition that sexual behavior of the individual is a moral rather than a legal problem.

Right to Own Shares Upheld for Senators

OTTAWA (CP)—Members of the Canadian Senate have a right to petition Parliament to incorporate companies in which they have shares, the Senate banking committee was told Wednesday.

Senator Salter Hayden, (L—Ontario) committee chairman, read a legal opinion from the Senate's law clerk which said there was nothing to bar senators from such petitions. The committee later gave its approval to a bill incorporating the Settlers Savings and Mortgage Corporation.

"We are not second-class citizens in this respect," said Senator Hayden. Members of the Commons had the same right.

Canadians 'Wage Peace' on Cyprus

By ALAN WALKER

NICOSIA (CP) — Forces formed for war wage peace instead on this uneasy island where goats wandering too far from home can bring a hail of bullets.

Words are ammunition for the some 1,100 Canadian soldiers charged with the ticklish task of maintaining the United Nations cease-fire between edgy Greek- and Turkish-Cypriot factions.

So far the UN force, of which the Canadians form the largest part, has been successful. "Accidental discharges" and "bird-hunting" account for nearly all shots carefully investigated and catalogued by UN observers since the Turkish air raid on Greek-Cypriot positions in western Cyprus in August.

Many people here are surprised there hasn't been more trouble. Feeling runs high on both sides in this incoherent war and both Turkish- and Greek-Cypriots are sensitive to the slightest suggestion that the opposition is pulling a fast one. Greek and Turkish positions are constantly manned by well-armed soldiers all over the island. Civilians are quick to complain of grievances, imagined or otherwise.

UN soldiers speckle the island and their presence is generally recognized to have the key cooling effect on Levantine passions. It is not merely that they have strong forces. Diplomacy from the highest level to the lowest is the secret of the UN success.

In the key Kyrenia mountain area north of the capital, Canadian Guards from Picton, Ont., staff strategic posts under the light blue and white UN flag. The men field complaints from both sides and keep careful watch over Turkish- and Greek-Cypriot positions to ensure that neither force sneaks in an extra sandbag or an extra weapon—violating the cease-fire agreement.

"We're writing the book on peace-keeping," said Brig. Norman Wilson-Smith, 48, of Winnipeg, who recently took command of the Nicosia zone for the UN. "There are no training pamphlets—no manuals for this job.

"We dampen misunderstandings. If both sides want a hill, we sit on it. If there's a single shot fired in the zone, we know about it.

"It takes the men three or four days to get used to the idea that there is no enemy. It is a complete reversal of roles—like telling a firemen to light fires."

NIGHT MEANS BOREDOM

Patient and unending negotiation between the UN troops and both Cypriot forces keeps the lid on a potentially explosive situation. Brig. Wilson-Smith often meets with top Cypriot officials and acts as buffer between Turk and Greek. The same system extends downwards through the Canadian Guards' battalion commander Lt.-Col. William Mulherin, 42, born in Grand Falls, N.B., to youthful platoon commanders who meet with minor village officials and soothe rumpled feelings.

That is peace-keeping by day. It has so far been safe and smooth. Peace by night is another matter. "Then the private soldier has one of the most boring, lonely and sometimes dangerous jobs in the world," said Brig. Wilson-Smith.

"They're up there in the pitch dark, between heavily-armed antagonists. But they're unfailingly cheerful and satisfied they are doing a significant job. Their pride sustains them."

MINERS GET JAIL TERMS

MADRID (AP)—The tribunal of public order sentenced 35 coal miners to a year in jail Wednesday for illegal association. Four others, including a woman, were acquitted. All 39 were cleared last week of charges alleging Communist activities. They were tried in connection with labor disorders in Asturias in 1963.

NDP Hits B.C. Prison 'Crowding'

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan Tuesday said he was appalled with crowded conditions and lack of segregation in Oakalla jail.

The NDP leader, commenting on a personal tour of the institution, said he found first offenders and persons awaiting trial locked up with hardened criminals.

Cell blocks were crowded and exercise facilities lacking, he said.

Mr. Strachan suggested that an improved probation program would allow release of up to one-third of the 1,000 prisoners in the overcrowded jail.

Convicts Win Hearing On Grievances

PETROS, Tenn. (AP)—Convicts working in a mountain coal mine ended an 18-hour sitdown strike early today and released three mine foremen held as hostages after winning agreement from Tennessee State prison officials to hear their grievances.

The hostages had been held captive underground by 134 prisoners during the sitdown and were released unharmed. The prisoners work a coal mine near Brushy Mountain State Prison.

The convicts won a hearing on their complaints about mail service and other grievances. A disciplinary committee will investigate rules infractions. Authorities also promised that there would be no punishment for the demonstrating convicts.

State Corrections Commissioner Harry Avery said the grievance hearings would start today at the prison in the Cumberland Mountains of east Tennessee.

Inside the mine, the convicts told their hostages, "we won't harm a hair on your head," said one of the foremen, Thomas L. Harney, 56. Also held were Roy Thompson, 61, and William M Edmonds, 58.

Thompson had been in the same mine in July, 1959, and got out just before convicts rioted and set the shaft afire before hunger made them surrender after three days.

Mainland Man Guilty In Deaths

Robert McGillivray of Burnaby was found guilty of dangerous driving by a 12-man jury in B.C. Assize Court Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton called for a police report on McGillivray and remanded him for sentence until Saturday at 11:45 a.m.

The charge against McGillivray followed a two-car crash on the Patricia Bay Highway on the night of Sept. 24 which took two lives.

EVIDENCE

The jury deliberated its verdict for more than an hour after hearing a summation of the evidence by Mr. Justice Wootton.

Crown prosecutor at the trial was E. George MacMinn. McGillivray was defended by Donald Anderson of Victoria.

Soviets Woo U.S. Firms On Trade

MOSCOW (AP)—Representatives of a number of major U.S. businesses, convinced following talks with Kremlin leaders that they should begin trading with Russia, are ready to try to persuade the U.S. government to remove trade obstacles.

This was the summary given last week by one of a group of 92 businessmen who began returning home from five days of talks. This man, who had long experience in trade talks here, in contrast to the inexperience of many in the group, commented:

"They'll go back and talk to their congressman about making it easier to trade with the Soviet Union."

A number of other businessmen of the 63 corporations represented in the talks voiced a cautious conclusion that trade should be developed. Not all, however, were convinced.

Only a tiny cash trade now exists between the United States and the Soviet Union—2.5 per cent of the $5,000,000,000 worth of goods sold to Moscow by all Western countries last year.

Speculative Stocks? Czarist Russian Issues Are Very Nice

NEW YORK (AP)—The bonds of some long-gone governments are worth far more than the paper they are printed on. A continuing mystery of Wall Street is: Why?

Each year a large number of investors—the precise number is not known—hitch their dollars to the faded stars of czarist Russia, Estonia or the defunct Republic of Cuba.

There is a fairly ready market for bonds of vanished governments that once ruled what now are Communist nations. Prices go up and down with the tides of international affairs, even though the tides probably will never bring the investor's speculative ship to port.

Part of the lure is that the old bonds can be bought for pennies on the dollar.

When Soviet Premier Khrushchev was ousted a few weeks ago, czarist Russian dollar bonds jumped from $15 to $30.

Was it speculation that the Romanovs, the Russian royal family, would be returned to power?

Brokers shrug. Even the far-out optimists among them feel that prospects of a czarist revival are somewhat dim.

Russian dollar bonds are those which once paid their interest and principal in U.S. dollars (the face value of dollar bonds is usually $1,000). Also on the shelves of bond brokers are czarist bonds which once paid off in rubles.

The glamor of the Russian dollar bond hasn't rubbed off on the ruble bonds. Dealers don't know why. One dollar bond trades around $30. With that much cash you can buy more than 100,000 rubles worth of ruble bonds.

Another bond mystery is the trade in Estonian government issues.

"Estonia's a peculiar case," said a broker, "certainly it is part of the Soviet Union and probably will continue to be."

The Baltic nation was annexed by the Soviet Union in 1940. Nothing has been paid on its bonds since Jan. 1, 1941. Yet, some of the bonds traded recently at $90 each for a $1,000 certificate.

Trading is active in Republic of Cuba bonds in a range between $200 and $300 each.

Also being traded regularly are pre-Communist Polish and Silesian government bonds.

For every one of these bonds, there are dozens of issues that even the wildest speculators ignore.

Austrians Fear Russia

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

The marble Johann Strauss, Vienna's darling statue, seemed to play his violin with special sprightliness this autumn. The trees around him were richly gilded and at the city's rim his beloved Vienna Woods almost rivalled in color the crimson maples of eastern Canada, but not quite.

It was a jolly season in the curious political vacuum called Austria — every street of the capital jammed by new automobiles, every restaurant and coffee house filled by customers who filled themselves with incredible quantities of heavy food and drink, everybody employed and apparently content, every national problem well hidden from the foreigner.

But there are problems, deep problems, some of them perhaps insoluable. For the present nation of Austria, only nine years old, is trying to live in defiance of the world's power struggle and of economic laws. So far it has succeeded beyond expectation by a native shrewdness always disguised under an outward air of levity. The carefree Austrians in the fabled waltz town of Europe are doing very well for the moment anyway.

Mysterious

When Nikita Khrushchev, executing his first great demarche, pulled the Russian soldiers out of Austria in 1955 (for motives still mysterious) some seven million people were permitted to establish a neutral state—the tiny remains of the once vast Hapsburg empire.

Shorn of its old hinterland in the Danube basin, shorn too, of many illusions and legends, the new state has strictly maintained its legal neutrality and kept its bargain with Russia. The neutrality, however, is legal only. All Austria's sentiments and hopes are turned to the West, all its hatreds and fear directed at Communism. It can never forget the brutal Russian occupation.

The current Austrian political and economic system is a paradox fitting no definition and baffling all foreigners.

To begin with, the government is a coalition of theoretical opposites, the Conservatives and the Socialists, simply because neither can win a working majority in a free parliament. Both sides being almost exactly equal in elected members, they have ignored their basic differences and joined each other to erect an administration that looks unworkable but works.

The economy reflects the ambivalence of politics. Though ostensibly a nation of prosperous free enterprise Austria has gone further into socialism than any other west of the Iron Curtain, through direct public ownership of industry and indirect control of everything.

No Opposition

Since there is no significant parliamentary opposition, the two-headed government can do pretty much as it pleases, settling its policies of pragmatic compromise in the back room. Nevertheless, the citizen is as safe in his democratic liberties, as outspoken and critical of his rulers as any in Europe. And never, throughout Austria's long history, has he had it so good.

He could have it even better if he were not determined to keep Austria for Austrians. The country needs large foreign investment to improve its industry and Germany is eager to supply it but the people, remembering Hitler's conquest, will not accept the wealth of his heirs. Foreign penetration, from Russia or the West, is rejected for emotional reasons much stronger than economics.

This proud independence exacts a high though invisible price. It is paid in the undoubted inefficiency of Austrian industry which has been carefully sheltered from outside competition. It is paid also in an expensive, proliferating bureaucracy governed by the principles of Professor Parkinson. It may have to be paid sooner or later in a harsh decision, long postponed.

Austria is a member of the European Free Trade Association, headed by Britain, but it yearns to enter the Common Market where its true interests lie and the opportunities of trade are much larger.

Russian Fear

Russia has vetoed this attractive and natural arrangement because it would violate Austria's sworn neutrality. The Russian fears may be groundless and its threats are possibly a bluff, but Russian power, in neighboring Hungary, is only a few miles away and no Austrian underestimates it.

The man on Vienna's lively streets and in its gaudy restaurants is not noticeably worried by the dilemma facing his government.

Occupations

He has seen his country invaded and shrivelled by two world wars. He has lived through Hitler's occupation and then Stalin's. He cannot tell what will happen next and therefore he spends every schilling he earns and refuses to save.

After 50 years of tragic experience, he has lost interest in emperors, palaces, chocolate soldiers and all the good old Viennese myths that are now only the raw materials of a lucrative tourist industry.

Instead, he is resolved to have the best time possible today since he does not foresee tomorrow in a country balanced precariously between East and West. Still, the marble Waltz King continues to play his violin in the lovely park as if nothing had happened since the dancing Congress of Vienna. Mercifully, he has not heard that the waltz is ended.

Promoter Friend to JFK, Oswald

OSWALD
. . . link with JFK

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Russian-born society figure was a friend both of the family of President John F. Kennedy and his assassin, Lee Harvey Oswald.

A series of strange coincidences, providing the only known link between the two familes before Oswald fired the shot killing Kennedy in Dallas a year ago, was described in testimony before the Warren commission by George S. de Mohrenschildt. It was disclosed with the commission's release of the transcripts of its hearings.

De Mohrenschildt, a business promoter now living in Haiti, told of his friendship with the two families in two days of testimony last April.

He related first that when he came to the United States in 1938 and worked as a perfume salesman in New York City, he and his brother spent the summer at Belport, Long Island, where he met Mrs. Jack Bouvier and her daughter, Jacqueline.

FRIENDSHIP CONTINUES

The friendship, he said, has continued through the years and he still corresponds with and occasionally sees Mrs. Kenndey's mother, now Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss.

His first meeting with the Oswalds, he testified, was through mutual acquaintances in a Russian colony in Dallas who told him Lee Oswald, who once lived in Minsk, his birthplace, was living in poverty in Fort Worth.

He said he visited Oswald and his wife Marina in Fort Worth and later after they moved to Dallas, where, despite their poverty they were accepted and aided by wealthier persons with Russian connections.

De Mohrenschildt testified that after the assassination it "was always amazing to me"—that he had known Oswald as "an admirer of President Kennedy."

NEW MARINE TWIST

Shop Repairs Propellers

By RON SUDLOW

Harbour Machine Shop announced this week it has begun to specialize in propeller re-pitching and repairing.

Other machine shops in the city do this work but only as a sideline, shop owner Harry Fanthorpe said.

Only other businesses specializing in this facet of marine work are located in Nanaimo and Vancouver.

"The efficiency in which a boat planes through the water will depend on the size of the motor and the size and pitch of the propeller," Mr. Fanthorpe said.

PLEASURE CRAFT

"We are catering primarily to inboard fishing and pleasure craft. Outboard propellers are so cheap it is less expensive to replace them."

He estimated the cost of repairing and re-pitching a badly-damaged screw would be equal to one-third or one-half its original cost.

"To obtain the maximum efficiency from both boat and engine, it is necessary to have a propeller of the correct diameter and pitch to match the engine and hull."

Mr. Fanthorpe compared propeller balancing on a boat to wheel balancing on a car.

"The only difference is we grind down the heavy blades of a prop rather than put on lead clips as used in a wheel balance."

NEW BUSINESS

Prior to starting his new business, Mr. Fanthorpe received reports from the B.C. Research Council on propeller re-pitching and balancing.

He also paid a visit in October to Black-Clawson-Kennedy Ltd., in Owen Sound, Ont., a major Canadian propeller manufacturer.

Part of the equipment needed for this work includes a pitchometer, which he designed and built himself to check the pitch on each blade of the screw.

Anesthetic Use Noted In Natural Childbirth

The reason, says the chief of obstetrics at St. Luke's Hospital, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, is that many women are misled by the use of the word. They think it means labor and delivery entirely without the assistance of anesthetics.

"This is not so. The term refers to a reduction, not a withdrawal, of anesthesia and medication. We always ask the mother if she prefers to be asleep or awake when her baby is born and we never expect all patients to go through labor without medication."

Dr. Miller, who has been conducting lectures on natural childbirth in Canada, has met with some success in his campaign. He says at least two Canadian groups are considering deleting "natural" from their names.

The noted obstetrician, who has delivered more than 6,000 babies by the natural method, says 95 per cent of his patients are awake to hear their baby's first cry.

"There was a time when I was proud if a woman told me she couldn't remember anything about the birth of her baby, but I've certainly changed my ideas since then."

Labor is considerably shortened and mothers are much more at ease when they learn the series of relaxing exercises to help through childbirth, says Dr. Miller.

He would like to see teen-age girls given courses in natural childbirth in high school and believes they would then be more likely to have their children by this method. "Education is the important thing. That way, misunderstanding is avoided and fear alleviated."

WORLD CONFERENCE

The Second World Population Conference will be held in Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Aug. 30 to Sept. 10, 1965, under UN auspices.

'NOT A CIVIL SERVANT'

Quebec Politician Cleared in Fraud Case

QUEBEC (CP)—Gerald Martineau, 62-year-old Quebec City businessman, today was acquitted on a charge of defrauding the Quebec government of $31,600.

The charge had been placed following a royal commission into purchasing practices under the former Union Nationale administration.

Mr. Martineau, a member of the legislative council, Quebec's upper house, and former treasurer of the Union Nationale party, had been charged on 11 counts of fraud.

The judgment was made by Judge Albert Dumontier of sessions court.

The fraud counts involved unearned commissions which the Crown said had been made on paint sales to the government by the Sico Paint Company.

Mr. Martineau also is awaiting a judgment next month by Judge Jean Baillargeon on two other fraud charges. One contains eight counts and the other five. A total of $23,000 is involved.

Judge Dumontier said one of the elements essential to the 11-count charge is missing because Mr. Martineau was not a civil servant.

"Moreover, since the steps the accused has taken in the service of the Sico Company on the one hand and the Quebec director of purchases on the other, were not made in his capacity as legislative councillor, therefore the criminal acts listed in the charge cannot be in law held against him," the judge said.

Mr. Martineau was present at the reading of the 28-page judgment. He remained impassive throughout the reading, which lasted almost one hour.

After his acquittal, he immediately left the courthouse without saying anything.

During the trial, Mr. Martineau's lawyer, Joseph Cohen of Montreal, had presented a motion asking that the counts in the charge be annuled because the accused man had not been a civil servant in the sense defined by the Criminal Code.

The motion was heard in sessions court and rejected by Judge Gerard Simard on grounds of judicial precedent.

Plane Sabotage Worries Airlines

By DON OAKLEY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The scene is a commercial airport. At an airline check-in counter, agents weigh and ticket passengers' bags, then place them on a conveyor belt. It is a routine procedure, performed thousands of times a day.

At one point, however, away from the crowded terminal, a large, heavy-walled chamber squats over the belt. As each piece of luggage enters the chamber, a revolving door closes around it briefly, then opens on the other side for the luggage to continue on its way to waiting trucks and to the airplane on the field.

Suddenly, a muffled explosion rocks the chamber. The chamber is scarred, its interior a mess. Repairs will be costly. But it has done what it was built to do: Detect and explode that one suitcase or hatbox in 10 million or 100 million that contains a bomb planted by a psycopath.

No such scene has ever taken place, but it could, claim the designers of the bomb detector-exploder—if the idea were approved by the Fedral Aviation Agency and installed at airports.

No such chamber exists, but a small model has exploded flash powder "bombs" before pilots and official observers.

The system works by using electric and magnetic waves—beamed for a fraction of a second—to burn out the wires connecting a bomb's primer cap to its batteries, thus setting off the bomb. Although the rays have been proved harmless to luggage or its contents, including watches, radios and electric razors, they also set off flashbulbs.

Plane Bombs

According to the Chromalloy Corp., the manufacturer, there have been at least 15 incidents involving bombs and airliners around the world since 1949, killing 233 persons.

The FAA, however, puts the figure at 191 deaths in 17 known bombings since the first one occurred in 1933.

Whatever the true number, which can never be known, there were also—by FBI count—700 bomb hoaxes in the less than three years between September 1957, and March 1960. One airline executive estimates the cost of each false bomb report at about $10,000.

This, says Chromalloy, is just what it would cost for one of its explosion chambers. For $40 million, it says, every baggage conveyor belt of every airline at every airport in the U.S. could be protected.

Again, the FAA has its own figure, contending that a single installation of the chamber would run to at least a quarter of a million dollars, and it has refused to underwrite the cost of a prototype chamber.

While unimpressed at present with this particular device, the FAA is interested in any idea that might reduce the possibility of aircraft sabotage. Other methods under consideration include:

- Radioactvie seeding. The theory is that a Geiger counter-type instrument, scanning luggage, would detect a bomb through telltale clicks caused by radioactive particles added to the explosive at the time of its manufacture. (Later, it was believed that primer caps alone need be seeded.)

The trouble was that a serious health hazard would be presented to people making or using explosives. Also, there is about a 10 years' supply of dynamite on the shelf, and millions of primer caps are imported every year. And there would be the problem of radium-dial watches.

In any event, a determined bomber could make his own powder or caps, or simply use lead foil to shield his bomb.

- X-ray or fluoroscope. Too many innocuouos objects like clocks or radios resemble bombs; it would lead to endless searching of luggage. There is a health hazard, too, in this method.

- Mechanical dog. The FAA is currently conducting tests at the Illinois Institute of Technology in Chicago with mechanical sniffers that can detect trace odors of different materials. (Live dogs were once considered.)

While explosives, like anything else, have a distinctive odor, present devices can't pick out specific odors in a mixture. They would miss, for example, a bomb wrapped in salami heavily scented with garlic.

- Blowout panels. A study is sceduled to begin next June at the agency's aviation research center in Atlantic City on the feasibility of building planes with a weak spot in one wall—in, say, the lavatory or baggage hold.

An explosion at such a weak point would choose the path of least resistance—away from the plane. There has actually been one case of an airliner landing safely after a suicide bomber blew himself out of the lavatory.

But this was at a low altitude. The question is whether a large plane, pressurized at a high altitude, could continue to fly with a hole in its side.

NBC Man Insisted On Front Spot, Dies

The writer of the following dispatch is a part-time correspondent for The Associated Press in Elisabethville, The Congo. He moved into Stanleyville with Congolese army troops attacking the city.

By JOHN LATZ

STANLEYVILLE (AP) — A colleague died in my arms Tuesday.

He died swiftly with two bullet wounds in his head while gunfire spattered through the pre-dawn shadows of this troubled Congo city.

There was nothing I could do except crouch down near a convoy of Congolese and mercenary troops and keep my arms wrapped round the ginger-bearded correspondent — NBC Africa correspondent George Clay.

A few minutes earlier, Clay, 38, a South African who has a wife and small daughter, laughed and brandished a microphone.

"This mike is the only weapon I have. There is enough firing on this tape to cover five wars."

SOUND SETTER

He refused to come away from the head of the column. The sound was better up there, he said.

He was hit as Congolese insurgents fired a machine-gun blast from some undergrowth.

Clay's death was angrily, bitterly avenged.

The huts of a small village lay scattered around in the undergrowth and the machine-gun bursts came from that direction.

A captain in the column—infuriated that Clay and one of his own men, a sergeant, had died—ordered the village to be burned down.

ENOUGH DEATH

Then the column's commanders ordered a halt in the advance of the 5th Mechanized Brigade of the Congolese army toward Stanleyville. There had been enough death for one night they decided.

"Too murderous," was the words one staff officer used.

The sergeant who died was another South African, Fred Basson, 32.

Basson was a member of No. 5 Commando, an all-white unit which had spearheaded the column of Congolese and other mercenaries in the effort to rescue the white hostages held by Congolese rebels.

Tuesday morning, the column had to take the city's principal army base—Camp Kiteli—before reaching the downtown area of Stanleyville.

BRINGING UP YOUNGSTERS

Missing: Socratic Spock

By
KATHARINE WHITEHORN

LONDON — Roughcast atheists produce Roman Catholic offspring; girls from the rectory often feel a call to be call girls, and tough, pioneering parents are only too apt to produce layabout sons who play the horses.

Such is the power of reaction, in fact, that telling children what to think can often make them do the exact opposite.

As a beginner parent, I have noticed that there is a welter of instruction on how to give your child the right emotional, sexual, psychological start; and a fair amount about forming the teeth and strengthening the spine.

But there is very little advice going on how to shape a child's mental attitudes.

What is missing is a sort of Socratic Spock.

What about, for example, a right attitude toward money? The easiest way to make sure a child never thinks money tells you anything about ability is the one employed by my father: being visibly cleverer and poorer than anyone else, namely, a schoolmaster.

But if one is not either harder up or higher minded than the neighbors, what can you do instead?

POCKET MONEY

A firm system of pocket money can give a child a sense of its value, no doubt, but will not necessarily stop him being the sort of skinflint who would rather save for a rainy day than buy a month in the sun.

More: If you keep a child too tight, might he not merely envy his free-fisted friends?

Of course, you can reinforce the policy with a lot of scorn for anyone whose money shows: an equally inadequate attitude.

Money wrapped up by a couple of generations gets called breeding and taste and a sense of quality and so forth; but it doesn't leave a man any more able to do without it.

And being able to do without it is the one sure guarantee that he will never choose the wrong job or the wrong marriage because of the money.

ALLIED PROBLEM

There is, too, the allied problem of comfort. Most people of my generation were forced into a number of things that were good for us, like eating up our fat and taking cold baths (pretending to take cold baths anyway).

It is easy enough to say "no child of mine shall ever be so cold he has to dress under the bedclothes." But if you give him comfort from the word go will you not, like the bride the black nightdress, leave him nothing to look forward to? Comfort is, after all, a great consolation of age.

Will he not then notice comfort only negatively, so that the soft bed means nothing to him, while the spreading of the straw for bedding drives him frantic?

Maybe this is why people send their sons to boarding-schools: they want them to do their seven years' hard, but they just can't bear to watch. Still, it seems an extreme solution.

I don't mean mine, as I stand over him with a cricket bat urging him to eat spinach, but impersonal authority, government authority: the taxman and the policeman.

Obviously, any modern state in which everyone resentfully cheats on his income tax and fiddles the government contracts is simply inefficient.

But it is equally clear that too great a sense of orders being orders leads to a Prussian mulishness. I would rather hate to have a son who did not feel that, in P. G. Wodehouse's words, if more young men went around pushing policemen in the stomach the world would be a better and purer place.

I think perhaps the people who grew up through the very idealistic socialism of the thirties—or who were educated by them—found it easiest to get this one right.

Outstanding adhesion. Unique, flexible "S" type ribs developed by Seiberling gives more freedom of gripping action, no matter what the surface. The extra deep tread digs in for that extra "bite". A variable pitch centre groove gives more positive control, greater resistance to side-slipping. Angled bite blade notches give stop-and-go grip, particularly on slippery surfaces. The wider track means more tire surface in contact with the road for greater traction, more stability.

Outstanding wear. The deepest tread of all—18 32 of an inch—an extra 3 16 that means longer tread life as well as plenty of pull when the going is toughest. Because Seiberling construct the tire tread with natural tree rubber, it won't get hard and brittle in zero weather. Natural rubber maintains a consistency of flexibility unmatched by synthetics. Special additives in the rubber add thousands of miles and imparts a quality to resist excessive heat build-up that deterjorates rubber.

Outstanding roadability. The tire casing is constructed of NYTEX: 2 plys of tough, rugged Nylon tire cord plus 2 plys of Tyrex cord, both imbedded in a deep cushion of rubber. # Heartburn Haidas Find Heat in Time

Hal Malone

LOOKS AT SPORTS

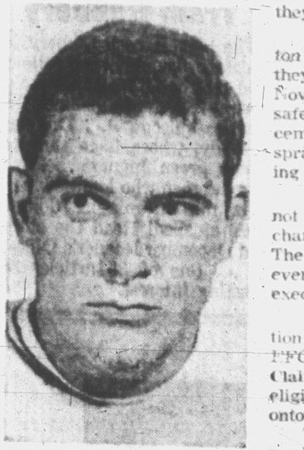
It's a well-known fact that The Times Casual Choices selected the B.C. Lions and Hamilton Tigers to collide for the Grey Cup.

As soon as the bouncer has thrown out that drunk in the back who yelled "Who didn't?" the proprietor of Casual Choices will proceed with his solemn duty of choosing the winner of Saturday's contest.

Eastern bookmakers like Hamilton by seven points. Bookmakers, like the rest of us, are never wrong except when they make mistakes.



DICK FOUTS

The gamblers go for Hamilton with the same confidence they have in December following November. This is a reasonably safe proposition as long as December doesn't have an ankle sprain or a sore back or creeping halitosis.

Hamilton, it says here, did not win the Eastern Conference championship. Ottawa lost it. The Rough Riders came up with every bad play in the book and executed all of them perfectly.

Such was Ottawa's dedication to burlesque in the final EFC game that coach Frank Clair was instantly hailed as an eligible candidate to handle Toronto Argonauts.

With the Argos Mr. Clair would at least find consistency. The Argos annually are terrible as often as possible, not just in spurts.

Balance rather than brilliance is Hamilton's surpassing credential. They have bashing backs in Johnny Counts, Willie Bethea and Art Baker. Few of the skills associated with a fine quarterback are missing in Bernie Faloney.

Tommy Grant was the best pass receiver in the East, on the end of Faloney's throws.

Baker and Bethea are restricted by leg injuries but coach Ralph Sazio patched the fullback hole by giving the job to Bobby Kuntz.

The result may be the same as patching used pants: you can shore up one spot and end up with ghastly ventilation in another. Kuntz has been the Ticats' middle linebacker, exhuberant and aggressive.

Like Refugees From Civil War

They point to the 16-16 score when the Ticats hosted B.C. on Sept. 26 as evidence, contending that the Hamiltons don't knock heads in earnest that early in the season.

No mention is made of the fact that the game was the third for the Lions in seven days.

Health was a major factor last year when Hamilton copped the Grey Cup 21-10. Sazio's Hessians didn't have a pimple. Some of the Lions resembled leftovers from the Civil War.

Paul Seale, corner linebacker, hampered by painful shoulder all season; and,

Sir Richard Was Quite Succinct

Time has matured the Lion's defence, a horde of assassins who cannot be blocked out or knocked down or, in the case of Constantinos Kasapis, pronounced.

In 16 league games they restricted the enemy to 10.5 points a game.

"That's the pattern," Joe Kapp, quarterback of an attack quaintly called the Kappgun formation, was saying.

"Our defence holds them to 10 points and all our offence has to score is 11 or more. That's the pattern. How you going to beat it?"

Fouts is a former Toronto Argo who blew up at former coach Lou Agase a few years ago and suggested by means of a homey colloquialism Low Agase could dispose of the Argos.

"Fouts is the one you notice from the stands," Skrien says. "He's a reckless. Takes chances and sometimes gets caught. But mostly he catches somebody."

Martin is hardboiled, immensely reluctant to yield ground. Ball carriers try to run around him, usually wind up not getting a foot and lucky to have the two they started with.

Cacic—One-Man Horror Chamber

Kasapis took over when Emery Barnes was injured and Barnes has not been able to get his job back.

Cacic? Well, he goes 270 and takes his work seriously. If Faloney wants to collect on his endowment policy he'll try the other side of the line.

If Faloney or any other Tiger eludes this quartet they will shake hands with Tom Brown. All—Everything on the livestock market, Mr. Brown has been known to shake hands so vigorously the opponent's arm falls off at the shoulder.

On a given day the ball can take a crazy bounce so don't rob the kiddies' bank.

On Saturday, with the usual unimpeachable guarantee, the choice is the Lions. By three points. Make it 17-14.

Haida Chiefs 75, Westminster Bakers 69

By HAL MALONE

"If we can play like THAT and still win, I don't know what will happen if we put four good quarters together," said Howie Tooby.

"Those guys," added Ken King, pointing to the Westminster Bakers, "are talking to themselves. They think they should have won. For a while I thought they were going to."

Tooby and King coach and manage Victoria Haida Chiefs, the heartburn team of the Intercity Senior Men's Basketball League.

The Chiefs were not exactly warm favorites to make anybody sweat in the ISMBL this year. They were even cooler choices to unravel the penthouse Bakers Wednesday night at Central High School.

They had more ups and downs than a Wagnerian opera. Near the end when Bakers were cooking on all burners, Chiefs managed to catch a hot hand long enough to pull the festivities out of the fire, 75-69.

Today the Chiefs share second place with Alberni Athletics, only two digits behind the Bakers whose pastry shows signs of falling apart.

Novices Sparkle

Two novices in senior company wrapped up the success but there was nothing amateurish about their technique.

With Haidas ahead 69-67 and apparently ready to fall right through to the basement, Mike Gallo, a dwarf among human telephone poles, culminated a dazzling dribbling display with a backhand layup.

Bill McDonald, Bakers' best bomber, capitalized on an open invitation to drive in for the layup which cut Chiefs' lead to 71-69. Ted Cusik could have knotted matters but obligingly blew two free throws.

With play at Bakers' end, bespectacled John McKeachie, like Gallo a splendid bench splinter much of the evening, tapped in a rebound.

Shooting Lapses

Bill Anderson, fouled as he tried to get Bakers close, pulled another Cusik. Two free throws, no points. And worse still, for Bakers, no rebound. Bill Wilson grabbed it, fired a long pass to Gallo and pop—ball game over.

Both clubs suffered spasmodic lapses in shooting. In the second quarter Bakers couldn't have put a pea in a bathtub. Their total 12-minute production was 10 points.

Chiefs, meanwhile, wrapped in 23 in the same span. Darrell Lorimer, playing the post with his old elan, hit for 11 points en route to a 25 point night.

Peter Simmonds, usually good for a bucketfull of baskets, had a matching set in the first half three field goals and three fouls. He came on late to finish with 16.

Potkonjak Missed

They offered two small but smooth guards, McDonald and Gord Betcher and a sure-handed forward Dave Way. Given too much latitude in the second half, McDonald almost tore Chiefs apart with 23 fat points.

An inexplicably relaxed attitude by Chiefs was more responsible for the frantic finish than Bakers' late surge. Fortunately for Chiefs, Gallo and McKeachie saved their heroics for the final minute.

As a basketball classic, it wasn't. But if your name is Howie Tooby and you coach a hot-and-cold club you take the two points and worry about the ulcers another night.

Sitting-Duck Totems Go Down to Sizzling Leafs

Sacred Heart Bells Clang

The bells are ringing . . . at Sacred Heart School.

After five losses in five games, Sacred Heart turned on Boys Club for a 26-20 victory Wednesday night in a Victoria and District Basketball Association midget boys' game.

By ERNIE FEDORUK

SEATTLE—Rudy Pilous had it figured out perfectly five hours before game time. The Victoria Maple Leafs' coach dipped one of his John L. Lewis eyebrows in a knowing wink and told Western Hockey League president Al Leader that Seattle Totems were due for a big tumble.

Fall the Totems did.

The Leafs, in a sparkling display, embarrassed the league-leaders 4-1 before the largest crowd (9,088 paid) ever to sit it on a professional hockey game in Seattle.

As Pilous reasoned, it had to be. "Here's a hot team. They've just won three out of four on the road and as I understand it, they're going to have a pretty good crowd out tonight.

The expected audience materialized and the result was somewhat close to the Pilous prediction.

The technical details were accomplished with the help of three quick goals early in the third period and a solid team effort by Pilous' hired hands.

Winger Bob Barlow gave Seattle a brief 1-0 lead midway in the match and that was about "it" insofar as hometown "entertainment" was concerned.

Lou Jankowski deflected a harmless-looking pass from John Sleaver four minutes later and the teams went into the home stretch on even terms, 1-1.

Rollie Wilcox set up Milan Marcetta perfectly in the first minute of the third period to put Leafs ahead 2-1. Larry Keenan and then Wilcox, scoring within a two-minute span, put it on ice.

From a Victoria standpoint, the offensive fireworks were fine. More distinguishable, however, was the manner in which the Leafs killed off penalties.

SEATTLE STARVED

WHL records will testify that Totems and the Vancouver Canucks have been living off their power plays. That's how the Leafs starved Seattle on Wednesday.

Victoria drew five of the game's eight penalties, including a five-minute major to defenceman Fred Hucul. Leafs killed off their penalties in superb fashion.

As a matter of fact, during one stretch in which the Leafs were shorthanded, the Victoria side was unfortunate in not adding to its goal total. Keenan, Gordie Redahl and Jankowski all missed glorious chances to score while Bill Flett was serving a minor for goalkeeper Al Millar.

TABBED WRONG MAN

Referee Lloyd Gilmour handled the game in fine fashion, as officiating goes, but he goofed on that one. It was Marcetta's stick—and not Hucul's—that clipped MacFarland.

The Leafs, thanks to Redahl, Sleaver, Keenan, Jankowski and the defencemen, killed off that major with consumate ease.

ICE CHIPS: Leafs roll on to Vancouver for a Friday night date with the Canucks and then return home for a Saturday night rematch with the Totems . . . New winger Dan Belisle arrived in Victoria Wednesday in time to accompany the Leafs to Seattle . . . he split shifts with Ed Mazur on the third line . . . Belisle made a fine play to set up Keenan's goal . . . The loss was only the second in 12 home games for the Totems . . . It was also the first time the league's front-runners have been beaten by more than two goals this season . . . Millar, a one-time Totem who plays some of his best games in Seattle, was singled out as the game's star . . . He was solid and had no chance on Barlow's deflection.

Rangers Get to Terry; Climb Into Third Spot

By The Canadian Press

They finally got to Terry Sawchuk, although it took them nine games to do it.

Sawchuk has been the scourge and the scrooge of the National Hockey League so far this season. In his first eight games for Toronto Maple Leafs he allowed a mere total of 11 goals.

Toronto, meanwhile, climbed to within one point of first place on a three-game winning streak that saw Sawchuk give up two goals in 180 minutes.

But the skein ended Wednesday night when New York Rangers bombed the 35-year-old netminder with 38 shots for a 6-3 victory over Toronto in the only NHL game played. The triumph moved the Rangers into third place.

The first five teams are bunched near the top with only four points separating them. There will be more jockeying for position tonight as the schedule sends all six clubs into action.

Montreal plays the league-leading Red Wings at Detroit while Toronto travels to Chicago to meet the Black Hawks. The third contest sends New York against Boston.

WIN ONE-SIDED

Two-goal performances by Donnie Marshall and Phil Goyette, plus 44-save goaltending by Jacques Plante, paced the Rangers to a one-sided victory before 15,925 Madison Square Garden fans.

Goyette opened the scoring in the first period but George Armstrong tied it for the Leafs early in the second. Then goals by Marshall and Earl Ingarfield within 13 seconds put New York in the lead for good.

Jim Pappin narrowed the count to 3-2 while Larry Cahan of New York was penalized but ex-Leaf Bob Nevin gave the Rangers a two-goal margin late in the period.

The Rangers romped away with markers by Marshall, while killing a Toronto power play, and Goyette, while Toronto was shorthanded, early in the finale. Allan Stanley got his first of the season for Toronto well after the issue was decided.

Although suffering his first loss in a Toronto uniform, Sawchuk was nevertheless brilliant on several occasions and stopped both Marshall and Nevin on breakaways. Plante's best efforts were two saves on Bob Pulford when the game was still tied 1-1.

Big M Admitted As An Emergency Case

TORONTO (UPI)—Toronto Maple Leaf hockey star Frank Mahovlich was admitted as an emergency case when he entered hospital about two weeks ago, it was disclosed today.

Dr. H. A. Smythe continued to refuse comment on the nature of Mahovlich's illness, but said "he was definitely an emergency case when he was admitted."

Asked how Mahovlich got a bed when so many persons were waiting for them, Dr. Smythe said "I can say that there will be no embarrassment to Mr. Mahovlich or myself when the nature of it (the illness) is known."

A Toronto General Hospital official said the fact Mahovlich is a celebrity had nothing to do with the way in which he was admitted.

"We admit our patients according to how their doctor classifies them—emergent, urgent or elective," he said.

MRS. CLAUS NO SANTA

Well, She Warned 'Em

AURORA, Mo. (UPI)—Mrs. Olive Claus, 43, who doesn't like to see footballs rolling across her yard, is in jail. Three of her neighbors, who own a football, are in the hospital.

The trouble began Tuesday when Warren Ormsby, 24, and his brother, Mike, 12, were playing catch with the football in the street. The ball rolled into Mrs. Claus' yard.

Mrs. Claus had warned the two before that if that ball ever came into her yard again, they would never get it back.

The pellets struck Warren Ormsby and his stepfather, Dale Daum, 43, who had entered the scrimmage. Mike also was struck in the left leg and side by the pellets.

They were listed in satisfactory condition at an Aurora hospital.

Mrs. Claus was taken to the Lawrence County jail at Mt. Vernon, Mo.

Grey Cup TV Rights Sold in One Parcel

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Football League Wednesday announced sale of television rights for the 1965 and 1966 Grey Cup games to BCP Advertising Limited of Montreal.

CFL commissioner G. Sydney Halter of Winnipeg refused to say how much money was involved.

The advertising agency, formed last January, has also acquired Eastern and Western Football Conference rights for the same years.

EFC rights were bought for $1,000,000, but the company has not said how much it agreed to pay the WFC.

Halter said "there appears to be an advantage in having the TV rights for all professional football in Canada held by the same organization."

Jacques Bouchard, president of BCP, said in a statement that his company is negotiating now with both the CBC and CTV networks.

Pierre Pelletier, a BCP partner with Bouchard and Jean-Paul Champagne, said:

"I should expect that the networks will continue to share televising" of league and playoff games.

Russia Chess Champ

TEL AVIV, Israel (Reuters)—Russia won the 16th chess Olympiad Wednesday with a total score of 36½ points out of a possible 52.

Ticats Are Yankees Of Canadian Grid

MACK BURTON
. . . two-way man

HAMILTON (CP)—Hamilton Tiger-Cats are to Canadian football what New York Yankees are to baseball.

It's the dream of every youngster to some day play with a perennial champion and the Ti-Cats have been just that since 1950—the modern era of professional football in Canada.

Hamilton teams have dominated professional football in Eastern Canada since that time, putting together an enviable string of victories that includes the national championship in three of the seven years the Ticats have been the eastern representatives in the Grey Cup.

The Ticats will be trying for their fourth cup Saturday when they meet British Columbia Lions in the annual fall classic in Toronto.

But because of the present Canadian college draft setup, Ticats have been limited in the number of Canadian boys with whom they've had the rights to negotiate.

'BEEN VICTIMIZED'

"We've been victimized over the years as far as the Canadian colleges are concerned because by the time you have the ninth or 10th pick, there's just nobody left," Hamilton coach Ralph Sazio said in an interview Wednesday.

The college draft in Canada is similar to that of the United States except that Canadian youngsters playing in U.S colleges remain the property of the Canadian pro teams who hold the territorial rights in the player's hometown. The clubs on the lower rungs of the standings also get the first choice.

He said he saw a lot of merit in a suggestion that all Canadian college players, regardless of whether or not they play in U.S. colleges, be included in a wholesale draft.

Probably the most prominent college performer the Ticats have picked up in recent years is standby quarter back Frank Consentino, a graduate of the University of Western Ontario at London.

The Ticats this year will have first pick of some of the top inter-collegiate players as a result of trades made during the last year.

However, while Canadian universities have not provided a source of player material to the Hamilton club, Sazio's pre-season rookie camps have uncovered several players of outstanding ability.

TWO PROVED ASSET

Joe Pikula from Brantford and Bob Krouse of Hamilton have been a definite asset to the Ticats since they were discovered at the 1963 camp, and Sazio says Mike Duffy, a 21-year-old half back and punter who is a product of the Hamilton high school system, could develop into a top Canadian prospect.

Duffy, who hasn't seen any action this year, is being carried on the roster as the team's 31st player.

Another player picked up because he came within Hamilton's territorial rights was Gene Ceppetelli from Sudbury, who developed into one of the top defensive players in United States colleges while at Villanova University.

But the Ticats junior development program hasn't provided any professional material. However, Sazio still hopes the junior teams here and at nearby Burlington will some day provide him with another Bobby Kuntz, Pete Neumann, Chet Miksza or Tommy Grant.

GREAT COMEBACK

Lions' Burton Defies Medics

TORONTO (CP) — British Columbia Lions will send a medical phenomenon into the Grey Cup Saturday.

He is Mack Burton, the first professional football player to come back successfully from an acute rupture of the achilles tendon.

Burton is only fractionally slower than in 1962 when he emerged from San Jose State College to make a sensational debut with the Lions in the Western Football Conference.

Now 24, he has spent two years in constant leg-building activity. He will take a three-week holiday after the Grey Cup, then go back to running in sand and "strengthening my legs as much as humanly possible with weight-lifting exercises." He terms this "artificial sprinting."

Burton's injury sidelined him just after the start of the 1962 season and left him riding the bench most of 1963. He had made the club as a flanker but found himself a reserve end.

CAUGHT THREE PASSES

In last year's Grey Cup against Hamilton Tiger-Cats, who he will meet again Saturday, Burton caught three passes for 33 yards, and his fourth-quarter touchdown was too late to make any difference as Ticats won 21-10.

This season as a full-time end Burton was a receiver sought by quarterback Joe Kapp when he needed someone to take a long pass. Burton's record for the year was 30 receptions and 536 yards, seventh highest in the WFC.

The ranking is a deceptive measure of his present ability, because he wound up the season in much better form than he began. He personally accounted for 100 yards of Kapp's 308 yards passing in the 33-14 victory that wrapped up the WFC final game of a best-of-three series against Calgary.

Burton promises to have special value in the Lions' plans for beating the Ticat pass defence. Even if he is well covered by a fast man such as Garney Henley, Burton will have a distinct advantage in catching the ball.

He was jumping six-foot four-inches as a teen-age high jumper and 26-foot as a broad jumper in college. He says when his timing is on he can usually out-jump any defender.

ABILITY WAS LIMITED

"When he came to us, all he could do was run pass patterns and catch the ball," Skrien said Wednesday.

"Now he has improved 1,000 per cent in his blocking. And he's a two-way man we turn to for work at defensive half.

"He's not quite as fast, but he's smarter and more deceptive. He has his confidence back and the squad has confidence in him."

It is predicted the Lions will have to establish a strong passing game to beat the Tiger-Cats, and Kapp's targets besides Burton will include end Pat Claridge, halfbacks Willie Fleming and Ron Morris and flanker Sonny Homer.

The patterns they will run Saturday are the secrets Skrien wants most to keep by closing workouts today and Friday to public view.

Three Aces Best Hands In Scoring

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Wayne Hicks, Bill Sutherland Ed Hoekstra of Quebec Aces are running 1-2-3 in the American Hockey League individual scoring race.

Hicks retained the lead for the second straight week with 28 points according to figures released today by the league. The burly right winger was limited to one point in two games last week but held a three-point edge over Sutherland.

Hicks has 14 goals and 14 assists for the Aces, who top the Eastern division. His goal output is the best in the league.

Sutherland has collected nine goals and 16 assists for 25 points. Hoekstra is right on his heels with 24 points on five goals and 19 assists — tops among the playmakers.

Gump Worsley of the Aces has the best goals-against average among the goalies, 2.06. He and Gerry Cheevers of Rochester Americans share the lead in shutouts with two apiece.

'Lift the Lid But Don't Rip The Sidewalks'

TORONTO (UPI)—Grey Cup celebrants got the word Wednesday: They can lift the lid off the town as long as they don't rip up the sidewalks.

The welcome, in those words, came from Mayor Philip Givens as a kickoff parade snaked through downtown streets from the palatial O'Keefe Centre to the somewhat grimy, ancient city hall.

Although his greeting brought laughter from the parade celebrants, it was assumed Givens meant what he said.

ARGOS RIBBED

Givens also made rueful acknowledgement that his home team, the Argonauts, had finished as usual in last place in the Eastern Football Conference.

As he welcomed each of the nine Miss Grey Cup contestants, he said of Miss Argonaut, "If the Argos had looked as good as Miss Argonaut, they would have had no trouble this season."

Wednesday's parade, a sort of dress rehearsal for the mammoth one on Saturday, drew only about 250 onlookers although it had been given advance billing by the festival organizers, the Junior Chamber of Commerce, and was held to catch the noontime crowd.

However, the Miss Grey Cup contestants had reasonably good weather for their outing. A slight drizzle held off until after the parade and the temperature hovered around the 42 mark.

HOTEL BATTENS HATCHES

The well-chaperoned contestants, one of whom will be selected as Miss Grey Cup Friday night, are: Lynn Allen, 17, Miss B.C. Lion; Carnoyl Taylor, 17, Miss Calgary Stampeder; Lorraine Beattie, 18, Miss Edmonton Eskimo; Deanna Bryden, 19, Miss Saskatchewan Roughriders; Holly Evans, 17, Miss Winnipeg Blue Bomber; Marilynne Baker, 20, Miss Toronto Argonaut; Susan Browne, 20, Miss Montreal Alouette; Noreen Stead, 20, Miss Ottawa Rough Rider, and Donna Powell, 18, Miss Hamilton Tiger-Cat.

Other than their public appearances, they have been quarantined in what has become, over the years, the unofficial centre of the Grey Cup festivities—the Royal York Hotel.

The hotel, the setting for a Friday luncheon and dinner for Miss Grey Cup contestants and the Grey Cup dinner itself, also on Friday, was booked to capacity for out-of-town visitors.

As in the past, the management took precautions. Portable hotel furniture was hauled away to safety from the main lobby, extra security police were hired and additional Toronto police were stationed in strategic spots around the hotel, largest in the Commonwealth.

AT ESQUIMALT FRIDAY

Gals Grab Spotlight From Hockey Heroes

Four luscious lasses will seek to catch the judges' eyes in the Esquimalt and District Hockey League's second annual Queen contest.

Heather Main is University of Victoria Vikings' hope; Ann Todd will represent Esquimalt Pontiacs; Barbara Middleton is Navy's pinup; and, Sue Burton is Army's nominee.

Mrs. Pat Dufour, women's editor of The Times; Dorothy Wrotnowski, her counterpart at The Colonist; Mrs. Geraldine Simpson of the weekly Esquimalt Sentinel and Reeve A. C. Wurtele will judge the contest.

Led by Ted Hurd, the stingiest goalie in the league (2.2 average), Vikings meet Pontiacs in the opener at 7:15.

Army and Navy renew their service feud in the 9:15 nightcap. The sailors will again go with newcomer Phil Frank in goal. Last week Frank was frugal in letting goals past him as the Tars topped the Chiefs 5-3.

Wayne Anderson is setting the pace with 14 points on six goals and eight assists. Three points back is Joe Iannarelli, who has six goals and five assists.

Victoria High School had all the answers for two visiting Cowichan High School sides Wednesday in English rugby exhibition games.

The senior Vic High Titans blanked Cowichan 8-0. John Phillips, with two trys, and Jim Howell, with a convert, accounted for the scoring.

Vic High's second squad blasted Cowichan 24-6. Ian Fletcher had two trys, Bob Breuker, Paul Chalmers and Ross Dawson one each. Harry Ruitenbeek checked in with a try and a convert and Jindy Johl kicked two converts.

Dale Robertson and Glen Brookman each had a try for Cowichan.

Perkins Heads Softball Loop

IAA Softball League fortunes will be guided by Gordie Perkins next year.

Elected with president Perkins at the annual meeting Wednesday were Tom Alexander and Charlie Stephenson, first and second vice-presidents; Ken Moulson, Diane Alexander and Donna Provan, executive committee.

With eight teams expected next season the league will investigate the possibility of affiliation with the B.C. Softball Association at the Senior C level.

Dancer Digs Money Pile

NEW YORK (AP) — Stanley Dancer of New Egypt, N.J., is harness racing's first driver to win $1,000,000 in purse money in one year.

The Harness Racing Institute issued official figures this week showing Dancer with winnings of $1,035,527 this season. The one season record before 1964 was the $816,659 won by Billy Haughton in 1953.

Emerson Spurns Offer To Join Pro Net Tour

SYDNEY (UPI)—Australia's Roy Emerson, who apparently prefers the tranquility of amateur tennis to the hectic pace of the professional game, has rejected a $75,000 offer to turn pro, it was learned Wednesday.

The offer, which called for a two-year contract, was made by Aussie pros Ken Rosewall and Lew Hoad on behalf of the Professional Tennis Players Association. It was the third pro contract offered Emerson since he succeeded countryman Rod Laver as the world's ranking amateur.

Emerson, who currently is competing in the New South Wales championships, is expected to announce his rejection of the offer formally later this week.

TWO REASONS

It is believed that Emerson prefers to remain an amateur for two reasons. One is his present position with an American tobacco firm, which permits him to play amateur tennis as long as he wants, and the second reason is his family, from which a professional tour would separate him for a long period of time.

Emerson plans to pursue a career as an executive with the American company whenever he decides to quit active tennis competition and for that reason is reluctant to leave his position.

In addition, his wife is expecting their second child in late March and she does not want Roy to spend as much time away from the family as would be entailed in a pro tour.

Emerson presently plans to go overseas on a private tour following the birth of his child. As a result, he will compete in European tournaments but will miss the Caribbean tour.

This is just as well with the Lawn Tennis Association of Australia which forbade Aussie players from competing overseas before Feb. 28 this year, and subsequently suspended Emerson and several others for defying its edict.

The LTAA, however, relinquished its ban in time for Emerson and Fred Stolle to qualify for the Aussie Davis Cup squad, which thumped the United States and returned the mug down under.

Picking, Packing Begins For $90,000 Holly Crop

The holly season is on.

From now until Christmas, David R. Philbrick, manager of Vancouver Island Holly Growers' Association, will be on the go seeing that 50,000 pounds of holly is picked, packed and shipped to all parts of Canada, the Yukon and the Northwest Territories.

Bermuda and Trinidad, British West Indies, sweltering in a temperature of 100 degrees or more, will also receive some sprigs.

Some may even be sent to England.

Last year the country which did more to spread the custom of using the red-berry leaves as a decoration, ran short and received supplies from Island growers.

On the London market the price of holly rose sky high—about $260 a ton. It could happen again.

"This year's crop is excellent, perhaps not the largest, but the best in quality I've ever seen," said Mr. Philbrick. "We started picking on some orchards Tuesday and packing started Wednesday."

Mr. Philbrick is optimistic that the holly industry will continue to expand.

90 CENTS A POUND

This year's crop is valued at about $90,000. It will sell in Victoria for about 90 cents a pound.

The industry received a serious setback in 1958 when large quantities of holly from the United States were dumped on the Canadian market. Growers were left with large stocks on their hands. Tons of first class sprigs were buried here.

About 90 per cent of Canadian holly is grown in Saanich, the Cowichan Valley and Nanaimo areas. But, there are large growing areas in various parts of the United States.

"We have made a comeback since 1958," said Mr. Philbrick. "Everything points to an expanding market, especially in eastern Canada where people are being re-educated in using holly for Christmas."

Geoff Vantreight, grower and nurseryman, who acted as the association's sales representative in eastern Canada, confirmed that this year's market was good and prices firm.

SALES ASSURED

"The sales picture is a shade brighter than last year," he said. "We won't have any trouble in getting rid of this year's crop."

Big Game Big Talk Is BIG This Year

Recreation and Conservation department has reported that up to last weekend a total of 4,973 moose had been bagged, up 594 over the corresponding period last year. The count is taken at Cache Creek on the main traffic route from the Cariboo and east-central interior.

Hunters also reported 3,291 deer, up by 363; 115 black bear, up 20; 198 caribou, up 44; 26 elk, up 12; and 4,025 grouse, up 833.

Decreases, most of them relatively minor, were reported in the bag of goats, sheep, grizzly bear, ducks, geese, and pheasant.

The department said non-resident hunters had increased by 111 this year to a total of 3,008. Resident hunter registration rose by only eight to a total of 16,499.

FISTFUL OF PENNIES NOT ENOUGH

Atomic Age Yule Toys Complex, Expensive

By TERRY IZZARD

Once upon a Christmas a a goodly man called St. Nicholas dropped a fistful of coins down a chimney.

Though he wasn't to know at the time he was laying the foundations for a business which today has reached multi-million dollar proportions.

His original handful of pennies would be about as much use to him in a modern-day store as a pop gun to a big-game hunter.

This year the toys on display are more complex, more polished and more expensive than ever.

At last manufacturers seem to have caught on to the fact that its the big baby in the family who dips into his wallet.

TOP FLIGHT

Gone are the push-it-yourself cars which always turned up on the top flight of stairs.

They have fallen foul of the "you-name-it-I-do-it" atomic age wonder toys which in many cases have their tiny owners licked for sheer versatility.

Like the doll which not only has a vocabulary equal to a two-year-old, but also wets its diapers, drinks milk, cries tears and burps.

Or the elaborately finished car which steers, roars, speeds up or slows down at the press of a remote control button.

No longer will the freckle-faced angels have to suffer the frustration of finding granny still live and kicking after firing a cap gun inches from her ear.

Now they can use the real thing.

HATCHET SALE

Drumming Indians, chugging trains, walking, talking, near-live dolls, humming tops, whirlybirds, space ships . . . they are all there in Santa's sack.

RETAIL SALES

Retail sales this year should top the $160,000,000 mark, eight to nine per cent up on last year and four times the sales in 1950.

Since the end of the Second World War the number of toy makers in this country alone has jumped from 15 to 145.

Introduction of plastics has had a lot to do with this increased business, giving almost unending scope to the number and variety of goods which can be turned out at an economical price.

This year manufacturers seem to have satisfied themselves with refinements and modernization of standard toys.

Maybe next year the kiddies will have their own make-believe fall-out shelters and do-it-yourself H-bombs.

Why not? In a few years time they'll probably be playing with the real thing. Then who's going to worry about Christmas toys anyway?

COMPETENCE CHEAPER IN LONG RUN

Don't Expect Bargain TV Repairs

The public shouldn't expect bargains from competent radio and television technicians, a spokesman said today.

"But it will be cheaper to pay a competent man his rate and get the trouble fixed than to pay an incompetent man and not get it fixed," said Syd Spencer, 1296 Richardson, provincial president of the Radio Electronic Technicians Association.

He was commenting on statements Tuesday by Rudy Adamek, local RETA president, who said Victorians may be playing $500,000 a year in unnecessary repairs.

Over the years the association has done what it could to clean up the industry but the attempts have not met with the success they should have done, said Mr. Spencer.

"To a certain extent the public is to blame for trying to get bargains," he said.

RATES LOW IN COMPARISON

There was an impression that technicians' rates were high but they were low compared with other trades.

Such tradesmen as carpenters and electricians were paid $3.40 an hour but a radio-TV technician only received about $2.25 an hour.

Just over half the $5 an hour charged by technicians is eaten up by overhead charges, he said.

The overhead included heat, light, business taxes, operating vehicles, equipment and licences to operate in each municipality.

Licences cost close to $100 a year for each vehicle. Equipment costs could be "enormous."

Some years ago, an American radio-TV company conducted a survey which showed it cost $2.86 just to place a repair vehicle in front of a customer's house.

Overhead costs were such, he said, that three or four good technicians in Victoria can no longer maintain shops and operate from their homes.

NDP Sets Last Meet At Centre

The hall recently was sold for $23,500 and one of the topics to be discussed Monday is what to do with the money. Investment is the most likely course. It was one of three halls owned by NDP clubs in Greater Victoria that have been sold in recent months for a total of $108,500.

The clubs have been liquidating their real estate holdings in favor of renting meeting space when needed and investing their capital.

THREE CLUBS

Suggestions that the three clubs would pool their resources in a common investment fund however are discounted by insiders.

Tuesday night the Mount Tolmie Club, which sold its hall to Saanich municipality for $22,000 in June for a road widening project, gave $2,000 to NDP Leader Robert Strachan for general party purposes. The rest has been invested and the 10-member club will meet in homes in future.

The third property, Douglas Hall, was sold to motel interests for $63,000.

Roebuck Backs Bank for B.C.

OTTAWA (CP) — The Senate banking committee was warned Wednesday that it might nudge British Columbia out of Confederation if it decided to toss out a bill to incorporate a new chartered bank in the province.

Senator Arthur Roebuck (L—Ontario), in an eloquent plea in favor of the setting up of the Bank of British Columbia, said Central Canada should not throw roadblocks in the way of progress by the other provinces.

This would be an effective way of "busting Confederation," the Toronto lawyer said. It could lead B.C. to a decision to join the United States—"its natural trading direction."

POSTPONED

He spoke as the committee considered a surprise motion not to proceed with the bill setting up the bank until Parliament revises the Bank Act. Voting on the motion was postponed until next Wednesday after a sometimes-hot debate which crossed party lines.

The motion, moved by Senator A. D. Hugessen (L—Quebec), said important questions of public policy and constitutional law were posed by the B.C. government's intention to subscribe up to 10 per cent of the bank's shares.

There was no precedent for provincial ownership of a substantial proportion of a chartered bank, and such ownership by a province could involve "the effective control of a bank."

OPPONENT

Chairman Salter Hayden had called for voting on the motion when Senator Jacques Flynn (PC—Quebec), an opponent of the bill, said it was not fair to make the decision so quickly. His motion to delay voting by a week was adopted by a vote of 16 to 10.

Senator Grattan O'Leary (PC—Ontario) said legislation should not be considered in the light of the possible damage it might do to Confederation. Either a bill was good or bad "and I believe this is a bad one."

Senator Roebuck argued that the bill should not be rejected just because there was no precedent for it. The bill fulfilled all legal requirements. It should go to the Senate for a decision and not be dropped by vote of the few senators on the committee.

If the motion is adopted by the committee and then the Senate as a whole the bill would be dropped from the Senate order paper. The report of the committee to the Senate would be debatable.

The same procedure was used by the banking committee when it turned down a government bill to fire Bank of Canada Governor James Coyne during the Conservative administration.

VOICES OBJECTION

Senator Ralph Horner (PC—Saskatchewan), an observer at the committee, jumped to his feet after the motion to say that the committee "has no business to pass this resolution."

He said the committee had earlier this season approved incorporation of two other chartered banks—Laurentide and the Bank of Western Canada—and that it would be wrong to "prevent this man Bennett from banking."

"I would go along with you if you had turned down the other banks," he said. "You won't get away with this."

Senator Alfred Brooks, Conservative leader in the Senate, said it would be unfair to vote on the motion until the sponsor of the bill, Senator J. W. deB. Farris (L—British Columbia), had a chance to speak.

Senator Farris, a lawyer, is making a number of court appearances outside Ottawa and told the committee earlier he may not be present when a decision is reached.

Senator Brooks said the bank bill should be approved. There should be no discrimination as far as the B.C. government is concerned.

FORM BRIDGE

Free Views Possible Inside UN

International co-operation between scientists helps form bridges for politicians to cross.

And international organizations exist in which scientists express opinions contrary to their own countries' official doctrines, says Dr. Patrick McTaggart-Cowan.

Dr. McTaggart-Cowan, former head of Canada's meteorological service, is president of Simon Fraser University, the new institution being constructed in Burnaby.

He expressed the views in an address to the Victoria branch, United Nations Association of Canada, on Wednesday night.

SCIENTISTS

He pointed to several independent, specialized agencies of the United Nations as organizations in which scientists often express their opinions freely.

He noted that one of them, the World Meteorological Organization, has more signatory members than the United Nations.

Dr. McTaggart-Cowan said that in meetings of that organization, Soviet scientists in at least one case expressed personal opinions contradictory to the known policy of the U.S.S.R.

"A scientist who talked nonsense because of party line in one of their meetings would be torn to shreds," he said.

He said that the United Nations has been most successful in non-political, scientific aspects of its work, citing progress in the non-political aspects of the committee on the peaceful use of outer space.

Nazi Backs Race Issue In U.K. Vote

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's National Socialist Movement announced Wednesday it will campaign on the race issue to try to prevent Foreign Secretary Patrick Gordon Walker from winning a House of Commons seat in a byelection.

Party leader Colin Jordan said the party will use the theme: "A vote for Gordon Walker is a vote for a Negro as a neighbor."

Gordon Walker was defeated in Britain's Oct. 15 general election in the Midlands town of Smethwick, which has a heavy immigrant population.

The winning Conservative candidate, Peter Griffiths, and his campaign helpers were accused of exploiting the racial issue to win the election.

Gordon will stand for election again in the East London constituency of Leyton, a so-called safe seat for Labor, where the sitting Labor member has accepted a peerage to make room in the Commons for the foreign secretary.

Favoritism Charged In Defence Projects

OTTAWA (CP) — Two British Columbia MPs Tuesday criticized in the Commons defence committee the heavy concentration of defence industry in Quebec and Ontario.

Figures presented by the defence production department showed that prime defence contracts in 1962-63 in four major industries—electronics, aircraft, shipbuilding and instruments—were divided up this way:

Quebec, $130,218,000; Ontario, $95,172,000; Atlantic provinces, $14,912,000; B.C., $11,686,000; Prairies, $9,246,000.

In the shipbuilding industry alone, Quebec received $21,618,000, the Atlantic provinces $6,674,000, B.C. $6,408,000 and Ontario $58,000.

Grant Deachman (L—Vancouver Quadra) said no effort has been made to diversify defence industry and that, in fact, efforts have been made to concentrate it in Quebec and Ontario.

Harold Winch (NDP—Vancouver East) said: "We are fed up with being the low province on the totem pole."

Compensation Probe Winds Up Hearings

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Royal Commission inquiring into the B.C. Workmen's Compensation Act ended public hearings Tuesday, but officials said no early report should be expected.

Mr. Justice C. W. Tysoe of the B.C. Court of Appeal, the lone commissioner, will have to review more than 7,000,000 words of testimony taken in 235 days of hearings before making his report.

"I can say no more than that it will take me some time to complete this branch of my work," he said.

He did not anticipate a need for further hearings unless he wishes clarification or amplification of any points during his review.

BEGAN IN 1962

Mr. Justice Tysoe took over the inquiry Jan. 24, 1964, two months after the death of the first commissioner, Chief Justice A. C. Desbrisay.

The chief justice had been appointed in February, 1962 to inquire into the province's compensation system for workmen injured or killed in connection with their employment. Public hearings began Oct. 1, 1962.

SYRIA FIRED AT PATROL

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — A report by Secretary-General U Thant said Wednesday the firing along the Israeli-Syrian border Nov. 13 started from the Syrian side. The target was an Israeli patrol that Syrian witnesses said had crossed into Syria.

YOUNG, NAKED, DEAD

Mystery Grows as Sixth Woman Found Slain

LONDON (AP) — A nude body of an unknown woman dead about six months has been found and linked with five other unsolved murders during the last year. All the victims were found stripped and beaten.

The latest body was discovered Wednesday, by a civil defence officer, partly covered with rubble in a vacant lot.

Police surgeons said the woman had been dead about six months and put her age at between 20 and 30.

On her left arm were tattooed bunches of flowers with the words "mum and dad" and the name Helen.

The body lay only a block away from Kensington High Street, one of London's busiest shopping districts. All five other victims were found in the same region.

The other, regarded as the more probable by most Scotland Yard men, is that a ruthless gang living off the earnings of west end prostitutes is using murder as its discipline.

The five previous victims all had convictions for prostitution.

Three of them, like the latest victim, had tattoo marks on their forearms. And all six women were well below average height.

There's no sign of anxiety on the face of King Constantine of Greece, as he arrives at London airport with his 18-year-old Danish-born bride, Queen Anne-Marie. The royal couple spent some time in England this month. The occasion—no official visit—was a shopping spree so that the king and queen could get their Christmas shopping done early. (AP Wirephoto.)

Queen Frederika

Will Queen Frederika End Up as Power Behind the Greek Throne or Royal Has-Been

ATHENS (CP) It is said of Queen Frederika of Greece that she has great charm, strength of character and intelligence—but absolutely no tact.

If this is true, lack of it was never any great drawback in the years she and the late King Paul occupied the royal palace and Frederika's voice was a power in the land, one to be reckoned with and usually obeyed.

But events of recent months have altered all that, drastically cutting the range of influence of the former German princess of the House of Hanover, granddaughter of the Kaiser and descendant of Queen Victoria.

And it may be that in the new situation tact is the one characteristic she will need most.

The death last March of the quiet, even-tempered Paul and the marriage of their 24-year-old son Constantine, the new king, have put a young Danish queen on the throne and relegated Frederika to Queen Mother, in Greece a sort of royal has-been.

It now remains to be seen whether the iron will of this determined woman, still only 48, will permit her to accept gracefully her place in the background, removed from the intrigue of palace and government she understands so well.

The recent widespread outburst against her clearly indicates that many Greeks do not think she will. They fear she will continue to exercise influence through her devoted son as it is alleged she did through her husband.

Although Frederika has many detractors who paint her as self-seeking and bossy, she is not without admirers both at home and abroad who insist she is the most maligned woman alive, slandered by those jealous of her talent for getting things done.

Because of her many connections with England—she attended an upper-crust girls' school there and has family ties with the British throne through both lines of her parentage and by marriage—she has long fascinated British writers seeking to fathom the depth of her personality and assess her influence for good or evil.

Generally they are divided in their estimation of the woman. But Reginald Peck, writing in The London Daily Telegraph at the time of the young king's wedding, said that to accuse Frederika "of either avarice or political ambition is wide of the mark to the point of malice.

"It is also somewhat illogical since, as queen, she already had practically all she could wish for of both wealth and influence. She was utterly devoted to her husband but the suggestion that her aim was to exercise power through him is absurd."

HAS RURAL BACKING

In Greece, where almost half the more than 8,000,000 population are peasants, her greatest support comes from the country areas, particularly in the underdeveloped north which has benefited most from her charitable works.

These are the people affectionately grateful for her efforts in promoting the queen's fund to assist the poor after the civil war, the Communist uprising following the Second World War that left the country virtually desolate.

She has also done much to promote Greek crafts, with retail shops and exports, bringing a new income to backward areas.

But even in these works she is criticized by some who charge that Frederika never turned her hand to anything except with a motive of improving her own prestige.

The heart of the movement against her has always been centred in Athens, particularly among intellectuals and Communist elements who, though banned in Greece, operate under the guise of various other names. But recently the Athens press, even the pro-government newspapers, also have taken up the chant against her.

Finally, Frederika took the unusual step of issuing a statement denying any political involvement and refusing the $108,000 annual allowance offered her. King Constantine interrupted his honeymoon at the height of the crisis to return to his mother's side.

The main charge always has been that, working through the late king and with her own connections in government, she pulled strings to get her own way, to cut through sluggish bureaucracy and even to manipulate the workings of parliament.

Some legislation enacted since she and King Paul succeeded at the death of Paul's brother King George II in 1947 does indeed show traces of the heavy hand of Frederika.

A 1952 amendment states that in the absence of the king, and if the successor is not of age, the queen would act as regent. Another constitutional change ensured that Paul's son, Constantine, would be heir-presumptive instead of Paul's cousin, Prince Peter.

Peter, 55, has been rowing with Frederika ever since the Greek royal household refused to recognize his wife, a Russian he married 25 years ago. Shortly after Frederika became queen the government formally deprived Peter's wife of the title "princess."

Many serious-minded Greeks say that the recent new campaign against Frederika rather overstates the case, that most Greek are not so much opposed to her personally as they are eager for an entirely new attitude in the palace. They want a more democratic—and less influential—monarchy patterned after those in other European countries.

And they feel that with a new young king and his teen-age queen, a representative of one of the most down-to-earth royal families in Europe, now is the ideal time for such a change.

Constantine, a gay prince-about-Europe, has long enjoyed the affection of an indulgent nation. Only recently, with the death of his father and the Greek-Turkish fighting over Cyprus, has he started to develop politically and show an awareness of the responsibilities and an ability to discharge them.

But the king knows there is always a strong feeling in Greece for the return of republic status, which existed from 1924 to 1935. He knows also that in the last 100 years one of his predecessors on the throne was assassinated, one was dethroned and two were expelled.

Most observers agree that if he hopes to save the monarchy he must not be—or even appear to be—influenced by his mother.

Greatest Church Preservists Found in the Atheists of Russia

"The atheist Communistic government of the Soviet Union probably spends more money in preserving its churches than any other country in the world."

This was opinion expressed by Mrs. Graham Odgers when she spoke to the Women's Canadian Club in the Empress Hotel, Wednesday afternoon.

"Although most of the churches are now kept as museums, they are beautifully preserved. Maintenance is not due to the Russians' religious sense but rather to their intense desire to hold on to all that is old."

She told how the same wish to preserve impaired progress, citing as an example the astronomical observatory outside Leningrad.

COMPLETELY DESTROYED

"When the Germans bombarded Leningrad during the Second World War, the telescopes were buried and instruments destroyed. The buildings were demolished.

"After the war the Russians sent for plans of the original buildings and built the observatory just as it had been. It would have been a marvellous opportunity to improve and modernize but they preferred to stay with the familiar."

Paradoxically, Mrs. Odgers pointed out that the Russians "have no sense of maintenance" when it concerns present-day building.

"Once the building is up, that's it. It's a common sight in Moscow to see comparatively new buildings with the plaster already peeking through."

She painted an everyday picture of life in Russia as drab, with women "all wearing scarves, very emancipated and doing road building, mining and other jobs normally reserved for men."

WEDDINGS ONLY

Clothes, she stressed, were unimaginative and dull. "The only time a man wears a white shirt is to a wedding."

One distinctive difference she found was the dearth of cars on the road.

"This is not surprising when you discover that drivers' licenses are hard to obtain. You have to be a mechanic to drive a car in Russia, if it breaks down you'll have to repair it yourself. Also, traffic penalties are tough—you can go to prison for the most ordinary of offences. The average distances between gas stations is 200 miles."

Mrs. Rodgers said that the most privileged class in Russia were university students.

"They receive 40 rubles a month and have to share a room with one person only while the masses are permitted only 50 feet of living space per person."

Food, said Mrs. Odgers is unbelievably expensive and scarce.

"My husband, when he stayed at the observatory in the Crimea had to exist on soup, cottage cheese and tea. There was no meat, vegetables or fruit."

She told of the frustrations of one western scientist who'd hoped that his dollars would help him to a better diet.

"He wanted coffee and was told that if he drove to Yalta he'd find an espresso machine there. He travelled all the way only to find that the machine was broken! Determined to have some strawberries, he paid $3 for three cans of them. When he opened them up, two of the cans had gone bad."

"There were 600 people living in the buildings. Hot water was only available two hours each week — so everyone scrambled to get a shave on Friday afternoons!"

Another thing that we take for granted was missing in the Russian capital.

"It's virtually impossible to find a lawn in Moscow. The climate's so harsh and the growing period so short. I know one woman at the Canadian embassy who struggled for three months, simply trying to order some good grass seed."

Contrasts also noted by Mrs. Odgers concerned matters of dress. "The Russians think nothing of changing on the beaches and the standard sunbathing costume for women, big or small, is a bra and panties.

"Yet, the school uniform for girls is a high-necked black dress, topped with a pinafore."

In addition to her talk, Mrs. Odgers showed color slides, taken on her two visits. She was introduced by president, Miss Elizabeth Forbes, and thanked by past president, Mrs. F. M. Corbett.

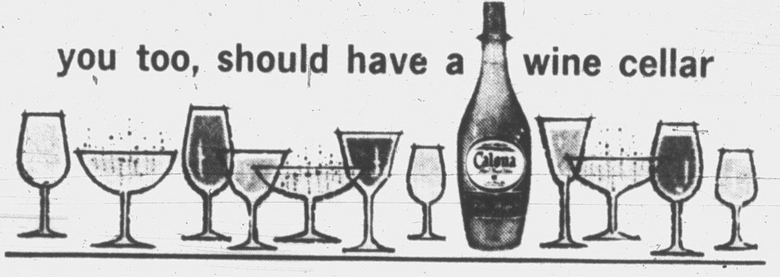
you too, should have a wine cellar



The greatest satisfaction and enjoyment of serving wine with meals comes from having a good selection of wines on hand, and being able to pick just the right wine to suit the mood of the moment and the menu. You'll be surprised how reasonably you can build and keep a wine "cellar" of your own . . . even five or six well chosen wines will give you sufficient to suit every meal and occasion.

Matching food and wines is a matter of taste — not of color — and there is only one simple rule to wine drinking . . .

Part of the fun and enjoyment of serving wines is experimenting to develop your own list of preferences. A good place to start is with the eighteen fine 'Calona' wines. Not all eighteen will suit your individual palate, but whether you like your wines dry, medium or sweet, you'll be surprised at how many you will like.

The following chart is an excellent starting guide of wine/food combinations, but don't be afraid to serve any wine/food combination that appeals to you or your guests.

| WHEN | SUGGESTED WINE | | SERVE |
|---|---|---|---|
| Before dinner and for light entertaining | Golden Wine | Lightly flavoured with lemon-lime | Chilled |
| | Silver Wine | Light, smooth, distinctive | Chilled |
| | French Vermouth | Dry and Pale | Room Temp. |
| | Italian Vermouth | Sweet and fragrant | Room Temp. |
| | Champagne | Bubbly, gay, full-bodied | Well Chilled |
| | Crackling Rosé | Medium dry, pink, sparkling | Well Chilled |
| | Still Rosé | Medium dry, light-bodied, pink | Chilled |
| | Medium Dry Sherry | Delightfully mellow, rich, nut-like | Slightly Chilled |
| Seafoods, fish, light meats, cheese dishes | Sauterne | Dry, golden white, full-bodied | Chilled |
| | Royal White | Medium sweet, robust, pale golden | Chilled |
| | White Dry | Medium dry, light | Chilled |
| | Champagne | Bubbly, gay, full-bodied | Well Chilled |
| | Still Rosé | Medium dry, light bodied, pink | Chilled |
| Roasts, game steaks and chops | Red Dry | Soft, velvety, full-bodied, dry | Room Temp. |
| | Royal Red | Medium sweet, mellow | Room Temp. |
| | Claret | Dry, pleasantly tart, medium-bodied | Room Temp. |
| | Sparkling Burgundy | Medium dry, lively, full-bodied | Well Chilled |
| | Still Rosé | Medium dry, light-bodied, pink | Chilled |
| Desserts | Muscatel | Mellow-sweet, golden, tantalizing | Room Temp. |
| | Canadian Port | Red, full-bodied, mellow-sweet | Room Temp. |
| | Tawny Port | Soft, mellow, medium-bodied | Room Temp. |
| | Cream Sherry | Sweet, mellow, rich bouquet | Cool |
| | Champagne | Bubbly, gay, full-bodied | Well Chilled |
| Special Occasions | Sparkling Burgundy | Medium dry, lively, full-bodied | Well Chilled |
| | Champagne | Bubbly, gay, full-bodied | Well Chilled |
| | Crackling Rosé | Medium dry, pink, sparkling | Well Chilled |
| | Still Rosé | Medium dry, light-bodied, pink | Chilled |
| | Cream Sherry | Sweet, mellow, rich bouquet | Cool |

WINE STORAGE — Wine storage is not complicated . . . any cool, dry, dark place is fine. 'Calona' table wines have modern hermetically sealed screw tops and can be stored upright. They're easy to open, and partly used bottles can be re-closed without flavour loss.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Countdown Begins For Out-of-Town Mail

By PENNY SAVER

In the post office yesterday, Penny took one look at the mailing dates listed and almost had heart failure! Some of the final mailing dates were almost due and I hadn't even bought my Christmas cards yet. What a thought! I immediately dashed around town to see if there was anything different or exciting in the Christmas card line.

The store I was in has a good selection of cards for the whole family, running from the humorous to formal greetings from religious themes to the sentimental.

One set of cards is beautifully illustrated by Victorian, Fenwick Lansdowne, one of Canada's leading wildlife artists. The face of the card portrays a bird, and backing it is a description of the bird and its habits. Inside is a seasonal message. These are available in notepaper form, too. Price of the cards is $2 for 12 cards and notepaper is 12 for $1.50.

If something in the import line is what you're looking for, the store has a selection of cards from designers all over the world. One set in particular portrays the famous "Christmas Carol", by Charles Dickens, and contains Tiny Tim's "message" as an inscription. These cards range in price from $1 to $4.50 for a box of 25.

Browsing around, I noticed cards with a more artistic note to them. The faces of the cards are famous paintings by such impressionistic masters as Degas, Corot and Millet. These are 15 cents or 25 cents.

For those who wish to send foreign greeting cards, this store has them with messages in French or German, selling at 25 for $1.50.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Stop and Take Stock of What You Should Be Thankful For

We all have so much to be thankful for, whether we are in the midst of a family group or alone. I wonder what you would put at the top of your list? I hardly know where to begin.

Lowman

I am so grateful for those I love and those who love me. I am thankful for my good health and the fun I get out of life. Good health makes it easier to be happy and causes life to move along smoothly.

I am thankful for the work I have to do and for the way it brings me into contact with so many thousands of wonderful people. I'm thankful for my readers and the stimulation and warmth and humor and drama which their letters bring me.

I am thankful that I live in a country of plenty and opportunity; where there is freedom of speech and action and religion and enterprise, where the standards of living are so high.

I am grateful for the beautiful world with its oceans and rivers and lakes, with its mountains and valleys, its flowers and birds, its snow and sunshine, its wind and dew, for all of the terrific variety in beauty with which nature charms us.

To put it simply, I am thankful to be alive, and I hope you are, too!

Stalls will include home baking, candy, knitting, aprons, superfluities, pocket books and plants. Tea will be served. Getting into the spirit of things are, left to right, four-year-olds, Aimee Shold and Allison Gladwell and Billy Gladwell, who is five.

Holly and Poinsettias Highlight Decorations at Bazaar and Tea

A Christmas theme prevailed in St. Joseph's Hospital nurses' residence on Wednesday when the Ladies' Auxiliary to the hospital held its annual bazaar and silver tea.

A silver bowl of large white chrysanthemums and greenery, flanked by red candles, centred the tea table at which Mrs. R. R. Strickland, Mrs. J. P. Flannigan, Mrs. W. J. Mosedale and Mrs. E. T. W. Nash presided. Arrangements of bronze and gold chrysanthemums, holly and poinsettias completed the decorations. The flowers were arranged by Mrs. C. A. MacGillivray.

The affair was opened by Sister Mary Ann Celeste and conveners were Mrs. Connie Baker and Mrs. H. Brand. Proceeds amounted to $5,412.

The highlights of a Christmas stall convened by Mrs. S. Howard, Mrs. R. Kay and Mrs. H. Beasley were copper plaques designed with raised flowers; feather wreaths and "money trees" edged with silver and gold. Also selling here were pink carnation corsages and a variety of Christmas centrepieces.

Little girls found their "hearts delight" among the array of dolls selling at a table manned by Mrs. M. Adkisson, Mrs. A. D. Blair and Mrs. G. Flynn. There were nurses, baby dolls and colored dolls. Rating "tops" on the list were pixies that could be twisted into any number of poses.

Baby bonnets, perched on an artificial tree, caught the eye of many a grandmother as she passed the baby stall. Assisting the convener, Mrs. H. O'Neill, were Mrs. W. H. Hayward, Mrs. A. H. Marriott, Mrs. A. G. Taylor and Mrs. L. K. O'Neill.

Gaily decorated cellophane packages of homemade candy made a "hit" with customers at a stall convened by Mrs. G. Bowes, Mrs. R. N. Grant, Mrs. R. Lindsay and Mrs. J. Fiddess.

Also topping the popularity poll was the home cooking and delicatessen stall convened by Mrs. E. J. Michaux and Mrs. A. J. Shipley. They were assisted by Mrs. A. Cownden, Mrs. H. MacKenzie, Mrs. A. Finch, Mrs. L. Soutar, Mrs. A. Staines, and Mrs. A. Effa.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Watch Your Manners!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I wish you would say something in your column about the "extra man" who thinks that with so many widows and divorcees around, he does not need to thank a hostess for entertaining him. These extra men, who accept invitations left and right as though they were doing the hostess a favor, make me tired. You never hear from them after they've accepted your hospitality, but they keep turning up at all the parties because, confound it, men are scarce!

KNOWS SEVERAL

DEAR KNOWS: If men are scarce, gentlemen are even scarcer. The extra man has no immunity from the social graces just because he's in demand. He should telephone his hostess the morning after to thank her for having entertained him. (If he's too busy or too tongue-tied to phone, flowers will say it for him.) And single men who accept invitations should play host occasionally.

DEAR ABBY: I just received the following letter from my niece and would like your opinion of it:

"Dear Auntie,

I hate to complain, but the next time you send me a Christmas gift, please send it in the box from the store it came from. Every time I try to take back one of your presents I am told it didn't come from there. This is very embarrassing. I hope you won't mind my telling you this, but I would rather be frank than take a chance on getting embarrassed again this year. Love to Uncle and the kids.

Sincerely Yours,
Sandy"

Have you ever heard anything to equal this?

Sincerely Yours,
"FLABBERGASTED"

DEAR FLABBERGASTED: Yes. This:

Dear Abby, enclosed is a letter just received from my sister:

"Dear Margaret:

Last Christmas I beat my brains out going from store to store trying to find three ties I thought your George would like because I know how fussy he is about his ties. Well, it's been almost a year now, and I have never seen George wear one of the ties I bought for him. If it will make your Christmas shopping any easier, my Paul would be tickled to death to have those three ties I sent George. Thanks,

DOTTY"

CONFIDENTIAL TO "FLAT-CHESTED IN FLATBUSH": Take comfort in the words of Giorgio, the Italian philospoher: "What a girl measures is not nearly as important as whether she 'measures up'."

Spadea Designer Pattern

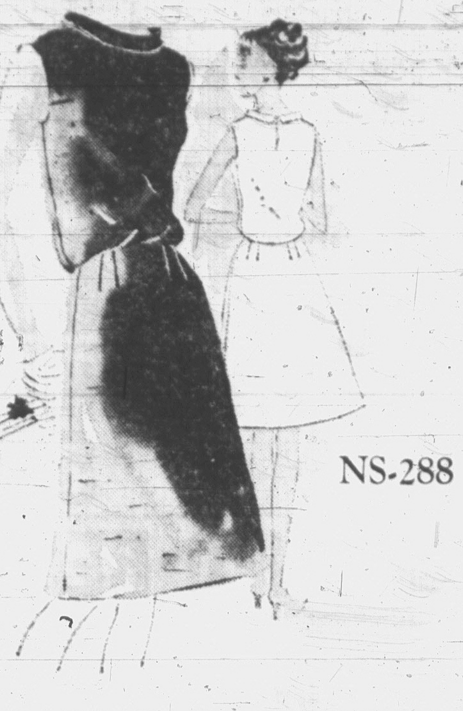
by Barbara Byrnes



NS-288

This is a one-piece dress even though it does not look it. It has only three basic pattern pieces—front, back and collar. The darts at the midsection continue up into curvey darts to make the blouson. Note the new highest bust dart ever, out of the armhole. It was created in shantung by Barbara Byrnes, a chic young new Parisian designer. We suggest any elaborate fabric such as brocade, velvet or cloque for the coming holiday parties—then linen or cotton for resort and on into spring with light weight wools. The dress has thin lining that is sewn in one with the top fabric, so you can still get it done in time! Spadea's exclusive ready-to-wear sizes produce a better fit. See chart for size best for you.

| Sizes | Bust | Waist | Hips | *Length |
| 10 | 34 | 24 | 35 | 16½ inches |
| 12 | 35 | 25 | 36 | 16¾ " |
| 14 | 36½ | 26½ | 37½ | 17 " |
| 16 | 38 | 28 | 39 | 17¼ " |
| 18 | 40 | 30 | 41 | 17½ " |

* From nape of neck to waist.

Size 12 requires 3⅜ yards of 42-inch fabric with nap for dress. To order Pattern No. NS-288, state size; send $1. Pattern Books Nos. 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27 and revised Duchess of Windsor are available for 50c each. Add 10c for postage on each book. Add 25c for first class mail and special handling. ## Heirloom Necklace Chosen As 'Something Old' Symbol

An heirloom diamond and black onyx necklace belonging to her maternal grandmother was 'something old' worn by Louise Caroline Pass when she exchanged marriage vows with Roderick James Noble.

Her floor-length gown of white satin brocade was fashioned with a portrait neckline and long lily point sleeves. The fitted waistline was enhanced with a bridal bow and a detachable train extended from the back waistline. A crown of seed pearls and crystal held her four-tier veil of soft illusion net. Red roses and ivy formed her bouquet. She was given in marriage by her father.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Pass, 2891 Murray Drive, and Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Noble, 1256 Oakmount Drive.

Arrangements of white and pink chrysanthemums decorated First United Church for the ceremony at which Rev. R. J. D. Morris officiated. Mrs. W. Gregory was organist and soloist, Mrs. L. Green, sang the "Lord's Prayer" during the signing of the register.

Floor-length gowns of shocking pink peau de soie with matching headpieces were choice of maid of honor, Miss Beverly Brookman; bridesmatron, Mrs. C. Marchment and bridesmaid, Miss Gladys Michael. They carried bouquets of white feathered chrysanthemums.

Murray Marchment was best man and guests were ushered to their pews by Jerry Ridings and Barry Pass, the bride's brother.

A three-tier wedding cake, made by the bride's mother, centred the head table at a reception that followed in the Chez Marcel. It was flanked by red roses and topped with a miniature bride and groom.

G. P. Burkmar proposed the toast to his niece.

On return from a honeymoon trip to the United States, the couple will make their home at 2555 Blackwood Street.

The bride's going-away outfit was a fawn-toned French tweed wool suit with red hat and purse and black accessories. Tiny red roses en corsage completed the ensemble.

TODAY'S RECIPE

ALMOND PRUNE STRIP

Filling:

3 cups plumped* pitted prunes, chopped,
¾ cup sugar,
½ cup water,
½ teaspoon vanilla,

Cake:

1½ cups butter or margarine,
1 cup sugar,
5 egg yolks,
1 cup finely chopped or ground almonds,
4 cups flour,
½ cup almond paste.

To Make Filling:

Combine all ingredients and cook over medium low heat until very thick, stirring all the time. Let cool while preparing cake dough.

To Make Cake:

Cream butter or margarine with sugar until light and fluffy. Add egg yolks and continue to cream until smooth and thick. Mix in nuts, then add flour, 1 cup at a time, blending thoroughly between additions.

Divide dough into 2/3 and 1/3 portions. Mix the 1/3, or smaller portion, with the almond paste; wrap and chill. Turn the 2/3, or larger, portion into a greased square pan 12" x 12" x 2". Use a spatula, or hands, to press dough into an even layer covering bottom of pan. Spread with prune filling.

Divide the chilled dough into small portions. Roll with the palm of hand on a flat surface to form a rope-like piece, or press with fingers into a long strip. Top filling with a criss-cross of diamond pattern of dough strips. If they break during handling, pinch the broken ends together right on the cake.

Bake in a slow oven, 325 degrees, 50 minutes or until golden brown.

Cool, then cut through centre into 2 long strips. Makes 2 cakes. (If you don't use both cakes, freeze one for later use.)

Festival Transformed Into Giant Art Show

It was evident that Victorians have their fair share of artistic capabilities, Wednesday, when the lower lounge of the Empress Hotel was transformed into a regal showplace for entries for the annual Festival of Christmas Decorations sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary to the Family and Children's Service.

Hand-made door decorations, centrepieces for mantels and tables and skilled samples of gift-wrapping vied for first place on the judges' lists in the various classes of competition.

Mrs. S. B. Smith and Mrs. A. E. Cooper were general conveners. A sum of $1,200 was realized and will be used towards the work of the auxiliary.

Topping the list in the first section of the miniature tree division was Mrs. A. T. Lowen who designed a modernistic tree out of the lids of tin cans. These were sprayed in tones of red, green and silver and were centred on a silver base. The trunk of the tree was wrapped in green ribbon. Second prize was awarded to Mrs. J. Bailey.

GOLD AND SILVER

In the second section of the same division, Mrs. C. Collard received the trophy for her gold and silver tree. She also received second prize in the mantelpiece display contest. Second prize in the former competition was awarded to Mrs. J. Fouracre.

It was a successful day for Mrs. Sylvia Wagner who "chalked up" a first prize in the door displays and seconds in two sections of the novelties. Her prize-winning door display was a tall golden candle made of seed pods with a base of fir branches. Rating a close second was Mrs. M. Woodward who also placed second in section two of the novelty designs. Honorable mention went to Mrs. S. O. Small.

Another contestant who walked away with three prizes was Mrs. D. W. Metcalfe. Pink and white bells arranged on sprigs of fir and centred with a pale green candle in a large goblet topped the poll in the Christmas festive table arrangements. In the novelty division she won second prize in the first section and first prize in the fifth.

Mrs. Nigel Tomlin placed second in the table displays and honorable mention went to Mrs. R. M. Phillips who was also awarded first in section two of the novelties.

Other awards in the novelty displays included: Mrs. H. Barber, first prize, section one; Mrs. Zara Foster, first, section three, and Mrs. R. N. Young, second, section three, and first, section four.

Christmas lanterns from Germany placed Mrs. J. G. Barnett at the top of the list in the selection of displays as used in another country.

Mrs. Barber was also presented with first prize for a Christmas gift wrapped in burlap and tied with gold-dyed rope. Nuts and bolts sprayed gold formed a snowflake in the centre and "Dad" was written in the corner with gold nails. Placing second was Moira S. Jackson.

In the student entries, Pam Trythall, Nancy Love and Melodie Spring, all of Oak Bay Junior Secondary School, were awarded first prize for their novelty design depicting the three kings of the Orient presenting their gifts to the holy baby, Mary and Joseph. The design was backed with a large sheet of music with notes in red and arranged on red velvet. Cheryl Small placed second and honorable mention went to Sheila Jones, Lansdowne Junior Secondary School, and Toni McPherson, also of Oak Bay.

A Christmas parcel wrapped in gold paper and tied with a huge green bow edged in gold glitter placed Michelle Jackson, Oak Bay Junior Secondary School, on the top of the gift-wrapping competition. She also won second prize in that division with honorable mention going to Arlene Zannet.

In the centrepiece class, first prize was awarded to Carol Whittaker, S. J. Willis Junior Secondary School, for an arrangement of red candles, poinsettias and fir boughs centred on gold-stained driftwood. Karen Burnip, Oak Bay Junior Secondary School, was second. Maureen Berger and Marg Campbell, both of Lansdowne Junior Secondary School, received honorable mention.

Bridal Ensemble of Pink Chosen By Janet Moysey

A toning overskirt accented the short-length gown of bright pink satin worn by Janet Diane Moysey when she exchanged vows with William Allan Waistell in Cordova Bay United Church. Her waist-length veil misted from a toning pill box headpiece. Pink net and ribbons highlighted the cascade bouquet of white carnations. Jewelry was a single strand of pearls and matching earrings, gift of the groom.

Multi-toned chrysanthemums were at the altar for the ceremony at which Rev. J. A. Alexander officiated. Organist was Mrs. William Mackey and soloist, Mrs. Sandy Robertson.

Parents of the principals are Dr. and Mrs. K. L. Moysey, 2225 Allenby Street, and Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Waistell, 5165 Agate Lane. Dr. Moysey gave his daughter in marriage.

Blue gowns styled on sheath lines and white whimsies, topped with a white flower, were chosen by matron of honor, Mrs. Jim Waistell, the groom's sister-in-law, and bridesmatron, Mrs. Jack Quinton, Vancouver, the groom's sister. They complemented their outfits with pink carnation bouquets, trimmed with white net and ribbons, and single strands of pearls and matching earrings, gifts of the bride.

Gordon Robertson proposed the toast to the bride's happiness at the reception and supper which followed in the Dominion Hotel. Two white doves topped the three-tier wedding cake which centred the head table. Frank Fischer played accordion music for dancing.

Everyone was there but the guest of honor when the Florence Nightingale Chapter IODE gave a coffee party in the Oak Bay Beach Hotel, Wednesday morning. The party was in honor of 88-year-old Mrs. Helen Baker and marked her 50th anniversary as a member of the chapter. Unable to be at her party because of illness, Mrs. Baker was visited later in the day and presented with a corsage of pink rosebuds and heather and a three-piece gold lustre tea service. Seen at Wednesday's affair are left to right; Mrs. Elsie Lowthian, municipal regent: Mrs. William C. Hudson, chapter treasurer and Mrs. Harold Menzies, regent. (Ian McKain photo.)

Gourmets Enjoy a 'Field Day' And Stalls Empty in Short Order

A fantasy of food highlighted the bazaar and tea held by the Sir James and Lady Douglas Chapter, IODE, recently, in King Arthur's Round Table Restaurant.

The home-cooking stall was sold out in a matter of minutes when those attending the bazaar caught sight of the delicious array of cakes and preserves which made this stall a standout. It was convened by Mrs. F. Dodsworth, Mrs. T. Smith, Miss G. Roberts and Mrs. M. Baxter.

Mrs. Elsie Lowthian, Municipal regent, opened the affair. She was introduced by the regent and convenor, Mrs. G. A. Vantreight, and thanked by Mrs. L. Brain, who also presented Mrs. Lowthian with a watercolor painting.

Another popular stall sold candy in a variety of types, varying from fudge to boxed chocolates. Mrs. Dorothy Warner and Mrs. A. Hayes were the convenors.

Hydrangeas centred the head table, at which Mrs. Vantreight presided. Seated with her were Mrs. Lowthian and Mrs. H. Menzies, regent of the Florence Nightingale Chapter, IODE.

The guest tables were centred with fall flowers, arranged by Mrs. M. Lougheed. Dainty sandwiches and cakes of all shapes and sizes were served to the many guests. Mrs. I. Carson was in charge of tea tickets.

Other convenors included Mrs. S. Thomas, raffle; Mrs. A. Drysdale and Mrs. Brain, white elephant; Mrs. J. Morison, mystery, and Mrs. R. Benson and Miss Margaret MacIntosh, aprons and fancywork.

PWA Seeking Place in Sun For Airline

VANCOUVER (UPI) — While Canada's two major airlines haggle over the virtues of merger, the nation's third largest carrier — Pacific Western Airlines—is waging a crusade for the small operator to get a larger share of the more than $300 million annual gross revenue.

R. H. (Dick) Laidman, president of PWA, says the lack of a national air policy is what prevents other operators from "logical extension of their routes."

Laidman described a national policy as the division of passenger routes between the established international and regional carriers.

Although PWA's earnings are up this year; it is not because of any government policy to encourage the growth of aviation in this country, he said.

A 48 per cent increase in total revenues were reported for the first nine months of this year. The gross revenue increase totalled $2.3 million, of which $1.3 million came from international operations.

BUSH PILOT

Higher revenue results from population increases, more industrial activity, and "improvisation and experiment by heads of the airlines, added Laidman, a 43-year-old former bush pilot.

Eight years ago, he said, the need for an air policy became apparent. Many rushed into air travel thinking they would make a lot of money.

The country was divided into regions, and PWA chose British Columbia and the Northwest Territories. The airline grew within these boundaries but it can't grow much more until Air Canada and Canadian Pacific Airlines resolve their differences.

The two major airlines have been at odds for years over international and national routes. Until the routes are resolved the "big two" maintain scattered regional, but profitable, services as bargaining levers.

These routes, said Laidman, are the ones the regional airlines want. With them the small carriers could consolidate their lines, get rid of inefficient aircraft, and buy new equipment that would serve the public better.

BEFORE JETS

PWA has leased two DC7Cs, the last of the piston-driven giants built before the jets. It also owns DC6s, Super 46s and DC3s. However, it also operates a dozen Beaver, five Otter, two Grumman Goose, three Cessna, and two Beechcraft planes.

By moving into more first-class regional routes, Laidman said PWA could release its bush operations to give the struggling carriers below a chance to climb up.

Laidman and other air executives hope Transport Minister J. W. Pickersgill will solve the issue soon. But earlier federal administrations have grappled unsuccessfully or failed to grapple at all with the airlines' problem.

Meanwhile, the regional carriers will have to continue finding new ways to create revenue.

NINE FLIGHTS

One way they have done this year was by moving into the international charter field. PWA ran nine flights last year to Grand Cayman in the Bahamas, and is getting ready to start winter flights to the area again.

PWA planes made 150 crossings of the Atlantic this summer . . . 75 charters.

"TCA and CPA say we're bleeding them of traffic," lamented Laidman. "We say we have found a new market."

Vitamin D Role Seen In Retards

BALTIMORE (AP)—A Johns Hopkins pediatrician says that a significant cause of mental retardation in infants is excessive intake of vitamin D by certain pregnant mothers.

Dr. Robert E. Cooke, pediatrician-in-chief and director of the department of pediatrics at Johns Hopkins, said there should be a review by pregnant women with their doctors of the amounts of vitamin D they consume.

He emphasized at a press conference that not all mothers are sensitive to vitamin D. But he said that excessive intake of it by those who are is "a significant cause of retardation of the more severe forms and certainly one of the most common preventible causes."

Vitamin D is found in homogenized milk, cereals, most breads, and margarine. Sunlight also is a source.

In addition to mental retardation, Dr. Cooke said, an excess of vitamin D apparently causes narrowings of major blood vessels of the body, kidney ailments, heart murmurs, and high blood pressure.

He said about 400 units of vitamin D daily sufficed for the average growing child, exclusive of sunlight.

Israelis Grill Spy

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Mordecai Luk, the "man in the trunk" who says he spied for Egypt, underwent intensive questioning Wednesday by the Israelis. Luk, 28, arrived by plane Tuesday night from Rome, where a week ago he was found bound, gagged and drugged in a trunk about to be flown to Cairo.

MADE $120,000 IN FEES

Bogus Doctor Still Has Supporters

DETROIT (UPI) — Thomas Novak, 29, who posed for four years as a physician and made more than $120,000 in fees, was sentenced to one year in the Detroit House of Correction Wednesday.

Novak pleaded guilty before recorder's court Judge Paul E. Krause to two charges—dispensing dangerous drugs without a licence. He was sentenced to one year on the drug dispensing charge, and to six months on the second charge, to run concurrently. With good behavior, he could obtain his freedom in 10 months, according to authorities.

Novak had a formal education through high school, and then casually attended some medical classes at two universities, though he never registered as a student at either one.

A court probation report, presented to Krause before sentencing, called Novak "insolent" and "egocentric" and said that after practicing for four years, Novak apparently actually believed he was a physician.

Novak, in a plea for leniency, said "I am aware that I practiced illegally. But I conducted myself as a physician and followed a regime of healing. Thank God, no one suffered, and I hope to spend the rest of my life as a physician."

Novak was not without his supporters, even after being sentenced to jail.

A former patient, Mrs. Lenore Devane, said, "They call him 'Mr.' But to me he'll always be Dr. Novak. He's brilliant and a credit to the medical profession.

Another former patient, Mrs. Lane, said, "They shouldn't send a man like that to jail. They ought to give him a scholarship and send him back to medical school."

VOICE OF BROADWAY

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

MISS MIDNIGHT'S NOTEBOOK: A special 20-minute featurette on "The Agony and the Ecstasy" is being prepared in Rome for release on theatres, on television, and at special group showings. It follows Charlton Heston as he does research on Michelangelo in Italy, and will be presented in lush colors. Having been present on various locations where the great painter-sculptor worked, and being impressed by the excitement of his genius I am one of the fans eager to predict that this film will be a classic.

Exera police details are being assigned to the Broadway sector on weekends, especially in the early morning hours when the dances let out . . . Paramount executives are delighted over the latest reports from theatres playing "The Carpetbaggers." It now appears that the movie will gross at least $35,000,000.

An unofficial poll at the United Nations indicates that Red China has enough votes to be admitted to the UN this session . . . Slum clearance has gone show biz. Director Michael Anderson is dynamiting sections of London for an explosive finale to the Sophia Loren - George Peppard spy drama, "Operation Crossbow." Of course, he received permission from the London County Council to bomb 200 acres of condemned city homes—meaning that Hollywood is doing its bit for Britain's slum clearance . . . Quote attributed to James Mason on the subject of divorce: "It can be cheaper than therapy and definitely less time-consuming." Well, quicker, yes; but the way he did it, really not less expensive.

GUY LOMBARDO
. . . true music lovers

LIBERACE
. . . are winning out

BROADWAY GUESSING GAME: A well-known actress, rather more famous for her curves than her ability, has returned to the movies after having a baby, and is concentrating on a fling with her leading man. Her bridegroom isn't all too pleased . . . One of those uninhibited-type movie stars startles interviewers when they ask the inevitable question, "How did you get started in show business?" He replies, "In Georgia, on the chain gang, where I got hooked on marijuana."

The singer offspring of a famous star is suffering from the problems of those who try it "the second time around." The bloom has worn off and it's not helped by his smug attitude toward fans; he doesn't want to sign autographs, glares at admirers and quickly gives the paying customers the message that he couldn't care less about them. Prediction in the profession: Don't bet he'll continue much longer. He never really had it and never will.

* * *

Flash for Wall Streeters and movie editors: Daryl Zanuck is flying in from Paris, Elmo Williams is arriving from London, Richard Zanuck is zooming from the Coast, and all the rest of the 20th Century-Fox brass from various points on the globe are converging in New York for a series of meetings on the company's 1965 production schedule which shapes up as the biggest in film history. Three more road-shows and 23 multi-million dollar products are being slated for production in the coming year, which is quite a bit of action.

Those in the know predict it's all over but the shouting, and Medicare will be voted in during 1965, although most citizens don't really know what Medicare means. They just think it sounds good . . . A regular at Cavanagh's does a whole-bit on a member of the Rolling Stones, the British group, trying to drink his soup and keep his long hair from falling into it at the same time. It's hilarious, and the teller of the tale vows he's an eye-witness.

* * *

Arlene Dahl's date here is a publishing company chap . . . Take a wild guess as to which two entertainers are proving to be the biggest grossers on the concert circuit. Beatles? No. Harry Belafonte? No. The Animals? No. Give up? The winners are Guy Lombardo and Liberace, so you can see that true music lovers are winning out . . .

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Yolanda Tkacs, age 11, of Bridgeport, Conn., for her question:

On What Tree Does the Mistletoe Grow?

The druids of ancient Europe regarded the mistletoe as a good luck plant. At certain seasons they went to the woods to gather sprays of its pale green leaves. The old custom has been handed down through the generations, and at Christmas time we often hang a sprig of mistletoe in a doorway when we decorate the house with winter greenery.

The dainty mistletoe is a parasite plant that makes a living by feeding on a sturdy tree. Its roots dig through the tough bark of the boughs or branches to gather the nourishing sap. It also uses the tree as a high perch where it can get plentiful supplies of air and sunshine, and sometimes it grows so thick that the tree is suffocated and dies.

Some people think that the mistletoe grows only on the oak tree. But this is a mistaken idea. It may date back to the druid priests of ancient Europe, who cut mistletoe from their sacred oak trees and gave them away as good luck charms. To the druids, mistletoe from the oak tree and only the oak tree held magic charms.

But the pretty little parasite is not at all choosy about the trees on which it grows. In the American woodlands, we find it thriving high in the boughs of the poplar or the sycamore. It grows also on the lime tree, among the dense evergreen foliage of the fir tree and also on smaller trees, such as hawthorn and locust. It grows also on the oak and the willow, on the maple and the mountain ash. We find it clustered on the boughs of wild crab apples and sometimes it invades the apple trees of a cultivated orchard.

Mistletoe Grows in Pairs

The pale green foliage of the mistletoe grows in pairs. The main stem sprouts pairs of twigs and each twig sprouts a pair of stems. Each stem ends in a pair of small, oval leaves. Even the milky white berries tend to cluster in pairs. In winter, these berries are eaten by the birds. The tacky seeds tend to stick and the birds clean their bills by rubbing them on the trees. Without knowing it, a bird may plant a mistletoe seed in the wrinkled bark. If he stops by a few years later, he will have another winter's feast of mistletoe berries waiting for him.

Every year, a few germinated mistletoe seeds find a spot where they can grow. The most likely place is a crevice in the bark, high on the branches of a woodland tree. It may be either a deciduous tree or an evergreen. The lucky seed sends down root suckers into the sap bearing woody tissues under the bark. The growing parasite takes its dissolved salts and chemicals from the host trees. Later, it sprouts its own green leaves and manufactures some, but by no means all, of its own food.

Courses for Baby-Sitters

By JACK HUTTON

Should all baby-sitters take some minimum form of training before accepting the responsibility of looking after someone else's child?

What is the youngest age at which one should accept baby-sitting assignments? Fourteen? Sixteen? Eleven?

Is it wise for any baby-sitter under 20-years-old to accept a sitting assignment with anyone else than relatives, friends or strangers the first two have recommended?

These questions, and many others, are receiving a great deal of attention these days as several thousand Canadian girls pick up their fall and winter roles as "parents-by-the-hour."

And the trend, I find, is for local communities to provide a chance for their baby-sitters to find out about problems they'll face. Not only that, but the vast majority of sitters welcome the opportunity.

Frightening

How many people can avoid panic when faced with a crying, wet baby for the first time? Not many, I'll bet, and I'm including myself among the cowards.

It should come as a relief, therefore, to hear that a 30-page booklet is available across Canada outlining the basic facts baby-sitters should know. Some parents, in fact, might take a few tips from its pages.

I talked this week to Judy Adams, not only one of the most charming people I know but also the editor of the Baby-Sitters' Training Course for the National Safety League. (If she's available as a baby-sitter I stand first in line.)

"British Columbia and Alberta have been leaders in offering instruction for sitters," she said. "But Ontario has been offering a course through community organizations since 1961. Its course is the one being offered across Canada through the National Safety League."

Seven Lectures

The course (it's available to local groups for $1 by writing the National Safety League, 30 The Driveway, Ottawa 4) suggests seven lectures that cover everything from body cleanliness to playing the family's TV set without permission.

I can't imagine a more detailed or helpful outline in any form. And I'd include experienced baby-sitters in that recommendation.

For example, name six qualities you believe a baby-sitter should have. If you've been looking after neighborhood children for several years this should be easy. Now look at the list prepared by the National Safety League.

It includes: dependability (do you follow instructions faithfully?); punctuality (always on time?); honesty (do you raid the refrigerator?); good manners (do your friends drop in later?); good appearance (sloppy jeans?); love of children (can you comfort a frightened 2-year-old?).

The booklet emphasizes something every baby-sitter should know before his or her first assignment; make sure the parents leave behind emergency telephone numbers.

These should include a telephone number where the parents can be reached, the family doctor, and a nearby relative. The sitter should already know how to reach both police and fire departments in case of emergency.

It's only fair, of course, that parents will also tell the sitter in advance whether people are expected to call later. And the sitter should accept these later messages politely, noting the information, for the absent parents.

No parent can expect the sitter to do something that wasn't mentioned earlier. I still remember the complaining letter of one sitter who said she was scared stiff by scratching sounds at the back door.

Family Cat

It turned out that the family cat was shivering in below-zero temperatures, trying to get back in. No one bothered to tell the sitter, who took all the blame later.

If you're still wondering about those first questions, here's how the National Safety League answers them. Every sitter should have some training. Fourteen is the best minimum age for sitters, and NEVER sit for strangers.

Happy sitting!

Paul McCartney, the puckish member of the Beatles quartet, has just commented he's glad that President Lyndon Johnson was re-elected in the United States. His verdict: Sen. Barry Goldwater, the other main candidate, is "a bit daft."

Wonder what Sen. Goldwater thinks of Paul McCartney?

Pen Pals

Looking for friends in a warm climate? Here's our weekly list, this time from Dinthill Technical High School in Jamaica. Hobbies are included in brackets.

Birth Pill Controversy Not Resolved by Vatican

By BENNET M. BOLTON

VATICAN CITY (AP) The Vatican ecumenical council's 1964 session left birth control an issue still unresolved, but it posed questions that imply the possibility of historic changes in church teaching:

Some of the council's prelates took the floor during debate on Family planning and marriage morality to ask:

Might not centuries of church teaching have been misfocused?

Might not the Roman Catholic moral laws on conception be in direct conflict with the need of man and wife to express their mutual love physically?

Experts see in such challenges to traditional teaching raised by Cardinals Paul-Emile Leger of Montreal, Loe Jozef Suenens of Belgium and others a milestone in Catholic thinking on birth control, even though official Catholic teaching remains unchanged.

That teaching long has been that procreation is the one chief purpose of marriage, that any interference with sexual intercourse by means of interruption or the use of contraceptive devices is sinful.

WINS ACCEPTANCE

In recent decades the rhythm system to avoid pregnancy has won conditional church acceptance, and in the last few years Catholics have been told they can follow it to space out their families, if they consider it necessary, without consulting a priest.

Pope Pius XI and Pope Pius XII reinforced such teaching. The latest high-level debate on birth control follows the development of contraceptive pills.

In 1958, Pope Pius XII said a woman might use pills to check uterine ailments if she did so without intent to check fecundation even if that was temporary result. But he called use of pills to prevent pregnancy "illicit sterilization."

Contraceptive pills were not in general use at the time Pius made his statement. In recent years some Catholic theologians have suggested the pills might be used in connection with the rhythm system.

The Vatican council's schema (craft decree) on the church in the modern world includes a section on marriage and family. It notes that science and psychology have made recent advances and gained new insights affecting the biology and the human relations of marriage. It said Catholic couples often face serious problems in having to spend weeks physically apart, thereby avoiding pregnancy but at the same time becoming almost strangers. It asked them to be patient while experts look into theological and scientific possibilities.

STUDY PLANNED

Neither the schema nor the cardinals and bishops who spoke about birth control last month pushed for any council action on the new pills. Pope Paul announced five months ago they would be the subject of a special study "as wide and profound as possible, as grave and honest as it must be on a subject of such importance."

Most speakers endorsed the Pope's announced study. Some suggested that the council authorize a commission of its own to work with the Pope's experts. Several also praised the modern world schema for avoiding a distinction that sees procreation as marriage's chief end and conjugal love as secondary.

But the speeches of progressives went deeper than that.

"Do we not have the right to ask ourselves if certain official positions flow from concepts that have now been surpassed, or perhaps also from a bachelor psychosis about a sector of life to which we are strangers?"

He said countless Catholics find themselves having to live contrary to church law "because they are unable to discover a viable solution for two contradictory commands: Conscience and normal conjugal life." The bearded patriarch questioned whether "God truly wishes this impasse, which is so oppressive and against nature."

BRINGS UP MATTER

Cardinal Leger of Montreal brought up the matter of contraception, saying the child-bearing duty should not be tied to each individual act of intercourse.

The Canadian cardinal said he thought it wise that the schema made no distinction of primary and secondary goals in marriage. But it does little good "if the schema does not speak of conjugal love except in so far as it has relation to fecundity," he added.

Cardinal Suenens of Brussels urged the council not to be afraid of re-examining traditional church moral laws on marriage. He said studies of Pope Paul's commission of experts might lead to a more exact idea of what is "in accord with or contrary to nature" in marriage and contraception.

Some conservative prelates argued against change.

"We have a body of certain doctrine," said Michael Cardinal Browne, an Irish member of the Vatican curia. "The primary end of marriage is the procreation and education of children."

The greatest significance of those two days of debate, according to a moral theologian assigned to the council, was that attitudes were being aired which "no one would have dared bring up a few years ago."

Handbook Gives Detail About Humming Fish

Have you ever caught a "singer," a fish which actually hums?

If you haven't you can find out all about the fish in a new provincial museum handbook entitled "Some Common Marine Fishes of British Columbia."

The author is Dr. Clifford Carl, director of the museum, who has probably done more than any person in B.C. to promote interest in marine life.

The booklet's main purpose is to assist sportsmen to identify some of their catches and to provide general information on some of the common species found in coastal waters.

270 SPECIES

There are 270 species known to occur in B.C. waters, but Dr. Carl felt is was impractical and unnecessary to include them, all as most of them are rarely seen.

So he selected fish which are most likely to be seen by the average person who visits beaches or goes out boating. Skin divers will also find the booklet useful.

It's Dr. Carl's fifth contribution to the popular museum handbook series designed to promote interest in natural history. One of his most popular publications is his "Guide to Marine Life in B.C."

The Vancouver-born author whose interests range from tiny insects to whales is a specialist in marine and fresh water life. He has done several movies dealing with sea life which have been shown in many parts of the United States and Canada.

Dr. Carl also contributes a nature column to the Victoria Times.

Liberals Blasted By Union

OTTAWA (CP) The Canadian Union of Public Employees CLC today criticized the Saskatchewan government for "turning back the clock by withdrawing from the civil servants of that province the right to political activity."

A statement issued by the union's national executive said the move is a direct breach of the promises made by Premier Thatcher's Liberal government before and after the last provincial election.

The union, second largest in Canada with 86,000 members, said the step was even more regrettable because it came at a time when the Ontario and Quebec governments have been moving to increase the rights of civil servants.

City Man Wins Scholarship

James McEvay of Nu-Way Cleaners Limited, 416 William St., has been named as one of four Canadian winners of a Dow Chemical Company Limited scholarship.

It provides an all-expense paid four-week management course at the National Institute of Drycleaning in Silver Spring, Maryland, early in January.

Fred McEvay of the same firm was winner of the Dow scholarship in 1962.

Goldwater Tone Tied To Liberal

REGINA (CP) The voice of defeated United States Republican leader Barry Goldwater was heard at the Saskatchewan Liberal party's convention in Saskatoon, W. C. Beeching, provincial Communist Party leader said here Wednesday.

Mr. Beeching said in an interview he was referring to an address to the convention by Republican Governor Tim Babcock of Montana.

Premier Thatcher has voiced "extreme right-wing ideas on several occasions," and it is impossible to conceal "serious public concern" about some of his extreme positions, Mr. Beeching said.

Mr. Beeching said the premier used Mr. Babcock to "smuggle in his reactionary philosophy."

"This act alone confirms that the charge of 'Goldwaterism' levelled at Mr. Thatcher was well merited," he said.

Norway Claims Sea Mineral Right

OSLO—Norway is to claim all rights to minerals in the sea bottom on the continental shelf, stretching 360 miles northwards from the tip of Northern Norway to the Spitsbergen Islands and also the shelf surrounding the Archipelago.

This means that Norway claims sovereignty over the sea bottom stretching towards the North Pole and far into the Barents Sea, north of the Soviet Union.

Sovereignty over the shelf has become increasingly important to Norway in view of the growing foreign interest in oil prospecting in the area.

Under a treaty of 1920 the great powers and other interested nations gave Norway sovereignty over the Spitsbergen Islands on certain conditions: The citizens and companies of the signatory powers were to have equal rights to exploit the islands' resources, and military installations were banned.

Norway officially took over the administration of the islands in 1925.

According to the Oslo newspaper "Aftenposten," Norwegian authorities now claim that the treaty affects only the estimated 24,295 square miles of land in the Archipelago and not the continental shelf on which the islands are situated.

Russian, American, French and Norwegian companies have for several years been prospecting for oil in Spitsbergen, where both Norway and the Soviet Union have important coal mines.

The American Caltex company has been given 201 concessions for exploiting oil resources there, each concession to cover an area of about four square miles.

The Russians have several times asked for similar concessions but so far their requests have been rejected.

A new Soviet application is under consideration.

So far the Russian requests have been rejected because the areas involved have not been properly marked and because the Soviet Union has not presented sufficient geological indications of the existence of oil resources in the areas concerned.

During his visit to Norway last June, then-premier Nikita Khrushchev called for co-operation between Norway and Russia on the exploitation of oil resources in the Spitsbergen area, but he did not make it clear whether he wanted co-operation under the present treaty or a special agreement which would favour Russia.

RECENT TALK

Norway's reported intention to claim sovereignty over the continental shelf must be seen in the light of a recent statement by the director Ozauj Dporwegian Polar Institute, Tore Gjelsvik, that the possibilities for finding oil are greater there than on the Spitsbergen Islands.

He particularly noted the prospects under the Barents Sea.

Coast Guardsmen Die

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) Two Coast Guardsmen were drowned and two others were rescued when a 24-foot motor cargo boat sank in Cook Inlet Sunday.

The boat was en route from the Coast Guard cutter Sedge to an aid-to-navigation light at Kalgin Island, 12 miles southwest of Anchorage, which the Sedge was servicing.

Mobile Military Arm Centred in Ontario

(Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA—Establishment of a highly mobile military force stationed at Camp Petawawa in Ontario, transportable by air so that it can be used anywhere in the world with a minimum elapse of time—is now under way, it was learned from informed defence source today.

More than 3,000 men are involved.

They will be portable by air and where necessary will be dropped by parachute.

The department intends to make an announcement shortly of the formation of the special service force.

It is proposed to undertake a gradual conversion of the fourth brigade into the special force. It will be provided with airportable and all-dropable equipment. It will be trained to perform a variety of military tasks.

It will be transportable by the fleet of 12 Hercules. Where necessary it will be provided with its own close ground support in the form of fighter planes to knock out tanks or other obstacles.

When it is finally trained it will be geared to take off at a moment's notice with a minimum elapse of time.

VANCOUVER (CP) Helen Lynn Hughes, an American folk singer convicted here of narcotics possession, was told Tuesday not to return to Canada for two years when she appeared in magistrate's court. Suspended sentences on the same charge were handed to George Selman, 23, and William Bissett, 24.

COBBLE HILL — Community halls here should be taken over by Cowichan district school board for use as activity rooms for schools.

The statement was made Wednesday by former school trustee George Bonner.

The halls could also be used for sports and district meetings, Mr. Bonner said.

The Cobble Hill hall is owned by the local Farmers' Institute and the Shawnigan hall by Shawnigan Community Club.

Mr. Bonner said neither of the groups make enough money in rentals for upkeep and "would be better off turning the buildings over to the school district without any cost to the school board."

They Stole To Live

NANAIMO Two boys who slept in barns and sheds and lived from food they stole from houses after they escaped from the Brannen Lake Industrial School were recaptured Tuesday.

Police said the boys committed a number of petty thefts in the district during the last week. When they needed food they would clean out the refrigerator of a home from which the occupants were absent.

From the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Moffat they took a roast of beef, pork chops, two pounds of butter, cheese, brown sugar, a dozen eggs and a loaf of bread, a small transistor radio and a box to carry the food.

DON SUTHERLAND DISPLAYS OPERATING TECHNIQUE
. . . Open House at Nanaimo Fisheries Research Station

Fish Greater B.C. Resource Than Water Power: Official

NANAIMO Dr. S. R. Hayes, chairman of the Fisheries Research Board of Canada, said Wednesday it would be "a crime" to destroy B.C.'s fishing industry in constructing power dams on the province's rivers.

Dr. Hayes said at a tour of the board's Nanaimo biological station he considers fish a much more important resource than waterpower.

The station is to be thrown open to the fishing industry today and the public Friday and Saturday in an "open house."

Dr. Hayes said few people can understand the language of science. "Consequently nobody knows what we are doing here. An open house like this will establish communication between ourselves and the public."

The station has five major fields of research.

One of its most important duties is provision of scientific data for management of commercial fisheries.

A second field is its part in fulfilling Canada's research commitments in international treaties on Pacific coast fisheries.

Another part of the work carried on at the station is a study of the damaging effects of industrial pollution and water pollution research and relating findings to sea life.

The development and modification of fishing gear and exploration of new fishing grounds is another service to industry.

The fifth field of service is the provision of an oceanographic information centre similar in concept to a weather office.

MOVING EXPERIENCE

'Great Love' For a 'Cello

By JOAN MASON HURLEY

A thousand privileged Victorians sat in the presence of greatness at the Royal Theatre Wednesday night.

It was an immensely moving experience.

The man was Daniel Shafran, the 'cello a 1630 Amati. The combination, with superb accompanying by Nina Musinian, Shafran's wife, was one not likely to be forgotten in one's lifetime.

This "Honored Artist of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic," one of only a handful of musicians so designated, was the living and breathing embodiment of music.

In the love of the truly great artist for his art, Shafran reminded one of Karsh's unforgettable symbolic portrait of Pabol Casals, alone with his instrument, his back to the camera and the world.

Seldom if ever does one see a musician so utterly wrapped in his music.

Shafran played with a composure and a dignity, with no mannerisms of any kind, with nothing to distract from the notes which poured over one and transcended all mortal things.

The audience paid tribute to this greatness in the complete attention and utter stillness with which they listened.

There was fantastic teamwork between the piano and the 'cello. Miss Musinian's playing was at all times perfectly in accord with that of her husband. The dynamics were incredible.

At one moment it seemed as if a whole chamber orchestra was on the stage, at another a single mellifluous note would melt until it was only a thread of tenuous sound growing finer and finer until it disappeared into the darkness of the theatre.

The program was one which displayed the virtuoso qualities of the instrument and gave the greatest variety.

It opened with the delicate haunting Sonata No. 2 in F Major by Brahms. In contrast came a typically Russian and delightful Sonata in D Minor by Shostakovich.

The gay and tuneful Sonata in A Minor by Schubert was followed by Suite Populaire Espagnole of De Falla.

The second theme of this last was almost too lovely to be borne.

In response to overwhelming applause and many shouts of "Bravo," the audience was rewarded with three encores.

The Soviet government purchased the Amati for Shafran in 1937 when he was 14 years old, paying 30,000 rubles for it. Surely, more than 300 years, this treasured instrument has never been more magnificently played.

Comedy Repeated Saturday

Oak Bay Junior Secondary School will again house an audience of delighted youngsters Saturday.

Bastion Theatre Studio's latest play for children, Trapped; or Slyvester Saves the Day, directed by Peter Mannering, will be performed at 1 p.m. and 2:30.

An original comedy with music by Tom Hendry of Canadian Players, it generated squeals of joy and gales of laughter last Saturday from a young audience and a sprinkling of appreciative adults.

The story tells of two unwilling burglars who finally help to save the family jewels instead of stealing them.

Dorothea House plays with consistent energy as the housekeeper. Stan Bowles, Doris Exton, Wayne Fines and Art Penson all give well-defined characterizations.

These will be the last two public performances of this thoroughly enjoyable entertainment.

Racing Pigeon Show Planned

The annual 1964 winter racing pigeon show will be held this Saturday and Sunday at the Jubilee Hall on Fraser Street.

Judges will be George Standinger and George Shanks, well-known pigeon fanciers from Rossland, B.C.

The show is expected to attract 400 entries, making it the biggest racing pigeon show west of Toronto. Entries will come from B.C. and Alberta.

'Why Are Mail Boxes Open for Reds?'

OTTAWA (CP) — David Stanley, 20, of Toronto, who has twice lost the use of post office boxes because of the literature being sent through them, told a post office review board Wednesday that it had "the whole democratic Canadian system of government on trial."

Mr. Stanley is one of two persons—the other is John Ross Taylor of Gooderham, Ont.—representing the National States Rights party of Birmingham, Ala., before the board which is studying a mail ban against the party's tabloid Thunderbolt.

Mr. Stanley said "international influences" were behind the postmaster-general's order. He tabled a series of Communist-slanted publications, and a homosexual magazine, which he said are given Canadian mailing privileges.

"Why has the government taken action against the patriotic side alone? For Communist subversion, why are the boxes allowed to stay open?"

PULLED OFF NORTH ATLANTIC

Sailor Shortage 'Sinks' Warships

HALIFAX, N.S. (UPI) — Six old warships have been ordered off the North Atlantic because the Royal Canadian Navy is critically short of skilled sailors, the navy announced Wednesday night.

Four wartime frigates and two postwar destroyers in the Atlantic fleet were pulled out of operational service last week, but are being kept ready for action to maintain Canada's NATO commitment.

A naval spokesman said officially the six vessels were berthed at dockyard jetties last Wednesday because of a "manpower imbalance," too many skilled sailors in some trades and not enough men in others.

The spokesman estimated "upwards of 400" highly skilled men were required before the vessels could sail again under normal conditions. In case of emergency, students could be used, he said.

Navy lingo describes the berthed battleships as a "black squadron." Some 300 officers and men are now aboard, compared with the normal complement of about 1,000.

The navy spokesman said Canada's numerical commitment to NATO, in terms of the RCN's Atlantic fleet, was 28 vessels. The six ships tied up because of the shortage are included.

The four frigates, or "ocean escorts," involved are: HMCS Outremont, Victoriaville, La Hulloise and Inch Arran, all of which are at least 20 years old.

The two destroyer escorts involved are HMCS Athabaskan, constructed in 1948 and now last of the Tribal Class vessels, and HMCS Crescent, which is an Algonquin Class destroyer built in 1945.

"We have temporarily reorganized the allocation of the fleet to meet an imbalance in certain technical trades," the navy spokesman said.

College Buildings Centennial Goal?

B.C. municipalities will be urged by Chambers of Commerce to spend their national centennial funds for educational projects—particularly college buildings on a pooled basis.

R. G. Miller, of Vancouver, president of the B.C. Chambers, this morning said he had been directed by a board meeting here to make an appeal to the 125 local chambers "to use their influence with their councils to give high priority to educational projects, particularly higher education."

He also said he would suggest to the member chambers that they urge their communities, particularly the smaller ones, to pool their centennial resources for a permanent project serving a whole area.

"I can visualize, perhaps a major building on the Simon Fraser University campus which would be called the Lower mainland classroom building, say, with plaques in the rooms to identify the individual municipalities—say the Chilliwack Room—that participated in the project."

Panel to Air War Toy Controversy

The controversy over war toys will be aired at a public meeting in Willows School auditorium, corner of Dalhousie and Musgrave, tonight at 8.

It will take the form of a panel discussion in which the public will be invited to ask questions.

The four panelists are Mrs. Robert Emery, kindergarten supervisor; Dr. George Evans, assistant medical health officer; Rev. Martin Evans, minister, Unitarian Church of Victoria; Dr. Robert Lane, professor of anthropology, University of Victoria.

Dr. John Chapman, biologist and president of the United Nations Association of Victoria, will be moderator.

Elementary Books Enter Space Age

B.C. education department is in the midst of changing the elementary reading books to keep up with today's more sophisticated children.

The new books—three were introduced this term and more will be added in 1965 including one about spacemen Tag and Tog—are designed to replace the old Dick and Jane volumes that have been found too inane.

"I feel that in the past we have tended to underestimate the potential of elementary students," said J. R. Meredith, director of curriculum. "It's surprising how varied their interests are."

He said the new books are of better literary quality intended to stimulate an interest in reading. They deal with more complex situations which the children can relate to their own experiences at home and school.

Calories Can't Be Fooled

OTTAWA (CP) — Now it's official. For the weight-watchers, the spirit may be willing but the flesh is weak.

Health Minister Judy LaMarsh gave the following dead-pan reply in the Commons to Barry Mather (NDP—New Westminster), who asked whether low-calorie sweeteners really help weight reduction.

"Under conditions of rigid clinical control, where it can be established that the calories eliminated by the use of artificial sweeteners are not replaced through other foods, some advantage in weight reduction has been demonstrated.

"Where such clinical control is lacking, the calories tend to be replaced through use of other foods and no benefit of significance is considered to accrue."

ALL DENTISTS YANKED OUT

TOKYO (AP) — Toothache sufferers had to endure the pain Thursday in Tokyo. The city's more than 5,000 dentists were on a 24-hour strike demanding government approval of higher dental fees to meet rising costs.

Reward for Rapist

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Winnipeg police commission has recommended to city council that a $1,000 reward be offered for information leading to the arrest of the man responsible for four rapes in the metropolitan area in the last three months.

IN U.S. MAGAZINES

Canadians Hold Spotlight

NEW YORK (CP) — The New Yorker has joined other large-circulation U.S. magazines in turning a special eye on Canada.

Edmund Wilson, writing a series of three stories under the title O Canada—An American's Look at Canadian Culture, finds the country "a compartmented, not welded, community."

His first article, appearing in the Nov. 14 issue, concentrates mainly on Canadian literature although it's interspersed with a variety of observations.

Multilingual himself, he quotes Canadian poets in both English and French but says Canadian writers in the two languages "do not often read one another."

Wilson, who lives in upstate New York, has shown previous interest in Canada. Two years ago he wrote a lengthy appreciation of the work of Toronto novelist Morley Callaghan for the magazine. And he has produced a book on nationalism among the Iroquois of New York, Ontario and Quebec.

The current New Yorker series follows a special Canadian issue of the Atlantic Monthly, published in Boston.

NOT AMERICANS

Wilson suggests that Canadians appear to be refusing to be considered part of America, noting that they persist in reserving the term "American" for U.S. citizens.

He also detects a Scottish influence in the Canadian language, notably in the pronunciation of the word "about"—"something not far from aboot."

Wilson expresses admiration for Canadian wariness of American "magazines, movies and jazz," says wealthy Canadians "have finally reached the point, like our own millionaires at the end of the last century, of wanting to be patrons of the arts," and praises Montreal French restaurants, describing them as "both better and less expensive than in New York."

Montreal novelists Hugh MacLennan and John Buell and the late poet, E. J. (Ned) Pratt, are treated at length.

Admitting that his reading has been restricted to a list of authors that excludes even such U.S.-published writers as Robertson Davies, he saves his highest praise for French-Canadian poet Emile Nelligan, "the only really first-rate poet, English or French, that I have yet read."

50 YEARS BEHIND

Nelligan, who wrote for only a few years before 1900, suffered a mental breakdown at 20 that prevented him from ever writing again. And, says Wilson, "French-Canadian literature was long to remain at least 50 years behind Paris."

Wilson considers MacLennan's novel of French-English relations, Two Solitudes, as important in subject but "a literary dud." He prefers MacLennan's first novel, Barometer Rising, and The Precipice.

The best introduction for an American to Canada, Wilson says, is not a Canadian, but American historian Francis Parkman. And he suggests Parkman's books on the French regime in Canada are unpopular in the country today because French-Canadians find him too critical of the Roman Catholic Church while English-speaking Canadians think he concentrates too much on the French period in the country's history.

MUSSOLINI GREAT MAN ACCORDING TO HIS SON

TORONTO (CP)—Mussolini, the dictator, was "a great man and I'm convinced he was against the war," said Mussolini, the jazz pianist, Wednesday.

Romano Mussolini, 37, the son of Italy's wartime fascist leader, was in Toronto to give five performances with his jazz quintet.

"There is a great feeling of affection for my father," Mussolini told reporters. "The chapel where he is buried is visited by many thousand persons every day."

He said "the truth about my father has been distorted during and after the Second World War."

Criticism Mounts Over Pope's Tour

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Roman Catholic circles are dismayed by the reaction in Portugal and India to Pope Paul's trip to Bombay.

Sources at the Vatican said Wednesday officials here anticipated some criticism in Portugal and India, but not a controversy of the extent that has developed.

The Vatican has not commented publicly and there has been no indication the trip may be called off.

But privately church circles say the reaction may put a new light on Pope Paul's plans for any future trips.

Pope Paul leaves Dec. 2 for Bombay to attend the international eucharistic congress there. He returns to Rome Dec. 5.

The announcement of his trip brought sharp reaction from Portugal, whose Asian territory of Goa was occupied by Indian troops in 1961. Portuguese officials said the Pope has affronted a Roman Catholic nation. They ordered a press blackout of all news on the Pope's trip and the congress.

In India, Hindu extremists complained about the Indian government's support of the congress and invitation to the Pope. The Hindus said Roman Catholics hope to use the congress to make conversions.

To meet this objection, the Pope's program was altered so that his contacts would be largely with Christian Indians. His plans to visit Bombay slums were dropped.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD JACOBY

The United States picked up 10 International Match Points against Israel when Arthur Robinson made four spades and the Israeli South went down.

Opening lead—♠ 7

The bidding and opening lead were the same at both tables, but Arthur played a low spade from dummy while the other South called for the jack.

Arthur won the first trick with the ace of spades and led a low club to dummy's jack. East won with the queen and led back the nine. Arthur took his ace and ruffed his last club with the ten of hearts. He drew trumps with three leads, led the ten of diamonds and let it ride to East's jack.

At this point, East was down to spades and diamonds. He could not afford to lead a spade into dummy's king-jack, so he had to return a diamond. This set up dummy's king of diamonds for Arthur's tenth trick.

The play after trick one went the same way at the other table up to the point when East got the lead with the jack of diamonds. Now East was able to return the ten of spades to dummy's king. South returned to his hand by ruffing a spade and led the nine of diamonds.

West played low and now South had to make a decision. He decided to let the nine ride, whereupon East made his queen of diamonds and West his ace.

South's diamond play was mathematically correct so he was unfortunate that the best percentage play lost, but if he had just saved dummy's jack of spades, he would never have been faced with the problem of the second diamond lead.

145 BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

AN
INVESTMENT

I would say this is the finest 5-suite apartment in Victoria. Located in a secluded setting near the water tower, this unit has been COMPLETELY and IMPECCABLY rebuilt from gutters to lockers. (No capital expenditures for many years to come.) The suites are BELOW rental value and offer roominess and charm that NO NEW apartment could come near to offering, and yet kitchens and other conveniences are as modern as their new competition. NO VACANCIES for past 7 years and the owner has improvement bills totalling MORE than the sale price. This investment shows an HONEST 10%. Yes, you may find a unit showing a little more, but dollars to doughnuts you would end up spending MOST OF YOUR PROFITS in improvements over the next ten years. This investment offers the SECURITY of PURE PROFITS, with no anticipated expenditures, and NO COMPETITION from new large apartments.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

NBC-TV gave the gate to Bill (Jose Jimenez) Dana because he couldn't cut the mustard against such Sunday night competition as Ed Sullivan's variety show.

Stephen

In his place, come January, the network plans to introduce a new western series, Branded, with Chuck Connors in the main role.

Connors is familiar to western TV fans as The Rifleman who strode the prairies for years, and still is seen on at least one station which hits the Victoria area (Channel 12).

In Branded, Connors plays Capt. Jason McCord who wanders the prairies developing the west of the 1800s.

According to first reports the character will be a "full human being hammered with the whips and scorns of his times. He'll be accused of being cowardly. That's the brand he'll wear around the west."

The show's audience will see the victimized captain as the hero that he is, a situation which can create a bond of sympathy between the character and viewers.

There is strong feeling in Hollywood production centres that Branded has the necessary ingredients for a hit.

For instance, the Goodson-Todman production firm, one of the tops in the industry, is turning out the series.

Then there are scripts, some of them written by Larry Cohen who has written stories for the highly successful The Defenders.

The third and most important ingredient is the character who, it is hoped, will be understood by everyone and have them on his side.

The new series will debut Jan. 24 in the 8:30 p.m. time slot. This, by the way, is the same time as Arrest and Trial had last year. That short-lived courtroom drama starred Connors and Ben Gazzarra.

As for the Bill Dana Show, it will not disappear completely. There is great hope it will be picked up by ABC-TV.

The Dana show, though it did not fare well against Sullivan, added another character this season and gave the program a big lift. He is comedian Don Adams who played the hotel detective Glick.

Adams is one of the great standup comedians in the entertainment business today. His character, and that of Dana, offered one of the best one-two comic punches in a situation comedy series. They are surpassed only by the crew of clowns belonging to McHale's Navy.

I hope ABC picks the Dana show up because it deserves a better fate than disappearing from the scene while other not so deserving comedies linger on.

* * *

BRIBERY CHARGES

Newspaper Comment Critical of Favreau

MONTREAL (UPI)—General Canadian editorial comment on the alleged bribery charges which have rocked the House of Commons has lauded Erik Nielsens (PC—Yukon) for unveiling of the charges and condemned Justice Minister Favreau's handling of the charges.

★ ★ ★

The Montreal Star in an editorial titled This Smells rapped Mr. Favreau's handling of the charges before and during their airing in the House of Commons.

If Mr. Nielsen had not raised the matter "there would never have been an inquiry," the Star said.

★ ★ ★

- The Toronto Daily Star: "The charges made in Parliament by Erik Nielsen carry the implication that an international narcotics ring has managed to reach into government offices in search of protection and assistance.

"The possibility is so grave that a full inquiry is needed to get all the facts—a much broader inquiry than that proposed by the government yesterday."

- The Toronto Globe and Mail: "It seems inconceivable that a minister of the stature of Mr. Favreau, and functioning in the delicate area of responsibility that is his, should have taken on himself the very serious matter of determining whether or not explicit charges should have been pursued. The minister of justice would not normally be expected to make such decisions."
- The Ottawa Journal: "The minister of justice has now done what he should have done in the beginning: Sought impartial authority to determine whether he was right in deciding that there was no case for prosecution."

VANCOUVER (CP)—World champion Lyall Dagg of Vancouver defeated a strong contender, Ed Johnson of Vancouver, 11-7 Wednesday night to win his match in the first draw of the 17th annual totem bonspiel.

Ben Mills of Grand Prairie, Alta., took an upset victory over Dan Quesnel of Vancouver. With four earlier ends blanked, Mills entered the 10th end with Quesnel laying two but made the shot of the day to eke out a 9-8 victory.

Bail Pressures Charge Denied

ENTERING the Saanich election race for the first time is W. A. "Sandy" Noel, 4301 Cedar Hill Road, the 14th candidate for three council seats to be filled Dec. 12. A civilian electrical foreman at HMC Dockyard, Mr. Noel, 56, wants better east-west crossroads, and two liquor stores in Saanich.

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP) — Guy Lord, former assistant to the Canadian justice minister, hotly denied today he ever tried to "pressure" a Montreal lawyer regarding bail for a narcotics suspect.

"I never put any pressure on any lawyer," said Lord, 25, in a telephone conversation from Nuffield College, Oxford, where he is studying under a Canada Council scholarship.

And Dr. D. N. Chester, warden of Nuffield, telephoned The Canadian Press to challenge "rumors" that Lord's decision to come to the British colleg was "rather a last-minute decision."

"This is completely untrue," said Chester.

"I have a letter dated Dec. 12, 1963, from Mr. Lord asking for admission to this college," he added.

"The award of a Canada Council scholarship to Mr. Lord was announced April 15, 1964, and I wrote to him on the 30th of April, 1964, saying we would be happy to have him here."

Chester said that all this happened long before the present investigation began in Canada.

Chester called The Canadian Press about an hour after Lord, replying to questions, specifically denied he ever told Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne that he might get less government business unless he dropped opposition to bail for the narcotics suspects, Lucien Rivard.

NOT BEING PAID

Lord also mentioned the Canada Council scholarship, under which he was studying public administration and comparative government, and said he is not being paid as a staffer by High Commissioner Lionel Chevrier.

Lord said he did speak to Lamontagne, who was a lawyer for the United States government, "just to get facts and inform the minister" but never to exert pressure.

"I never put any pressure on any lawyer," he added.

"It is hard to believe that people are thinking these things."

A native of Quebec City, Lord said he left University of Montreal in June, 1963, and decided to work for the government for a year to gain experience. He had already decided to come to Oxford.

Lord said he served first under Chevrier, then justice minister before his appointment as high commissioner to Britain. Later Lord became an assistant to Guy Favreau, the present minister.

RAGWEED FLOURISHES

Bribe Prober Experienced In Politics

QUEBEC (CP) — Frederic Dorion, 66, is well equipped to judge Progressive Conservative accusations against two Liberal executive assistants. He sat in the House of Commons for six years as an independent.

He was appointed a Quebec Superior Court justice in 1957 by the Progressive Conservative government of John Diefenbaker, but his appointment as chief justice of the court's Eastern Division came through the Liberal government of Lester Pearson in April, 1963.

"The main thing is to be objective," the hale, silver-haired chief justice said of the inquiry during an interview Tuesday.

Earlier, he had accepted the task of heading the investigation into charges of attempted bribery and coercion against two former executive assistants to federal cabinet ministers.

In 1918, he interrupted law studies at Laval University to join the Royal Air Force. He was in London undergoing final air combat training when armistice came.

OPPOSED CONSCRIPTION

A First World War volunteer, he fought the Liberal government's conscription policy in the second as unjust.

Shortly after the plebiscite, he campaigned in Charlevoix-Saguenay riding as an independent and sat in the Commons until 1948.

Mr. Justice Dorion thinks political experience helps a judge to understand human nature better and he defends the present Canadian system of appointing justices for this reason.

In France, he says, judges are trained for the job like lawyers, and not appointed. He says a French expert recently complained that judges can't be formed in "hot houses."

"The experience one gets in politics helps a judge understand people. We have so many things before us, and so many kinds of people."

Specialist Still Needed: RCAF Group

Integration of Canada's armed forces must not involve sacrificing the air force's "specialist role," the national president of the RCAF Association said here Wednesday.

George Penfold of Toronto, said preservation of the role is essential to keeping morale in the force.

"We have lost good officers, men who have proven their ability and left the service because they felt the specialist role was endangered."

Mr. Penfold told a meeting of 800 Wing (Pacific) RCAF Association the parent body hasn't taken a stand on integration "but we will be adversely critical where the identity of the air force is in jeopardy."

JAPAN FORCES SPLIT

He cited the case of the Japanese self-defence force which he said within the last six months was split into three services for more efficient operation.

"You wouldn't put an admiral in charge of air operations, would you? This is an age of specialization. At the operational level we, too, must maintain individual forces."

Mr. Penfold said the association approves of integration at the headquarters level.

"We like economy with efficiency. But, if integration means loss of efficiency and skill we are against it."

By KEN KELLY

And like his Progressive Conservative chief he practised his spear-throwing art in the law courts before entering the Commons in a 1957 byelection.

The 40-year-old Regina-born lawyer, member for Yukon, is one of the most colorful opposition members and perhaps one of the most feared by the Liberals. Once on the scent of governmental actions which he considers misconduct he is like a terrier worrying his prey.

BOMBER PILOT

A lank, jut-jawed son of Danish-English parentage, Nielsen was born at Regina and educated at Dalhousie University's law school. As a wartime bomber pilot he developed a political interest by joining the Conservative Club of London.

He took his law degree while on leave without pay from the air force and after the war settled in Whitehorse. His practice was in the corporation field and, as a Crown attorney, in criminal cases. His father was an RCMP officer for 30 years.

NORTHERN AREAS

To cover the vast northern areas he flew his own plane, equipped with floats, skis or wheels. He still uses it campaigning over his far - flung northern constituency.

His first attempt at running for the Commons ended in defeat in 1957 but the election was controverted and in the subsequent byelection he was sent to Ottawa.

Through most of the days of the Progressive Conservative administration he gained relatively little public attention. But after his party's 1963 defeat, he blossomed in opposition as a hard-hitting, persistent critic.

He tackled Prime Minister Pearson over the TV film Mr. Pearson, which the opposition claimed was refused public showing for political reasons. He teamed with colleagues to pursue successive justice ministers over the case of deposed union boss Hal C. Banks, implying a political tie-up when Banks disappeared after conviction on conspiracy charges.

In the Commons, he lays down his points as in a courtroom, hardly ever appearing ruffled by charges of "smear" from the ranks of opponents. His air of deliberation and certainty that he is right enrages government backbenchers.

Mr. Nielsen, whose brother Leslie is an American screen and television actor, is married and has three sons.

MARTIAL LAW ORDERED IN SAIGON

SAIGON (AP) — South Viet Nam's national security council met in emergency session today to consider measures against fresh waves of anti-government rioting that resulted in Saigon being placed under material law. It was the first meeting of the council since street demonstrations began Sunday, threatening to topple the fledgling civilian government.

Authorities feared the killing of a 15-year-old boy, first known victim if the rioting, would touch off new and wider demonstrations. More than 100 have been injured.

Warning Lack Saves Driver From Jail Term

A man who pleaded guilty Wednesday to his second offence of impaired driving was fined $400 and prohibited from driving for six months.

William Faulds, 1604 Oaklands, was last convicted of this offence in 1958.

Mandatory sentence for a second offence is a jail term but the Crown has to give the accused a warning that the higher penalty will be asked for.

Magistrate J. A. Byers told Faulds he was lucky. The Crown did not give him the required warning.

Evidence was that Faulds was arrested Tuesday night after his car crossed to the wrong side of Fernwood Road at Bay and hit a parked car.

A breathalyzer test showed Faulds had a blood alcohol count of .21 per cent.

Conciliation Boards Named in Tug Dispute

Unions and management have named their representatives on four conciliation boards in the tugboat workers dispute.

Both sides have to agree to the chairmen and failing agreement, the federal labor department, under whose jurisdiction the dispute comes, will appoint them.

A close source said this week the boards' reports are expected by Christmas, ruling out the possibility of a strike before then.

35 FIRM INVOLVED

The dispute involves three unions and the B.C. Towboat Owners' Association, a group of more than 35 companies.

The unions are locals 400 and 425 of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, the Canadian Merchant Service Guild, and the Seafarers International Union.

The CBRT represents about 700 engineer officers, deckhands and cooks, the guild about 700 deck officers, and the SIU about 200 deckhands and cooks.

The unions' separate agreements expired Sept. 30. Bargaining started in August.

Deckhands earn $325 a month, cooks $332.50 and licensed personnel between $400 and $600.

About 200 men are involved in Victoria.

Towboatmen are seeking a 25-per-cent increase in wages, double time for overtime and an increase in annual vacations, said Jim Thompson, president of CBRT local 400.

A spokesman for Island Tug and Barge said a strike would cripple the province's economy. Tugs were needed to ship sawmill, pulp and paper products and vital chemicals like caustics and chlorines to these industries.

B.C. Air Lines Increases Fleet

VANCOUVER — Gordon L. Best, general manager of B.C. Air Lines Limited, says the company has placed a $350,000 order for six additional aircraft, bringing the company's total number of planes to 35. The addition will enable the company to provide increased service from Vancouver to Prince Rupert and on the Queen Charlotte and Vancouver islands.

JOHNSON TO STUDY NEW PLAN

'How Better to Guard U.S. President From Assassins'

By HARRY KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP)—In another month or so, President Johnson will receive a plan aimed at giving him and succeeding presidents of the United States better protection from assassins.

If adopted, the cabinet committee's recommendations may provide some of the answers to the theme of "what might have been" that ran through the testimony of many who saw President John F. Kennedy shot to death in Dallas a year ago.

The 26 volumes of testimony amassed by the Warren Commission in its investigation of the assassination were made public Monday with chilling detail—and nagging questions.

For instance: Would Kennedy be alive today if secret service agents had shielded him by standing on the special steps on the back of the presidential limousine?

Gerald A. Behn, chief of the White House secret service detail, said Kennedy had told him he did not want agents riding on the back of his car.

Secret service chief James J. Rowley explained that it never had been the policy to have an agent on the rear of the car at all times and added "no president will tell the secret service what they can or cannot do."

"Sometimes it might be as a political man or individual he might think this might not look good in a given situation," Rowley said. "But that does not mean that he doesn't want you there . . ."

Then he put his finger on the problem: "I think there are certain things that you have to allow the man who is operating as a politician and not as head of state. I mean this makes a difference in your position."

On the morning of his death, Kennedy himself mentioned the difficulty of trying to stop a man with a rifle who is intent on killing a president—a man such as Lee Harvey Oswald.

And thus another problem the cabinet committee is trying to do something about: Finding a better, more efficient system for spotting persons such as Oswald.

Rowley told the commission June 18 that the agency had taken steps to strengthen its protective research section since the assassination.

Under the new standards, he said, Oswald would have been singled out as a menace.

$264,358 Judgment

SURPLUS TUNIC BID LATE BUT OFFER STILL OPEN

By MARGE GILROY

An offer by a Victoria philanthropist to buy 12,000 surplus RCAF tunics for needy Koreans, arrived in Ottawa too late.

The tunics were sold early this week to an English firm. The price was not disclosed.

The anonymous Victoria donor last Friday authorized Dr. Lotta Hitshmanova, director of the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada, to bid on the tunics then being offered for sale by Crown Assets Corporation for 17 cents each.

He made the offer on behalf of the Times-sponsored Help the Hungry Child Fund.

USC headquarters in Ottawa, has informed the Victorian there is some indication more surplus clothing will be up for auction in the near future.

The donor has replied he will keep his bid open for a week or two.

In the meantime other donations for the cold and hungry in Korea may be sent to "Help the Hungry Child" fund, care of the Times, 2631 Douglas, or delivered before 5:30 p.m. —

Donations are also being accepted at the main branch of the Bank of Montreal, Yates and Douglas.

Used clothing should be delivered to Dowell's Cartage and Storage, 1117 Wharf Street.

Donations will be acknowledged in the newspaper daily and official receipts for income tax purposes will be sent later from USC headquarters in Ottawa.

WALLOWING IN THE ATLANTIC, off the New Jersey coast, is the forward section of the Norwegian tanker Stolt Dagali after being sliced in two by the Israeli luxury liner Shalom. The liner, shown returning to New York with badly damaged bow, was bound for a Thanksgiving holiday cruise of the Caribbean. Twenty Norwegian seamen were believed killed in the collision which occured in a heavy fog. (AP Wirephoto.)

Liner Slices Into Tanker; Death Toll 20

Collision In Fog Off N.Y.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The pride of Israel's merchant fleet, the sleek new luxury liner Shalom, jammed with passengers on a Thanksgiving cruise to the Caribbean, smashed into a Norwegian tanker off the fog-shrouded New Jersey coast today cutting it in two and killing 20 of its crewmen.

The Shalom, which means "peace" in Hebrew, had left New York harbor less than three and one-half hours before the grinding collision that sent the stern half of the tanker Stolt Dagali to the bottom in a matter of minutes.

By early afternoon, the 23 survivors had been plucked from the ocean by Coast Guard helicopters and taken to hospitals for treatment or observation. All but four of the bodies had been recovered.

40-FOOT HOLE

More than 600 passengers and 460 crewmen and officers were aboard but only one, Mrs. Marge Postalico, was hurt seriously enough to require hospitalization.

Both ships had radar, but it was not known whether either had any warning before the collision.

It was 2:22 a.m. EST when the first word of the tragedy crackled through the air from the Dagali's radio operator to the Coast Guard in New York. The message said the ship was "sinking rapidly."

EIGHT 'COPTERS

Eight helicopters from the Floyd Bennett naval air station in Brooklyn rushed to the scene along with coast guard cutters and other merchant vessels in the area.

"I arrived out there about 3:20 a.m. and the fog was so thick you couldn't see anything," said Capt. Ira H. McMullan, commander of the helicopter rescue operations. "But about a half hour later, the fog began to move.

weather cleared up as sooh as weather cleare dup as soon as it did. We dropped flares until daylight. Shortly after daylight one of the helicopters sighted a lifeboat almost completely swamped with eight men aboard . . . this was the first sighting that I had of any of the crew of the tanker."

The men were quickly taken aboard in basket slings. The helicopters concentrated on the men in the water. Ten crewmen, including the tanker's skipper, were still on the floating bow section of the tanker. Their rescue was delayed for several hours because they were in no immediate danger.

SOVIET WARNS AGAINST RAIDS

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union warned today it is ready to give "the necessary assistance" to Communist North Viet Nam if that country is bombed.

In an obvious reference to reports that the U.S. ambassador to Saigon, Maxwell D. Taylor, and other American officials are considering raids on the north as a possible course of action in the anti-Communist guerrilla war in South Viet Nam, the official news agency Tass declared:

"Those who harbor adventurist plans with regard to the Indochina peninsula should understand that the Soviet Union cannot remain indifferent to the fate of a fraternal socialist country and is ready to render the necessary assistance."

Tass said that aggressive action against North Viet Nam "is emphatically denounced by the Soviet Union, and demands are made for ending any such provocations against that country.

"The position of the Soviet Union is that there must be no interference in the affairs of other countries and peoples. The United States should strictly abide by the Geneva agreement."

NDP Threatens Liberal Gov't Over Inquiry

OTTAWA (CP) — The New Democratic Party served notice on the government today that it will throw its voting strength behind an effort to topple the government unless additions are made to terms of reference for a judicial inquiry.

In a letter to acting Prime Minister Martin, Andrew Brewin (NDP — Toronto Greenwood) submitted a draft of additional terms of reference for Mr. Justice Frederic Dorion who is to inquire into opposition charges of attempted bribery and coercion in a legal case by two ministerial assistants.

The letter said that, if the government accepts the additions, the New Democrats will be convinced that the minority administration seriously intends to bring to light all the circumstances surrounding the charges.

But, if the government remains adamant in arguing that the terms of reference as approved Wednesday are adequate, the New Democrats will vote for a Progressive Conservative motion which amounts to a vote of non-confidence in the government.

The motion referred to was placed before the Commons some time ago. It calls for reducing the justice department's spending estimates by the amount of Justice Minister Favreau's salary.

Mr. Brewin's additions, proposed on behalf of the 19-member NDP group, covered two points:

1. Mr. Justice Dorion would be instructed to inquire "into the manner in which the RCMP and any officer thereof and the minister thereof dealt with the said allegations when brought to their attention."

2. The judge also would be ordered "to inquire into the activities of one Raymond Denis, as executive assistant to the minister of citizenship and immigration."

REPORT ON SPECIFICS

Mr. Justice Dorion would be required, under these conditions, to report to the government on those specific points.

Investigation Wide Enough Martin Says

OTTAWA (CP) — Acting Prime Minister Paul Martin told the Commons today that the terms of references set by the cabinet for a judicial inquiry into allegations of bribery and coercion by ministerial aides are "wide enough."

He indicated a rejection of opposition demands for a broadening of the terms of reference to cover all activities of Raymond Denis during his time as executive assistant to Immigration Minister Tremblay.

NDP Leader Douglas repeated the request for expansion of the terms of reference to cover Mr. Denis' full activities.

There were shouts of "oh, oh" from the Conservative and NDP benches when Mr. Martin, acting in the absence of Prime Minister Pearson who is on a western trip, said there could be no doubt in anyone's mind that the present terms of reference are comprehensive.

PM on Prairie

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson will be back in the capital from a Prairie speaking tour before the weekend, Acting Prime Minister Martin said today.

However, Mr. Martin said he hasn't been in touch with the prime minister and doesn't know whether Mr. Pearson will return this week to the Commons where the opposition is mounting an attack involving charges of bribery and coercion by two ministerial assistants in a narcotics case.

New Massacre By Congolese, 17 Whites Dead

STANLEYVILLE (Reuters)—Congolese insurgents driven out of Stanleyville by paratroopers Wednesday counter-attacked and reoccupied part of the city, today.

Travellers arriving in Leopoldville from Stanleyville tonight quoted a Belgian officer there as saying "we don't control anything more than a square mile at the centre of the city."

LEOPOLDVILLE (CP)—The U.S. embassy here said today that Congolese rebels were reported to have taken 110 white hostages with them when they fled the town of Paulis after beating 17 whites, including an American missionary, to death Tuesday and Wednesday.

The embassy spokesman said the rebels also massacred the Congolese population as they fled.

Belgian paratroopers dropped into Paulis and rescued an additional 200 hostages at dawn today. Paulis, with a population of more than 5,000, was the largest town still in rebel hands.

There were indications at Leopoldville that another paratrooper drop might be made soon. But observers said there was "nothing official" on this and no indication of where or when the drop would be.

Evacuees also confirmed that 17 whites were beaten to death in Paulis but other unofficial reports said the toll was much higher.

This brought the number of known white "hostages" dead in The Congo during the last four days to 48. 31 of them were killed in Stanleyville when rebels opened fire on them minutes before Belgian paratroops arrived Tuesday.

U.S. embassy officials here identified the dead American as Rev. Joseph Tucker, Springfield, Mo., the Protestant Mission Assembly of God. Mr. Tucker's wife and three children were reported well.

Unofficial reports from the scene of fighting at Paulis said more than 50 whites were killed in savage rebel reprisals. If this is true, the death toll of foreigners since the rescue operation began is more than 81.

The evacuees said the 17 dead in Paulis, 160 miles north of Stanleyville, were among 39 Belgians, an American and an Italian who were confined in a special house a few weeks ago.

The evacuees, who were rescued when Belgian paratroopers dropped on Paulis today, said 10 of the 41 hostages were taken out and beaten to death systematically Tuesday.

It was the same day that Belgian troops carried in American planes attacked the rebel stronghold of Stanleyville and liberated more than 1,000 white hostages there.

Wednesday, another seven were beaten to death in the same way in Paulis.

SAVED BY BELGIANS

The remainder were told they would be next, but they were saved by the paratroops landing this morning.

A U.S. embassy spokesman here said one of the troops was killed and five were wounded, and one white civilian was killed.

At least five, and possibly as many as 20 hostages, were reported wounded.

Seven Americans were believed to have been among the hostages held in the town, 225 air miles north of Stanleyville.

The embassy spokesman said 267 paratroopers dropped on the town at 6 a.m. and reported the area "secured" 30 minutes later.

MANNING PROPOSAL

Another Party Canada's Need?

RED DEER (CP) — Premier Manning said Wednesday a realignment of political strength in Canada is imperative and may require a completely new political party.

"Canada requires a realignment of Canadian strength on the basis of conviction rather than partisanship and expediency and the Social Credit movement is the only existing movement which might be able to bring about this realignment," he said.

"Even this may not be possible. Social Credit is handicapped by years of consistent misrepresentation which has created strong opposition (to the party)."

People who have learned the principles of Social Credit find it difficult to forsake the party to which they have given their allegiance to join the Social Credit movement.

Mr. Manning, in addressing more than 500 persons attending the Alberta Social Credit League annual convention, said: "I don't know if we can overcome the problems. If not, there is no solution other than creating an entirely new political force in Canada."

Mr. Manning said the new party would have to be completely free of ties with existing parties and start anew "exactly what happened in Alberta in 1935."

He warned, however, that "we must be careful to guard against a premature birth (of this party) which would have little hope of survival."

Rebels Retake Vital Airstrip

ELISABETHVILLE (AP) — Congolese rebels Wednesday retook the tin mining town of Punia, 150 miles north of Kindu on the road to Stanleyville, air force sources at the Congo Kamina military base said today.

The airstrip at Punia, 12 miles north of the town, was being used as a forward operation base for Congolese transport and fighter planes supporting troops which had reconquered Stanleyville Tuesday.

Kamina base said the airstrip had been attacked by more than 500 rebels. Forces protecting the airstrip were withdrawn to Kindu.

Aircraft sent to recover valuable radio equipment were unable to land.

The town had been liberated by Leopoldville government forces last week, on their way from Kindu towards Stanleyville.

This is the first setback for Congo Premier Moise Tshombe's troops since they regained Albertville from the rebels weeks ago and continued northward to recapture Kindu.

It confirmed reports from The Congo earlier today that the columns which took Stanleyville have not enough strength to ensure permanent control of conquered points behind them.

U.K. Given Lift

Montreal Murder Linked to Bribe Scandal?

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The name of a Monsieur Gignac was dragged mysteriously Wednesday into Conservative party allegations of bribery and corruption in high government places.

And for the third successive day the Commons was in a complete uproar as government and opposition members hurled angry insults across the floor of the House.

Erik Nielson (PC Yukon), the leader of the Conservative attack on the government, dropped the name of Gignac as he raised the possibility that Immigration Minister Rene Tremblay had not told all he knew about the alleged attempt by his executive assistant to bribe a Montreal lawyer.

(A Robert Gignac, 35, of Montreal was charged with capital murder after Aime (Rocky) Brunette, a nightclub waiter, was shot dead in Montreal Sept. 17.)

Nielsen said: "I believe the minister knows full well that a certain M. Gignac has been arrested in Montreal on a charge of capital murder and I give the minister this opportunity to explain to the committee, if he will, what connection M. Gignac has with this whole affair."

Tremblay denied having any knowledge of the bribe, but Nielsen's new hints visibly angered the already shaken cabinet ministers and government backbenchers.

In a barrage of interjections they accused Nielsen of Macarthyism, innuendo and smearing tactics.

Despite repeated calls to order from the deputy speaker; Cashin, whitefaced and waving his arms, shouted that Nielsen was indulging in "Macarthyism and extremism, attack by innunendo.

"He is subverting British justice," he screamed. "Let him make charges."

"Go change your diapers," shouted an opposition member at the youthful MP.

Justice Minister Guy Favreau also insisted repeatedly throughout the wild afternoon that Nielsen should make specific charges.

"Otherwise," he said, "he is infringing a basic rule of the House besides infringing fairness and any sense of justice."

The furore, described by old hands on Parliament Hill as easily the worst since the pipeline debate of 1956, occurred during the debate on the spending estimates of Favreau's justice department.

Earlier in the day the government announced there would be a judicial inquiry by Quebec Chief Justice Frederick Dorion into Nielsen's allegations.

The inquiry is designed to elicit facts surrounding the alleged attempts by Raymond Denis, former executive assistant to Immigration Minis-

Exports Score Highest Level

OTTAWA (CP)—Domestic exports from Canada to all countries in the third quarter this year totalled $2,171,900,000 the highest level ever recorded for a quarter and an increase of 26.1 per cent over the same quarter in 1963, the bureau of statistics reported today.

The figures mark an upward trend which has lasted, with minor contractions, for the last three years. The rate of increase has accelerated in recent months and domestic exports in September were valued at $725,406,000, an advance of 23.6 per cent from the September 1963 figure of $586,890,000.

Exports rose substantially during this year's third quarter to the majority of leading countries of destination. The increase in trade appeared chiefly due to the added volume of goods moved, for which the average index advanced by nearly 24 per cent above that for July-September, 1963, while the average level of export prices rose by less than two per cent.

RECORD TOTAL

During the first nine months domestic exports amounted to $6,005,600,000, thus establishing a record total in Canadian shipments for the first nine months of any year and a gain of 23.5 per cent over exports for January-September, 1963.

Exports to the United States rose in value by one-eighth, those both in United Kingdom and to other Commonwealth and preferential-rate countries by more than one-fifth, and to the group of other countries by over one-half.

Plans New Store

TORONTO (CP)—Simpsons-Sears Ltd. has announced it will build a two-storey department store in Saskatoon as part of a $13,000,000 shopping centre and office development.

The store is scheduled for completion in early 1966 and will employ 400 to 500 persons.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP)—There was some overseas support in flax in dull trading on the Winnipeg grain exchange today.

Rapeseed rallied with the sale of 2,000 tons late Wednesday. There was export and shipping demand with light offerings.

Oats and barley were light with some inquiry in both grains.

Rye was thin but prices showed strength, with mostly commission house trading.

Sale of two lots of Canadian wheat totalling 3,300 tons to Europe was reported.

Export loadings of Canadian wheat included Czechoslovakia, 1,000,000 bushels; Japan, 500,000; Soviet Union, 200,000; Ecuador, 265,000.

Arthur Mayse

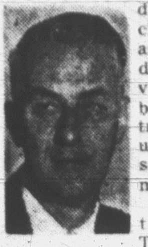
Socred leader Robert Thompson's recent junket to a Dark Continent growing darker by the hour has added such a volume of verbiage to Hansard that a couple of still, small facts are in danger of being buried beyond recovery.



So while Conservative Opposition leader Diefenbaker flaps quacking in his ever-decreasing circles, let us attempt today to salvage these bruised truths from under the smothering mass.

First, whether Dr. Thompson's Africa mission was planned before or after Canada discovered her nationals were in hazard at savage Stanleyville makes no never-mind.

What does is that a Liberal minister looked about him for a good man, and having spotted one, did not let party lines prevent him from pointing a finger.

"You!" said External Affairs' Paul Martin in effect to former Africa hand Thompson; who in turn, did not let his allegiance to Social Credit stay him from the safari.

He went, after rather leisurely preparations; and in spite of what the political debunkers are now clamoring, I think Dr. Thompson performed well and worthily for his country.

* * *

That's one fact. I like it. Tell me that the mission was a reward for services rendered, and I'll still like it.

To me, there's hope for Mr. Pearson's battered government when one of its key ministers has the horse-sense to use a specialist despite his political label.

My second fact stems from the first.

As a result of Paul Martin's forward thinking, Canada had a knowledgeable and experienced representative in the field when it became plain that Canadians and other whites were in peril.

Remember, please, that, had it not been for this crossing of party lines, Dr. Thompson wouldn't have been johnny-on-the-spot. But those lines were crossed, and out of the Ottawa babble come hints than the senior Socred handled his assignment well.

Among his African friends is Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia. Were it not for the emperor's intercession—at Dr. Thompson's urging—Canada's nationals in the rebel stronghold might have fared very much worse.

He was the right man in the right place at the right time, spotted there by an act which to these nostrils carries a distinct whiff of statesmanship, however it may smell to Mr. Martin's detractors.

* * *

To utter a statement like that is to court a dunce cap from the political sophisticates, but by it I'll abide.

In fact, I'll venture further.

If we are to be good Canadians not merely good members of the party which gets our votes—we must encourage this line-hopping when the ship or anyone on it is in trouble.

This not only in the federal House, but at provincial level.

In the field of labor, and labor-management relations, Opposition Leader Robert Strachan's background, experience and integrity should be invaluable to government.

Old-logger Gordon Gibson of the Liberal group has known our woods since the wasteful days of cut-and-clear-out. Surely his gruff voice should be heard and heeded in a province whose timber is still its leading natural resource!

NDP member Lois Haggen receives from the Social Credit benches indulgent smiles and flowers on occasion. There are times in our embattled legislature when her woman's outlook and housewife's sense could reduce a muddled issue to clarity.

For such a result as that, should party lines be allowed to stand in the way?

* * *

Opposition is vital to our parliamentary system of checks and balances. I think, though, that no party should block itself off from agreement and co-operation when an occasion demands unified effort.

I'm all for rough, loud, hard-fought election campaigns . . . the sort that expose every facet of a candidate's record to the hostile spotlight of his opponents.

It is debatable, however, whether the battle should be renewed so furiously in our legislative chambers while the peoples' business waits to be tended.

Liberal Martin and Socred Thompson have pioneered a different way; and how I wish their colleagues would stop beating each others' brains out long enough to investigate it!

LOST BUT NOT LEAST of Saanich police department's worries this morning was a three-year-old boy who says his name is "Me". Police were handed the child by the staff of a cleaner, into whose premises he wandered. An apple — which he shared around—substituted for the usual ice cream cone, and the lad was last seen trying on Cons. Bill Crossan's uniform cap—and answering his questions with simple, logical, uninformative answers. He says he lives at home. (Strickland Photo.)

Schools, City Row Erupts Over Street Widening Plan

By AB KENT

Pre-blasting work and school board criticism of Rose Street widening have erupted together.

Greater Victoria school board chairman Mrs. A. B. Thompson today accused city hall of not keeping school authorities informed on plans affecting school properties.

The Rose Street project is designed to carry trunk traffic to and from the downtown area and the widening phase under way will ultimately permit six lanes divided by a boulevard.

School authorities say traffic will be uncomfortably close to classrooms in S. J. Willis Junior Secondary School.

MRS. A. B. THOMPSON
. . . what's going on?

'CONCERNED'

"We are quite concerned. We were not brought into the picture," Mrs. Thompson said.

(City engineer James Garnett said the school board buildings and grounds committee had been provided with plans for the Rose Street job.

(City manager Dennis Young confirmed that he had been in touch with buildings and grounds committees and that they were familiar with city plans).

Mrs. Thompson went on:

"We wrote quite a while ago seeking a meeting with city council to clear up quite a few points: James Bay School, North Ward School and this widening. But we haven't had a reply.

"We really haven't been brought into the picture in quite a while. August or September is the last I recall.

"We'll do anything and everything we can to co-operate with the city engineer as long as we are kept informed," Mrs. Thompson said.

Mr. Young said the school board request for a meeting mentioned by Mrs. Thompson was dated Monday and had just been received at city hall.

ROAD TOO CLOSE

"Six lanes will bring it to within a hop-step of our classrooms . . . There's never been any consultation with the school," he said.

He said it appeared the street would be brought to within 40 or 50 feet of the nearest classroom, and closer still to the nearest corner of the building.

Mr. Garnet said the northbound lanes would come to within 100 feet of the building and south-bound lanes would be 175 feet away.

Besides, he pointed out, the rock would be blasted out to make a 20-feet-deep cut about 100 feet long where the street passes the school.

This would act as a screen and noise deflector for passing traffic, Mr. Garnet said.

"Obviously there will be noise while we are drilling, and there is no way around it as far as I can see. The work can't be rescheduled and there is no time during the holidays. But blasting will be done after school hours."

TOPICS of the DAY

Mrs. Pat Hewitt will demonstrate the new reading system for kindergarten at Christ Church Cathedral School on Niagara Street Wednesday at 8 p.m.

The meeting will open to all parents of young children.

It was turned over to the RCN for return to U.S. authorities.

The canteen staffed by members of the Solarium Junior League will make its final appearance at Goldstream Park Sunday as the annual salmon run nears its end.

B.C. Here To Stay —Bennett

Premier W. A. C. Bennett today said he has no intention of leading B.C. out of Confederation.

"I am a Canadian first, last and always," he said, commenting on a warning to the Senate banking committee that rejection of the province's bid for a Bank of B.C. charter could force it to secede and join the U.S.

He made no other comment on the committee's decision to vote next week on a motion to kill the application.

Just $3,261 Needed to Hit Appeal Mark

Greater Victoria United Appeal was only $3,261 short of its target at press-time today.

Collections rose to $46,739 with a late donation of $360 from Wyder Electric Co. Ltd. of Vancouver and Victoria, and a further $500 from Yarrows Ltd. (Yarrows has already contribuated $3,500.)

Appeal headquarters have now launched a crash campaign to realize its $410,000 objective by Saturday.

"It would be a great pity if we fell short of our objective when we are so close to it," an official said.

FINISH THE JOB

To bridge the gap, campaign officials are asking all convassers who have not yet completed their contracts to finish the job.

They are also appealing to persons and organizers which have not been approached this year to come forward on their own.

Contributions may be made to the collection booth at Yates and Douglas; accounts divisions of department stores, main branches of principal banks, and headquarters of the United Appeal, 1951 Cook St. Contributions may be delivered or mailed.

"With a little extra effort we can transform what has been a very good campaign into a splendid achievement," the official said.

Chamber Fears B.C. Bank Aims

Government Control Cited in Submission

British Columbia Chamber of Commerce today told the provincial cabinet it supports a B.C. bank but is worried about government participation in it.

R. G. MILLER
. . . presented brief

Briefs presented by the chamber's directors at their annual meeting with the cabinet also put the 125-chamber organization representing some 20,000 businessmen on record as:

- Opposing compulsory and universal medicare;
- Proposing an increase in the legal school leaving age to 17 years;
- Urging modification of the basis for home-owner grants, tieing them directly to school costs;
- Seeking tightening up of the Trade Union Act to restrict picketing to employees of a particular operation that have voted in favor of a strike;
- Supporting work-for-welfare schemes using unemployed employables for work on public projects at union scales;
- Advocating an intensive study of air pollution by the B.C. Research Council with a view to suggesting solutions;
- Proposing a "reasonable daily charge" be levied at provincial camp sites, where attendants are employed, starting with the first day.

End Tax on Machinery, Meals

The chambers also asked the cabinet to abolish the five per cent social security tax on meals and heavy machinery to be used in the manufacture of secondary industry.

The taxation brief said there is an urgent need for additional secondary industry in the province as a source of employment, and that removal of the five per cent tax on purchases of machinery for use in secondary industry would lower the cost of B.C. products and make them more competitive.

"Ontario, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island grant exemption from retail sales tax for machinery and parts used directly in the manufacturing of goods for sale," the brief said.

It said the tax on meals of construction workers, travellers and others compelled to eat in restaurants is unfair and constitutes an imposition that should be abolished.

The B.C. Chamber's president, R. G. Miller of Vancouver, heading the delegation, told the cabinet that the organization supports the proposition to set up a major bank and with head offices in B.C.

Government Control Possible

However, he said, the chamber's resolution on the question "expresses the fears of many businessmen that the proposed new bank may not be completely free from control at the operating level by this or a possible future government."

He also said that the organization believes voluntary, prepaid medical insurance schemes should be encouraged and the provincial government should pay medical costs for those who can't afford insurance fees.

He said the chamber tends to oppose universal schemes that cover all persons regardless of ability to pay.

"We feel we should not rush helter-skelter into further major measures until a thorough study is made to establish priorities for future additional governmental expenditures in such fields as education, pensions and health services," he said.

Mr. Miller said the keystone of the chamber's philosophy was a belief in free enterprise and he expresesd concern about encroachment of government enterprise.

"We believe that as much business ownership control and regulation as possible should be left to the private sector and as little as possible taken over by the public sector and then only to protect and promote the public interest," he said.

"We therefore deplore the current trends which have progressively weakened the private sector relative to the public sector."

The briefs presented by the group were based on a 32-page booklet of policy statements and resolutions which is updated each year by the B.C. chamber.

The section on education commended the government's increasing development of various educational programs and urged the present school leaving age be boosted from 16 years "to at least 17 years" as a method of ensuring more training for youth.

The policy statement on government financing urged a change in the basis of the home-owner grant.

WHITE STUFF PREDICTED FOR CITY

Cool air overnight caused light snowfall in the higher levels of the Malahat and Sooke hills.

Weatherman Bill Mackie said today Victoria and the southern part of the province is hanging "by the skin of its teeth" to a mass of comparatively warm air.

"But I expect we will have a continued cooling trend. There is enough cold air around, so we should be on the alert," he added.

TIMBER LANDS PURCHASED

Joint purchase of 229,000 acres of Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway belt timber lands by MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. and Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd. was announced today.

Price paid by the two companies for the division of interests in the land was not disclosed.

The timber is on a number of separate tracts in the mid-Island area of the E and N belt ranging from Cowichan Lake to north of Courtenay and at elevations from a few hundred feet to 3,500 feet above sea level, with the bulk of the timber at the higher elevation.

The timber lands are adjacent to present operations of the two forestry companies and will be integrated into existing logging programs, the announcement said.

Mineral rights on the lands were not included in the sale.

Boat Home Safely

A tug was sent out from Sooke about 8 a.m. today to rescue a fisherman in trouble.

But Sooke RCMP reported that John Homer, of Sooke, was able to make repairs to his 38-foot vessel and come into harbor on his own.

Plastic, Wheels Keep Bert Rolling Along

By HUMPHRY DAVY

The 61-year-old grower who lost his first leg in 1959 and the other in 1963, due to poor blood circulation, has overcome his physical disability by sheer determination and the will to work.

On top of that he goes about his work with the knowledge that his aorta the large heart artery has been replaced by a plastic one.

But that doesn't seem to bother Mr. Wilson.

"I'm not going to sit and watch the world go round," he said laughingly. "There's plenty to do and plenty to learn."

His two mechanical aids which permit him to live a normal life are a wheelchair and a small tractor; the latter he pats affectionately as it has given him mobility.

The machine permits him to move freely about his six-acre farm. He tends his seedlings and rides among the cultivated rows of heather.

He had equipped his tractor with a wooden platform on the rear which can be lowered and raised. He uses it to transport his flats and plants.

He also built last summer all but the roof and gables of a greenhouse. He first cut the lumber to size and then constructed the building seated on his tractor.

As a grower of heather, Mr. Wilson is known far and wide. He has the largest collection (86 varieties) in Canada, the second largest in America. They originate from all parts of Europe and Asia.

"The most beautiful heathers come from Africa," he said, "but they are not hardy enough for this climate."

Proud of his English, Irish and Scotch ancestry, the grower comes of Ontario pioneer stock. He was born on a farm near Owen Sound.

Mr. Wilson and his wife came to B.C. in the early 1930s and first settled in Kamloops where they ran a ranch. They sold it and came to Victoria in 1950. The grower then started landscape gardening.

"We started growing heather on a small scale," he said. "Then the collection grew and grew. We have now thousands of plants" ranging from seedlings to planting stock."

"I can't explain how it's done," he said. "All I know it works."

When one grower was asked if there was anything to Mr. Wilson's art, he replied: "If there isn't, then Bert Wilson has been damn lucky."

Exports Score Highest Level

OTTAWA (CP)—Domestic exports from Canada to all countries in the third quarter this year totalled $2,171,900,000—the highest level ever recorded for a quarter and an increase of 26.1 per cent over the same quarter in 1963, the bureau of statistics reported today.

The figures mark an upward trend which has lasted, with minor contractions, for the last three years. The rate of increase has accelerated in recent months and domestic exports in September were valued at $725,406,000, an advance of 23.6 per cent from the September 1963 figure of $586,890,000.

Exports rose substantially during this year's third quarter to the majority of leading countries of destination. The increase in trade appeared chiefly due to the added volume of goods moved; for which the average index advanced by nearly 24 per cent above that for July-September, 1963, while the average level of export prices rose by less than two per cent.

RECORD TOTAL

During the first nine months domestic exports amounted to $6,005,600,000, thus establishing a record total in Canadian shipments for the first nine months of any year and a gain of 23.5 per cent over exports for January-September, 1963.

Exports to the United States rose in value by one-eighth, those both in United Kingdom and to other Commonwealth and preferential-rate countries by more than one-fifth, and to the group of other countries by over one-half.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP)—There was some overseas support in flax in dull trading on the Winnipeg grain exchange today.

Rapeseed rallied with the sale of 2,000 tons late Wednesday. There was export and shipping demand with light offerings.

Oats and barley were light with some inquiry in both grains.

Rye was thin but prices showed strength, with mostly commission house trading.

Sale of two lots of Canadian wheat totalling 3,300 tons to Europe was reported.

Export loadings of Canadian wheat included Czechoslovakia, 1,000,000 bushels; Japan, 500,000; Soviet Union, 200,000; Ecuador, 265,000.

Lakehead prices for Class Two, IWA and domestic wheat were unchanged.

Prices at London scored substantial gains today in initial response to the massive moves to buttress sterling.

AT TORONTO Consolidated led papers with a gain of 1⅛ to 41. Price tacked on ½ to 42. B.C. Forest Products ⅜ to 29⅜ and Abitibi ¼ to 23⅝. CPR jumped 1¾ to 54, Imperial Bank of Commerce 1⅛ to 68¾, Stelco ⅞ to 25⅞ and Dominion Stores ⅝ to 23½.

In base metals, Leitch fell 60 cents to $4.80 and Highland Bell 50 cents to $8. Hudson Bay led seniors with a gain of ½ to 71½.

In Canadians, falls of a point or more were recorded by Algoma, Nickel, Sage, Consolidated Mining and Massey-Ferguson. Canadian Pacific was a firm exception while Hudson's Bay was strong.

The dollar premium fell to 11⅜ per cent nominal initially but later recovered to 125/16 per cent.

Second Writ Over Timmins Metal Strike

TORONTO (CP)—A writ has been issued in Ontario Supreme Court against Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. Leitch Gold Mines Ltd. and Mastedon-Highland Bell Mines Ltd., disputing any rights they claim to the $2,000,000,000 base metal strike located by Texas Gulf near Timmons.

The writ was sought by Royal Trust Co., acting for the estate of Murray Hendrie of Hamilton.

The writ is the second filed over the rich zinc-copper-silver find, rated one of the biggest strikes ever made in Canada.

Advertising Agencies Merge

LONDON (Reuters) — Mather and Crowther, which claims to be the third or fourth largest advertising agency in Britain, and Ogilvy, Benson and Mather, the 20th in size in the U.S., have merged.

U.K. Firm Sale Rumors Denied

LONDON (CP)—Sir Roy Dobson, chairman of the giant Hawker-Siddeley aircraft group, denied rumors this week that the group is planning to sell off its Canadian interests.

"We are not negotiating with anyone," Sir Roy said.

The Sunday newspaper, The Observer, reports that Hawker-Siddeley is believed to be having talks that could result in the sale of "a big chunk, if not all, of its large Canadian assets."

The newspaper says the deal is complicated by political problems and the question of valuing the Canadian holdings.

A company spokesman said the rumor may have something to do with the pressure put on Hawker-Siddeley a few months ago by the Quebec government to sell its 77 per cent interest in the Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation.

Next time you drink Ballantine's, you'll sense how the stream runs in the taste.

Queen Frederika

Will Queen Frederika End Up as Power Behind the Greek Throne or Royal Has-Been

ATHENS (CP)—It is said of Queen Frederika of Greece that she has great charm, strength of character and intelligence—but absolutely no tact.

If this is true, lack of it was never any great drawback in the years she and the late King Paul occupied the royal palace and Frederika's voice was a power in the land, one to be reckoned with and usually obeyed.

But events of recent months have altered all that, drastically cutting the range of influence of the former German princess of the House of Hanover, granddaughter of the Kaiser and descendant of Queen Victoria.

And it may be that in the new situation tact is the one characteristic she will need most.

The death last March of the quiet, even-tempered Paul and the marriage of their 24-year-old son Constantine, the new king, have put a young Danish queen on the throne and relegated Frederika to Queen Mother, in Greece a sort of royal has-been.

It now remains to be seen whether the iron will of this determined woman, still only 48, will permit her to accept gracefully her place in the background, removed from the intrigue of palace and government she understands so well.

The recent widespread outburst against her clearly indicates that many Greeks do not think she will. They fear she will continue to exercise influence through her devoted son as it is alleged she did through her husband.

Although Frederika has many detractors who paint her as self-seeking and bossy, she is not without admirers both at home and abroad who insist she is the most maligned woman alive, slandered by those jealous of her talent for getting things done.

Because of her many connections with England she attended an upper-crust girls' school there and has family ties with the British throne through both lines of her parentage and by marriage she has long fascinated British writers seeking to fathom the depth of her personality and assess her influence for good or evil.

Generally they are divided in their estimation of the woman. But Reginald Peck, writing in The London Daily Telegraph at the time of the young king's wedding, said that to accuse Frederika "of either avarice or political ambition is wide of the mark to the point of malice.

"It is also somewhat illogical since, as queen, she already had practically all she could wish for of both wealth and influence. She was utterly devoted to her husband but the suggestion that her aim was to exercise power through him is absurd."

HAS RURAL BACKING

In Greece, where almost half the more than 8,000,000 population are peasants, her greatest support comes from the country areas, particularly in the underdeveloped north which has benefited most from her charitable works.

These are the people affectionately grateful for her efforts in promoting the queen's fund to assist the poor after the civil war, the Communist uprising following the Second World War that left the country virtually desolate.

She has also done much to promote Greek crafts, with retail shops and exports, bringing a new income to backward areas.

But even in these works she is criticized by some who charge that Frederika never turned her hand to anything except with a motive of improving her own prestige.

The heart of the movement against her has always been centred in Athens, particularly among intellectuals and Communist elements who, though banned in Greece, operate under the guise of various other names. But recently the Athens press, even the pro-government newspapers, also have taken up the chant against her.

Finally, Frederika took the unusual step of issuing a statement denying any political involvement and refusing the $108,000 annual allowance offered her. King Constantine interrupted his honeymoon at the height of the crisis to return to his mother's side.

The main charge always has been that, working through the late king and with her own connections in government, she pulled strings to get her own way, to cut through sluggish bureaucracy and even to manipulate the workings of parliament.

Some legislation enacted since she and King Paul succeeded at the death of Paul's brother King George II in 1947 does indeed show traces of the heavy hand of Frederika.

A 1952 amendment states that in the absence of the king, and if the successor is not of age, the queen would act as regent. Another constitutional change ensured that Paul's son, Constantine, would be heir-presumptive instead of Paul's cousin, Prince Peter.

Peter, 55, has been rowing with Frederika ever since the Greek royal household refused to recognize his wife, a Russian he married 25 years ago. Shortly after Frederika became queen the government formally deprived Peter's wife of the title "princess."

Many serious-minded Greeks say that the recent new campaign against Frederika rather overstates the case, that most Greek are not so much opposed to her personally as they are eager for an entirely new attitude in the palace. They want a more democratic—and less influential—monarchy, patterned after those in other European countries.

And they feel that with a new young king and his teen-age queen, a representative of one of the most down-to-earth royal families in Europe, now is the ideal time for such a change.

Constantine, a gay prince-about-Europe, has long enjoyed the affection of an indulgent nation. Only recently, with the death of his father and the Greek-Turkish fighting over Cyprus, has he started to develop politically and show an awareness of the responsibilities and an ability to discharge them.

But the king knows there is always a strong feeling in Greece for the return of republic status, which existed from 1924 to 1935. He knows also that in the last 100 years one of his predecessors on the throne was assassinated, one was dethroned and two were expelled.

Most observers agree that if he hopes to save the monarchy he must not be—or even appear to be—influenced by his mother.

Greatest Church Preservists Found in the Atheists of Russia

"The atheist Communistic government of the Soviet Union probably spends more money in preserving its churches than any other country in the world."

This was opinion expressed by Mrs. Graham Odgers when she spoke to the Women's Canadian Club in the Empress Hotel, Wednesday afternoon.

"Although most of the churches are now kept as museums, they are beautifully preserved. Maintenance is not due to the Russians' religious sense but rather to their intense desire to hold on to all that is old."

She told how the same wish to preserve impaired progress, citing as an example the astronomical observatory outside Leningrad.

COMPLETELY DESTROYED

"When the Germans bombarded Leningrad during the Second World War, the telescopes were buried and instruments destroyed. The buildings were demolished.

"After the war, the Russians sent for plans of the original buildings and built the observatory just as it had been. It would have been a marvellous opportunity to improve and modernize but they preferred to stay with the familiar."

Paradoxically Mrs. Odgers pointed out that the Russians "have no sense of maintenance" when it concerns present-day building.

"Once the building is up, that's it. It's a common sight in Moscow to see comparatively new buildings with the plaster already peeking through."

She painted an everyday picture of life in Russia as drab, with women "all wearing scarves, very emancipated and doing road building, mining and other jobs normally reserved for men."

WEDDINGS ONLY

Clothes, she stressed, were unimaginative and dull. "The only time a man wears a white shirt is to a wedding."

"This is not surprising when you discover that drivers' licenses are hard to obtain. You have to be a mechanic to drive a car in Russia, if it breaks down you'll have to repair it yourself. Also, traffic penalties are tough—you can go to prison for the most ordinary of offences. The average distances between gas stations is 200 miles."

Mrs. Rodgers said that the most privileged class in Russia were university students.

"They receive 40 rubles a month and have to share a room with one person only while the masses are permitted only 50 feet of living space per person."

Food, said Mrs. Odgers is unbelievably expensive and scarce.

"My husband, when he stayed at the observatory in the Crimea had to exist on soup, cottage cheese and tea. There was no meat, vegetables or fruit."

She told of the frustrations of one western scientist who'd hoped that his dollars would help him to a better diet.

"He wanted coffee and was told that if he drove to Yalta he'd find an espresso machine there. He travelled all the way only to find that the machine was broken! Determined to have some strawberries, he paid $3 for three cans of them. When he opened them up, two of the cans had gone bad."

"There were 600 people living in the buildings. Hot water was only available two hours each week—so everyone scrambled to get a shave on Friday afternoons!"

Another thing that we take for granted was missing in the Russian capital.

"It's virtually impossible to find a lawn in Moscow. The climate's so harsh and the growing period so short. I know one woman at the Canadian embassy who struggled for three months, simply trying to order some good grass seed."

Contrasts also noted by Mrs. Odgers concerned matters of dress. "The Russians think nothing of changing on the beaches and the standard sun-bathing costume for women, big or small, is a bra and panties.

In addition to her talk, Mrs. Odgers showed color slides, taken on her two visits. She was introduced by president, Miss Elizabeth Forbes, and thanked by past president, Mrs. F. M. Corbett.

you too, should have a wine cellar

The greatest satisfaction and enjoyment of serving wine with meals comes from having a good selection of wines on hand, and being able to pick just the right wine to suit the mood of the moment and the menu. You'll be surprised how reasonably you can build and keep a wine "cellar" of your own . . . even five or six well chosen wines will give you sufficient to suit every meal and occasion.

Matching food and wines is a matter of taste — not of color — and there is only one simple rule to wine drinking . . .

Part of the fun and enjoyment of serving wines is experimenting to develop your own list of preferences. A good place to start is with the eighteen fine 'Calona' wines. Not all eighteen will suit your individual palate, but whether you like your wines dry, medium or sweet, you'll be surprised at how many you will like.

The following chart is an excellent starting guide of wine/food combinations, but don't be afraid to serve any wine/food combination that appeals to you or your guests.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD JACOBY

The United States picked up 10 International Match Points against Israel when Arthur Robinson made four spades and the Israeli South went down.

Opening lead—♠ 7

The bidding and opening lead were the same at both tables, but Arthur played a low spade from dummy while the other South called for the jack.

Arthur won the first trick with the ace of spades and led a low club to dummy's jack. East won with the queen and led back the nine. Arthur took his ace and ruffed his last club with the ten of hearts. He drew trumps with three leads, led the ten of diamonds and let it ride to East's jack.

At this point, East was down to spades and diamonds. He could not afford to lead a spade into dummy's king-jack, so he had to return a diamond. This set up dummy's king of diamonds for Arthur's tenth trick.

The play after trick one went the same way at the other table up to the point when East got the lead with the jack of diamonds. Now East was able to return the ten of spades to dummy's king. South returned to his hand by ruffing a spade and led the nine of diamonds.

West played low and now South had to make a decision. He decided to let the nine ride, whereupon East made his queen of diamonds and West his ace.

South's diamond play was mathematically correct so he was unfortunate that the best percentage play lost but if he had just saved dummy's jack of spades, he would never have been faced with the problem of the second diamond lead.

Dief Wants New SIU Boss at Probe

OTTAWA (CP)—A Commons committee was empowered today to hear the three maritime union trustees and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said he wants Leonard (Red) McLaughlin, reported elected president of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.), called as a witness.

The opposition leader also said the committee will want to hear from international SIU president Paul Hall to determine whether any agreement was made about Mr. McLaughlin in connection with deposed Canadian SIU president Hal C. Banks.

Pulp Workers End Strike at Everett

EVERETT, Wash. (AP)—Members of three Everett locals of the Association of Western Pulp and Paper Workers have voted to return to their jobs, ending the last holdouts in the northwest.

Pickets were withdrawn from the Weyerhaeuser Company kraft mill and the big Scott Paper Company pulp and paper mill. Both prepared to resume operations today.

Portland Hunter Killed In Cariboo

KAMLOOPS (CP)—An American hunter killed in a shooting accident was identified today as Don Stanley Alex of Portland. Police said Mr. Alex was accidentally shot by a companion as they were hunting in the Horsefly area.

Howe Sound Slide Cuts Highway, PGE

VANCOUVER (UPI)—A rockslide early today closed the North Vancouver to Squamish Highway at Porteau, some 27 miles north of here and also forced the PGE to halt operations there.

A spokesman for the B.C. department of highways said the slide occurred at a point where the railway and highway are adjacent. He said both lines of communications with Squamish were halted "indefinitely."

New Massacre By Congolese, 17 Whites Dead

STANLEYVILLE (Reuters)—Congolese insurgents driven out of Stanleyville by paratroopers Wednesday counter-attacked and reoccupied part of the city today.

Travellers arriving in Leopoldville from Stanleyville tonight quoted a Belgian officer there as saying "we don't control anything more than a square mile at the centre of the city."

LEOPOLDVILLE (CP)—The U.S. embassy here said today that Congolese rebels were reported to have taken 110 white hostages with them when they fled the town of Paulis after beating 17 whites, including an American missionary, to death Tuesday and Wednesday.

The embassy spokesman said the rebels also massacred the Congolese population as they fled.

Belgian paratroopers dropped into Paulis and rescued an additional 200 hostages at dawn today. Paulis, with a population of more than 5,000, was the largest town still in rebel hands.

There were indications at Leopoldville that another paratrooper drop might be made soon. But observers said there was "nothing official" on this and no indication of where or when the drop would be.

Evacuees also confirmed that 17 whites were beaten to death in Paulis but other unofficial reports said the toll was much higher.

This brought the number of known white "hostages" dead in The Congo during the last four days to 48. 31 of them were killed in Stanleyville when rebels opened fire on them minutes before Belgian paratroops arrived Tuesday.

U.S. embassy officials here identified the dead American as Rev. Joseph Tucker, Springfield, Mo., the Protestant Mission Assembly of God. Mr. Tucker's wife and three children were reported well.

Unofficial reports from the scene of fighting at Paulis said more than 50 whites were killed in savage rebel reprisals. If this is true, the death toll of foreigners since the rescue operation began is more than 81.

The evacuees said the 17 dead in Paulis, 160 miles north of Stanleyville, were among 39 Belgians, an American and an Italian who were confined in a special house a few weeks ago.

The evacuees, who were rescued when Belgian paratroopers dropped on Paulis today, said 10 of the 41 hostages were taken out and beaten to death systematically Tuesday.

It was the same day that Belgian troops carried in American planes attacked the rebel stronghold of Stanleyville and liberated more than 1,000 white hostages there.

Wednesday, another seven were beaten to death in the same way in Paulis.

SAVED BY BELGIANS

The remainder were told they would be next, but they were saved by the paratroops landing this morning.

A U.S. embassy spokesman here said one of the troops was killed, and five were wounded, and one white civilian was killed.

At least five, and possibly as many as 20 hostages, were reported wounded.

Seven Americans were believed to have been among the hostages held in the town, 225 air miles north of Stanleyville.

The embassy spokesman said 267 paratroopers dropped on the town at 6 a.m. and reported the area "secured" 30 minutes later.

Name-Calling Marks Debate

OTTAWA (UPI)—The current executive assistant of Justice Minister Favreau today became embroiled in the mesh of charges of bribery and intimidations involving high government officials.

The name of Andre J. Letendre joined the others as the Commons erupted into an angry turmoil after the government refused to broaden the terms of reference of the judicial inquiry set up to study the charges.

Favreau admitted that Letendre "did in fact" call Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne "in relations to the possibility of setting a bond" for accused narcotics smuggler Lucien Rivard.

Guy Lord, a former executive assistant to Favreau, also is accused of doing this. Raymond Denis, a former executive assistant to Immigration Minister Rene Tremblay, is accused by the opposition of having offered a $20,000 bribe to Lamontagne in connection with the same case.

Guy Rouleau has resigned as parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson as a result of the blistering series of charges fired by the Opposition, led by Yukon Conservative lawyer Erik Nielsen.

In another session of name calling and rapid fire questions, Favreau said Letendre was implicated in the same way as Lord, whom he steadfastly defended.

Earlier the government refused to widen the powers of the commission set up to inquire into the charges.

Acting prime minister Paul Martin told the Commons the present mandate of the inquiry, headed by Quebec Superior Court Chief Justice Frederic Dorion, were "wide enough to comprehend the matters placed before it."

NO CHECK FOUND

Labor Minister Allan MacEachen set off another shouting match by saying a $1,500 cheque, alleged to have been given by deposed Seafarer International Union president Hal Banks to Raymond Denis, a former aide to Immigration Minister Tremblay, did not exist.

Pressed by the Opposition, however, MacEachen said he would make another check of departmental files.

Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker suggested that, to "find the apparently unfindable," MacEachen consult a Toronto chartered accountant, Alan Watson, formerly attached to the Norris commission which investigated Banks and the SIU.

"Everyone seems to know the existance of these things except the government," Diefenbaker caustically remarked.

Another uproar was sparked when New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas was told that, even if the voucher was found, it would be up to Judge Dorion to decide if it was within the scope of the commission.

MANNING PROPOSAL

Another Party Canada's Need?

RED DEER (CP)—Premier Manning said Wednesday a realignment of political strength in Canada is imperative and may require a completely new political party.

"Canada requires a realignment of Canadian strength on the basis of conviction rather than partisanship and expediency and the Social Credit movement is the only existing movement which might be able to bring about this realignment," he said.

"Even this may not be possible. Social Credit is handicapped by years of consistent misrepresentation which has created strong opposition (to the party)."

People who have learned the principles of Social Credit find it difficult to forsake the party to which they have given their allegiance to join the Social Credit movement.

Mr. Manning, in addressing more than 500 persons attending the Alberta Social Credit League annual convention, said: "I don't know if we can overcome the problems. If not, there is no solution other than creating an entirely new political force in Canada."

Mr. Manning said the new party would have to be completely free of ties with existing parties and start anew "exactly what happened in Alberta in 1935."

He warned, however, that "we must be careful to guard against a premature birth (of this party) which would have little hope of survival."

Rebels Retake Airstrip

ELISABETHVILLE (AP)—Congolese rebels Wednesday retook the tin mining town of Punia, 150 miles north of Kindu on the road to Stanleyville, air force sources at the Congo Kamina military base said today.

The airstrip at Punia, 12 miles north of the town, was being used as a forward operation base for Congolese transport and fighter planes supporting troops which had reconquered Stanleyville Tuesday.

Kamina base said the airstrip had been attacked by more than 500 rebels. Forces protecting the airstrip were withdrawn to Kindu.

Aircraft sent to recover valuable radio equipment were unable to land.

The town had been liberated by Leopoldville government forces last week, on their way from Kindu towards Stanleyville.

This is the first setback for Congo Premier Moise Tshombe's troops since they regained Albertville from the rebels weeks ago and continued northward to recapture Kindu.

It confirmed reports from The Congo earlier today that the columns which took Stanleyville have not enough strength to ensure permanent control of conquered points behind them.

DEATH TOLL 20

Liner Slices Into Tanker

NEW YORK (UPI)—The pride of Israel's merchant fleet, the sleek new luxury liner Shalom, jammed with passengers on a Thanksgiving cruise to the Caribbean, smashed into a Norwegian tanker off the fog-shrouded New Jersey coast today cutting it in two and killing 20 of its crewmen.

The Shalom, which means "peace" in Hebrew, had left New York harbor less than three and one-half hours before the grinding collision that sent the stern half of the tanker Stolt Dagali to the bottom in a matter of minutes.

By early afternoon, the 23 survivors had been plucked from the ocean by Coast Guard helicopters and taken to hospitals for treatment or observation. All but four of the bodies had been recovered.

40-FOOT HOLE

More than 600 passengers and 460 crewmen and officers were aboard but only one, Mrs. Marge Postalico, was hurt seriously enough to require hospitalization.

Both ships had radar, but it was not known whether either had any warning before the collision.

It was 2:23 a.m. EST when the first word of the tragedy crackled through the air from the Dagali's radio operator to the Coast Guard in New York. The message said the ship was "sinking rapidly."

EIGHT 'COPTERS

Party Demands Expanded Terms

OTTAWA (CP)—The New Democratic Party served notice on the government today that it will throw its voting strength behind an effort to topple the government unless additions are made to terms of reference for a judicial inquiry.

In a letter to acting Prime Minister Martin, Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood) submitted a draft of additional terms of reference for Mr. Justice Frederic Dorion who is to inquire into opposition charges of attempted bribery and coercion in a legal case by two ministerial assistants.

The letter said that, if the government accepts the additions, the New Democrats will be convinced that the minority administration seriously intends to bring to light all the circumstances surrounding the charges.

But, if the government remains adamant in arguing that the terms of reference as approved Wednesday are adequate, the New Democrats will vote for a Progressive Conservative motion which amounts to a vote of non-confidence in the government.

The motion referred to was placed before the Commons some time ago. It calls for reducing the justice department's spending estimates by the amount of Justice Minister Favreau's salary.

Mr. Brewin's additions, proposed on behalf of the 19-member NDP group, covered two points:

1. Mr. Justice Dorion would be instructed to inquire "into the manner in which the RCMP and any officer thereof and the minister thereof dealt with the said allegations when brought to their attention."

2. The judge also would be ordered "to inquire into the activities of one Raymond Denis, as executive assistant to the minister of citizenship and immigration."

REPORT ON SPECIFICS

Mr. Justice Dorion would be required, under these conditions, to report to the government on those specific points.

Murder Linked To Bribe Case?

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—The name of a Monsieur Gignac was dragged mysteriously Wednesday into Conservative party allegations of bribery and corruption in high government places.

And for the third successive day the Commons was in a complete uproar as government and opposition members hurled angry insults across the floor of the House.

Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon), the leader of the Conservative attack on the government, dropped the name of Gignac as he raised the possibility that Immigration Minister Rene Tremblay had not told all he knew about the alleged attempt by his executive assistant to bribe a Montreal lawyer.

(A Robert Gignac, 35, of Montreal was charged with capital murder after Aime (Rocky) Brunette, a nightclub waiter, was shot dead in Montreal Sept. 17.)

Nielsen said: "I believe the minister knows full well that a certain M. Gignac has been arrested in Montreal on a charge of capital murder and I give the minister this opportunity to explain to the committee, if he will, what connection M. Gignac has with this whole affair."

Tremblay denied having any knowledge of the bribe but Nielsen's new hints visibly angered the already shaken cabinet ministers and government backbenchers.

In a barrage of interjections they accused Nielsen of Macarthyism, innuendo and smearing tactics.

Despite repeated calls to order from the deputy speaker, Cashin, whitefaced and waving his arms, shouted that Nielsen was indulging in "Macarthyism and extremism, attack by innuendo."

"He is subverting British justice," he screamed. "Let him make charges."

Justice Minister Guy Favreau also insisted repeatedly throughout the wild afternoon that Nielsen should make specific charges.

"Otherwise," he said, "he is infringing a basic rule of the House besides infringing fairness and any sense of justice."

The furore, described by old hands on Parliament Hill as easily the worst since the pipeline debate of 1956, occurred during the debate on the spending estimates of Favreau's justice department.

By MARGE GILROY

An offer by a Victoria philanthropist to buy 12,000 surplus RCAF tunics for needy Koreans, arrived in Ottawa too late.

The tunics were sold early this week to an English firm. The price was not disclosed.

The anonymous Victoria donor last Friday authorized Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, director of the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada, to bid on the tunics then being offered for sale by Crown Assets Corporation for 17 cents each.

He made the offer on behalf of the Times-sponsored Help the Hungry Child Fund.

USC headquarters in Ottawa, has informed the Victorian there is some indication more surplus clothing will be up for auction in the near future.

The donor has replied he will keep his bid open for a week or two.

In the meantime other donations for the cold and hungry in Korea may be sent to "Help the Hungry Child" fund, care of the Times, 2631 Douglas, or delivered before 5:30 p.m.

Donations are also being accepted at the main branch of the Bank of Montreal, Yates and Douglas.

Used clothing should be delivered to Dowell's Cartage and Storage, 1117 Wharf Street.

Donations will be acknowledged in the newspaper daily and official receipts for income tax purposes will be sent later from USC headquarters in Ottawa.

mando Battalion, were hit by rebel ground fire, but none was disabled.

Some 1,350 hostages have been accounted for but there was no word of Canadians still in rebel territory.

The Canadian embassy in Leopoldville said nine Canadians were unaccounted for. In Ottawa, however, the external affairs department listed seven Canadians missing.

Twenty-four Canadians were rescued in the Stanleyville area, including two families of seven persons each.

CANADIAN KILLED

But Rev. Hector McMillan, 49, of Avonmore, Ont., was killed. His wife and six sons made it to safety although two sons were slightly wounded.

Authoritative sources said the paratroopers went to Paulis strictly on a rescue mission and would leave The Congo afterwards.

CONTINUE MOP-UP

Maj. Mike Hoare, commander of the South African and Rhodesian mercenaries attached to the Congolese Army, was said to have led the Yakusu rescue.

The major's troops also were reported to have rescued 35 Belgians from rebel forces 26 miles from Stanleyville.

Meanwhile, aircraft flew in to evacuate 134 Belgians and 10 Americans freed in the town of Aketi, northwest of Stanleyville.

Mop-up operations were being conducted in the Stanleyville area by 650 Katanga gendarmes and 210 white mercenaries who spearheaded the ground drive against Christophe Gbenye's Communist-supported rebels.

As the new rescue attempt proceeded, refugees from Stanleyville arrived in Brussels. They brought the same stories of terror and bloodshed at the hands of the rebels as the first arrivals Wednesday.

Among the refugees was a nun, Sister Anne Marie Merkens, who told King Baudouin of beatings, rape and forced marches naked in the streets of the city of Basoka in the Stanleyville area.

"I arrived out there about 3:20 a.m. and the fog was so thick you couldn't see anything," said Capt. Ira H. McMullan, commander of the helicopter rescue operations. "But about a half hour later, the fog began to move.

"It is fortunate that the weather cleared up as soon as it did. We dropped flares until daylight. Shortly after daylight one of the helicopters sighted a lifeboat almost completely swamped with eight men aboard . . . this was the first sighting that I had of any of the crew of the tanker."

The men were quickly taken aboard in basket slings. The helicopters concentrated on the men in the water. Ten crewmen, including the tanker's skipper, were still on the floating bow section of the tanker. Their rescue was delayed for several hours because they were in no immediate danger.

Minister Appeals

TORONTO (CP)—Rev. Russell D. Horsburgh of Chatham today was granted leave to appeal to the Ontario Appeal Court against his conviction on charges of contributing to juvenile delinquency.

Mr. Justice J. M. King granted leave after a brief hearing in chambers and set bail at $2,500 for the clergyman pending the hearing of the appeal.

FOR JUVENILE DELINQUENCY

Working Mothers, TV Get Blame

By PETE LOUDON

Increase the minimum driving age to 18, keep working mothers at home and censor television then you'll kill the roots of juvenile delinquency.

Put all the boys and girls in uniforms and educate them in separate schools.

These proposals were put forward today by three Greater Victoria members of the B.C. legislature, Works Minister W. N. Chant, Victoria MLA J. Donald Smith and Saanich MLA John Tisdalle.

Their comment was only part of the wave of reaction here after publication Wednesday of a new study of juvenile delinquency. The report came after a year-long study by a committee of the Community Welfare Council of Greater Victoria.

CONCERTED DRIVE

The report pointed up a rapid increase in juvenile offences and called for concerted effort and expenditure by municipal and provincial governments in rehabilitation of delinquents.

The Times today attempted to interview the six legislative representatives from Greater Victoria to ask them what they could do in the B.C. House to improve the situation.

Three MLAs, Herbert Bruch of Esquimalt, Waldo Skillings of Victoria and A. D. Macfarlane of Oak Bay were all out of town. The three members contacted, all from the government side of the House, made these observations:

Mr. Chant was not against greater spending by agencies, but he said, "We can pour the whole provincial budget into the problem but it won't solve it unless the fight begins in the homes."

SMOKE, DRINK

He said parents tell children not to smoke, then they light up. They tell them not to drink, then they pour a drink themselves. These matters can only be improved by the individual parents, he said.

"There are so many mothers working. A mother needs to be home when her children arrive there. He said if you try to load the whole problem on government, family life could cease to exist and a dictatorship ensue.

"Television needs to be cleaned up. Control is up to the federal government. Children see rape and murder. It leaves them immune to wrongdoing."

"Personally I think the province should make some approach to the federal government. A great deal of TV is degrading. But because of economics and the public appetite it is being fed into every home in the country."

TRAFFIC CRIMES

The same basic approach was made by Mr. Tisdalle. He said there must be more responsibility shown in the home. He referred to traffic offences as a communicable disease. Driving licences should not be given to anyone under 18, for a starter," he said.

And on television, "you can't grow a garden unless you weed it. People say you shouldn't have censorship, but this is hogwash." But he thought care should be taken to create an acceptable, qualified censoring body.

Mr. Smith said our children are "victims of our own society." There is not enough discipline in the homes.

"In Russia they get too much discipline and no love. Here we give them lots of love and too little discipline."

He thought there was too little discipline in the schools.

Much of the trouble starts in elementary schools, he said, and at this level he favors . . . "putting them all in uniform and in separate schools for boys and girls."

The changing modes of dress and the economic struggle to keep up with the next student creates complexes for those who can't afford it.

HUE AND CRY

"I have discussed this with the minister of education and I have suggested it in the House." He added, "Of course you'd get an awful hue and cry from the stores and the newspapers which carry the big advertisements."

The proposal for creation of supervised teen-ager clubs and recreation centres was also put forward by Mr. Smith.

In other reaction to the report, C. W. Gorby, provincial consultant on juvenile delinquency, said a great deal more research was indicated now that Greater Victoria had done such an excellent job of producing statistics.

He was interested in the recommendation for placing a psychiatrist or social worker in every elementary school to detect erring youngsters at an early age.

But he pointed out that professional workers are still undecided whether it might be more advantageous to give all teachers a better background of psychology, or perhaps replace counsellors with trained social workers.

Reeve A. C. Wurtele was sorry the report did not place more responsibility on decent home training and he suggested that if names of delinquent youths were made public, this would be a deterrent to wrongdoing.

Deputy superintendent of Motor Vehicles for B.C., Ray Hadfield, gave support to the proposal that all traffic offenders of 15 years and over be dealt with in open, adult court. Oak Bay Reeve Allan Cox also supported this idea.

Greater Victoria School Board chairman Mrs. A. B. Thompson said trustees cannot obtain sufficient trained staff to place a social worker or psychologist in every school. Psychiatrist Dr. A. E. Alcorn asked immediate government attention to the report. Police officials praised the report and hoped it would not now be filed away and forgotten.
